20TH YEAR. NO. 186. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., SATURDAY, AUGUST 8, 1903—TWELVE PAGES. TWO CENTS.

COUNCIL ASKED TO HELP AND NAME A COMMITTEE TO ACT WITH CITIZENS

The Object Is to Treat With the Gas Company and Prevent Threatened Advance in Rates.

The officers of the new association, formed a few days ago to resist the efforts of the gas corporation to increase the gas rates, have prepared the communication to be presented to the city council at its next meeting. It was thought that there are citizens and gas consumers who will not connect themselves with the association on account of the fear that the companies, in a spirit of retaliation, may either cut off the supply entirely or make the service so bad that it will cause suffering and inconvenience to the private consumer. It is not the intention of the association to take any radical steps. This will been seen and appreciated when the letter to the city council is read. The communication as drafted today is as follows:

East Liverpool, O., August 10, 1903.

To the Honorable City Council of East Liverpool, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—It is well known that the cost of living in East Liverpool is unusually high, owing to heavy taxation, the cost of market products and rental expenses.

In addition to the expensive nature of what are accepted as the necessities of life, the company controlling the natural gas supply of this community, which is almost a necessity of life, has announced the intention of advancing its rate to domestic consumers with the current month.

We therefore would request your honorable body, two from Trades Countee, to consist of two members of your honorable bdy, two from Trades Council and two from the business community, in conjunction with the president of your honorable body, to arrange a meeting with the proper officials of the gas corporation, and lay before them a request to refrain from making the announced advance, with due explanation of the reasons for the objection to this advance in rates, and consequent advance in living expenses in this city. Begging your immediate attention, we are

Very truly yours,
CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION,
CRISS M'CONNELL, Secretary.
P. J. M'KEONE, President.

BAD BLOW TO TOWN OF IRONDALE

Fire This Morning Destroyed the Plants, Both Old and New, of Fire Brick Company.

Irondale, August 8.—(Special.)—Another severe blow to the industrial prosperity of Irondale was struck early this morning, fire being the agent. The plant of the Standard Fire Brick company was destroyed, all except the kilns, involving a loss variously estimater at from $20,000 to $30,000, partially insured.

The company had just completed a new plant and installed valuable machinery. This plant was not in operation, but the old factory was running until the new one could be got ready. The fire broke out in the old works, and the dry old building burned like tinder. In half an hour the flames had licked it up, and the new plant as well.

The new building was of frame, 60x80 feet, and among the machinery it contained was a 300 horse-power engine. It is not yet known how much of the machinery will be a total loss, but some of it, it is thought, can be saved and made serviceable.

John Watkins, the watchman, discovered the fire too late to check it.

Captain John Porter, of Congo, is one of the principal owners of the plant. He could not give an estimate of the loss today. It is thought the works will be rebuilt.

LISBON WILL LEND NO ENCOURAGEMENT

Business Men's Association Turns Down Telphone Company's Increased Rates Proposition.

Lisbon, August 8.—(Special)—W. F. Crossley, manager of the Columbiana County Telephone company, and another representative of the company, were present at a meeting of the Lisbon Business Men's association last evening made overtures to approve an increase of telephone rates. The association flatly refused to take any action in the matter. A statement was made as to the affairs of the company, similar to what was said recently in East Liverpool, Wellsville and Salem.

It was decided by the association that the annual merchants' picnic shall be declared off this year. Negotiations had already been in progress with several resorts, but it was considered advisable to forego the picnic.

Sebring Also Opposed.

Sebring, August 8.—The Sebring board of trade met on Thursday evening in the city hall and was attended by about 30 members. But little business was transacted other than to discuss the matter of the attempt on the part of the Columbiana County Telephone company to eliminate free county service or materially advance the rates. A free discussion of the matter was entered into and a vote resulted in an almost unanimous voice in favor of resisting the attempt to increase rates.

DIED OF WORRY

Mrs. Fitzpatrick, Who Killed Her Cruel Husband, Passes Away.

Steubenville, August 8.—Mrs. John Fitzpatrick died at Youngstown yesterday as the result of worry over the killing of her husband by herself about one year ago at Mingo Junction.

He was drunk and beating her on the floor when she grabbed a knife off the table and stabbed him. No action was taken against her.

FIRE OF STRANGE ORIGIN DAMAGES OLD BLOCK

Pennsylvania Company Property Lately Purchased Came Near Destruction.

Fire was discovered in the large frame building at the foot of Union street at 11:15 last night by Officer Saulsberry, who was attracted by an unwonted light in the second story. The premises have been unoccupied since purchased by the Pennsylvania company about a month ago. The flames had made considerable headway when first discovered and it looked like the structure and several more adjoining were doomed. The fire department made one of the quickest runs in its history and with two streams from the fire plugs and the chemical extinguisher soon had the blaze under control.

The flames had found their way between the sills and beneath the roof and the firemen worked an hour or more tearing away the woodwork and extinguishing stray sparks. Fearing some spot had been overlooked Chief Morley had the place closely watched and shortly after midnight the firemen were called out again. This time the extinguishers were adequate to qunch the blaze.

The origin of the fire is a mystery, as there were no lights in the building. It may have been of incendiary origin. On one of the rear doors was found marks where an attempt had been made to cut through to reach the bolt. A pane of glass in one of the east windows was broken out and the window was raised.

The building was damaged to the extent of about $200.

Petitions to Sell Real Estate.

Lisbon, August 8.—(Special)—Idella C. Haas, of East Palestine, has petitioned the court for permission to sell real estate free of the dower interests of her husband, Dr. Ephraim Haas, who is insane. She says she is the owned of lots 13 and 14 in the village of East Palestine and alleges that she purchased this realty with her own means, accumulated before her marriage.

New River Packet.

It is announced that the handsome new steamer being built by Captain Gordon Green at Marietta has been successfully launched and will be ready to enter the Wheeling, Charleston and Pittsburg trade within 40 days. The boat is larger than the Greenwood and has both side and stern wheels.

CHILD LABOR LAW TO BE ATTACKED

STATE CAPITAL NOTES

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, August 8.—A Dayton firm, charged with violating the child labor law by the state department of workshops and factories, has served notice on Chief Inspector John H. Morgan, of the department, of its intention to attack the constitutionality of the statute. The case against the company comes up next Monday. The ground on which the suit is to be brought is that the law was repealed by the school law requiring that children under 14 years of age shall attend school. Both laws were passed on the same day. The attorneys for the firm claim that the school law was passed after the enactment of the child labor law and that consequently it repeals the latter. Chief Inspector Morgan made a careful examination of the legislative journals and found that the child labor law was enacted about 15 minutes after the enactment of the school law. If the theory advanced by the attorneys for the firm is sound then they can make no case as the child labor law, according to their contention, being the last enacted, repeals the other.

The purpose of the firm is to have the school law declared invalid, assuming it is the statute having precedence. There is a clause in this law which specifies that no child under 14 shall be permitted to work unless he produces a certificate attesting possession of certain qualifications as to education. In this respect the act is somewhat infirm as it implies that a child under legal age who has attained certain amount of education may be put at work. The child labor law very plainly points out that no minor under 14 shall be employed. The technical defect in the school law will probably be cured by the next general assembly. No attempt has been made heretofore to attack the law.

The department will make an exhibit at the St. Louis exposit Views will be shown of modern factories in which safety appliances are installed for the protection of life and limb of employes.

In explanation of its action in remitting penalties aggregating $14,000,000 to delinquent corporations under the Willis law, Attorney General Sheets, speaking for the state commission which did this, said that the penalties provided in this law are so outrageously excessive that no man with a conscience could enforce them. Enforcement would have ruined most of the delinquents and would have amounted to a confiscation of their plants and other property. The penalty for each day of delinquency should be reduced from $5,000 to $25, Judge Sheets said.

Willing to Put Up Cash.

A difference of opinion seems to exist in regard to which of the horses, Ikey Boy and Robert L, is the fastest. Parties controlling Robert L called up the News Review and stated that money would talk and that they are willing to cover any amount from $200 to $500 a side.

BOARD OF HEALTH DECIDED ON ACTION

Sanitary Policeman Will Proceed Against Those Using the Storm Sewer.

A LIST OF THE OFFENDERS

Has Been Prepared And No Time Will Be Wasted in Taking Steps to Induce Property Owners to Abate Alleged Nuisances.

That the East Liverpool board of health means to improve the sanitary condition of the city and that at once, there is the best of evidence, and if any one has an idea that it is a joke their minds will be disabused of the fact within the next few weeks.

The regular monthly meeting of the board was held at city hall last night, and in the absence of Mayor Weaver, Mr. Haines presided. Members Harris, Mowen and Birkett were present and the first matter taken up was the condition of Tanyard run. The sanitary policeman had been instructed to secure a list of names of parties who were attached onto the storm water sewer. He accomplished the work some time ago, and the list was turned over to the board of public service. This body, after some deliberation, referred it back to the health department, and it has been decided to waste no more time in the effort to induce property owners to abate the nuisance and discontinue the use of the storm water sewer for sanitary purposes. The sanitary policeman will proceed against these parties without delay, acting under the direction of the city solicitor. Following is a list of those manufacturing establishments, public institutions and private properties which are sewered into the Tanyard run storm water sewer:

George Thomas, no sewer, Seventh street.

Lawrence Thomas, no sewer, Seventh street.

Mrs. Richard Thomas, no sewer, Seventh street.

Dresden pottery, West Market street.

Clem McQuilkin, West Market street.

Ice plant, Accommodation lane.

Burford Bros. Pottery company, East Seventh or Hailes street, Green lane.

Armour company, old Hailes property, West Market street.

McKinley school building, Riley avenue and Ambrose avenue.

Union Planing mill, West Market street.

Standard Pottery company, Broadway.

William Bagley, old Hilbert property, East Market street.

William Bagley, fruit store, East Market street.

James Massey, West Market street.

I. N. Crable, East Market street, waste water.

Thomas Plunkett, Spring street.

William R. Buxton, Spring street.

George C. Potter, corner Bradshaw and Ambrose avenues.

George C. Potter, Bradshaw avenue.

Frank Bergner, Bradshaw avenue.

John Worcester, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

W. C. Johnston, Bradshaw avenue.

W. C. Kell, Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

G. E. Stuffelbeam, Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

W. S. Arbuthnot, Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

Milton J. Arbuthnot, Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

Kate O'Donnell, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Laura Huffman, (David McLane, agent), Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Thomas Lynch, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

George Parry, (Tallis McCain, agent), Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

George Parry, (Tallis McCain, agent), Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

U. G. King, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Sheridan McGavern, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Clarence Gray, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Mrs. J. N. Smith, West Market and Spring streets, closet and waste water.

Flora Pomeroy, Grant street, waste water.

Proctor Ankrim, Grant street, tub, closet and waste water.

C. L. Gray, of 288 Bradshaw avenue, sent a communication to the board stating that since his house and five others were built there had been at least 10 houses built further up the street, most of which he felt sure, were provided with inside closets and drained into the storm sewer, which ends at the upper end of the lot on which his house is located. The stream from the sewer becomes an exposed and open one in front of his property and on down to Bradshaw avenue and Avondale streets, where it runs into the storm sewer. Sinks and bath tubs drain into the same sewer.

Mr. Gray believes all this drainage is contrary to municipal and state laws, but he believes conditions can be much improved without accomplishing the ideal. He objects to the drainage of closets into the sewer and asks the board to abate the nuisance. As to dishwater and other drainage, it should be drained into the running water under cover, if a sewer is not provided, and he thinks such a sewer would not be advisable at present.

OLD VETERANS' GLAD REUNION

Survivors of Co. F, 46th Pa. Vols., Met Today at the Frederick Home.

FOUGHT OVER OLD BATTLES

Survivors of Company F, Forty-Sixth Pennsylvania Veteran Volunteer infantry, held their annual reunion today at the pleasant home of Noah Frederick, East Fourth and Elm streets. Twenty-two gray-haired veterans, not one under 60 years of age, spared by the gods of war during battle and from the hand of death after peace had been declared, came to this city this morning to meet with one another and talk over the incidents of the great conflict. With the veterans was Captain James Hay's Homestead durm corps, which enlivened the trip and the day with martial music.

The veterans were given a cordial welcome by the host and his family and soon they were comfortably disposed upon the shady lawn. The exercises were arranged for afternoon, and during the morning the visitors were free to do as they wished. The dinner served at the Frederick home was a most bounteous repast and one of the features of the day most enjoyed by the veterans.

After a smoke and a few airs from the drum corps the company meeting was held, at which the old officers, Captain Ben Morgan, president, and Captain George R. Beecher, were re-elected. Pittsburg was selected as the place for next year's reunion. The remainder of the afternoon was given over to speechmaking, the principal orators being Captains Morgan and Beecher, Mr. Frederick, Benjamin Hayes and Preston Dunwoodie.

The latter was the cook of the company and was taken when a slave in Virginia. He remained with the company and at the close of the war settled in Pittsburg, where several of the members now reside.

Company F saw much active service in the great conflict between the north and the south and participated in a number of hard battles. The regiment was in the Twelfth corps under General Slocum until the battle of Gettysburg, when it was transferred to the Twentieth corps, in Sherman's army, and served under that noted commander until the grand review of the army at Washington in May, 1865.

Twelve members of the company were killed in battle, five died from wounds thus received, three died as prisoners of war and seven died from disease while in the service. Since the war 38 have died.

Those present at the reunion were: Captain Ben Morgan, Pittsburg; Captain George R. Beecher, Pittsburg; Lieut. Cyrus Shade, Rochester; Lieut. Thomas D. Matthews, Rochester, Hamilton Gordon, John Reagan, John Wrigley, Pittsburg; James Hales, Homestead; H. M. Campbell, Hookstown; Samuel Searight and Noah Frederick, East Liverpool; Charles Shenkle, Akron; Matthew Nelson, Hookstown; H. B. Ewing, Beaver Falls; William Hayward, Shippingport; James Boyle, Salineville; Peter Barty, Slippery Rock, Butler county, Pa.; Bryce McKinnon, New Sheffield; James Purdy, Clinton; James D. Ewing, Pittsburg, and Preston Dunwoodie, the company cook.

These reunions have been held yearly since 1865. Since the last meeting two members of the company have died.

HEIDRICK IS REPENTANT AFTER BEING PUT IN JAIL ON WIFE'S INFORMATION

The Girl in the Case Is Also Held For a Hearing. Much Indignation Aroused.

The troubles of the Heidrick family, the revolting details of which have appeared in the News Review at various times during the past two weeks, received an airing in court last night, and if the action of Mayor W. A. Weaver can be taken as an indication, it would have been vastly better for Mrs. Heidrick's peace of mind had she adopted the course long ago.

The disgusting and reprehensible actions of Walter Heidrick in his treatment of his wife and two little children has been the subject of comment in this city by people in every walk of life for nearly a month. Several times the indignation among his old associates on the East Liverpool railway has reached a point where all that would have been required to administer a coat of tar and feathers and a dose of the whipping post, was a leader.

Heidrick, who has a wife and two little children, innocent of an evil thought or action, and who are too young to realize the disgrace of the father, became infatuated with a girl named Nellie Early some time ago, and for several weeks his attentions were marked and uninterrupted. The couple finally became insensible to any moral obligation they owed to their families or to themselves, and were lost to even a sense of common decency. Mrs. Heidrick was made acquainted with the circumstances in the case, and though she was thoroughly convinced of the guilt of both, she was loath to begin legal action in order to obtain redress.

Both Mrs. Heidrick and her brother had encounters with the pair and everything possible was done to induce Heidrick to abandon the other woman and return to his heartbroken wife and suffering little ones, but he steadily refused. The relations of man and wife became so strained that Heidrick left home more than two weeks ago, and had neither contributed to the support of his family nor recognized the wife since that time. Mrs. Heidrick sought an interview

FIRST DUTY OF THE GAS MONOPLY

To the Editor of the News Review:

The News Review is to be complimented for the bold stand it has made in the interest of the taxpayer against the demands of the gas monopoly.

Many persons confuse the rights of a private corporation with those of a quasi-public institution like the organization furnishing a public convenience to the citizens of East Liverpool the shape of natural gas.

There is no anology whatever between the characters of the two organizations.

A private corporation is formed for the avowed and implied purpose of securing the greatest returns on the capital invested that the product of the plant will bring in through shrewd management and careful policy.

Its first duty is to the stockholders, and it is refrained from extortion by virtue of competition in trade, and the fact that if the article produced is not a fair equivalent for the price charged, the public will have none of it.

With a quasi-public corporation, operating, as in this case, as a monopoly and under a public franchise, for the furnishment of a public convenience which is recognized as a necessity, the case is fundamentally different in all respects.

The fact of this corporation being a monopoly owing to its grant, without charge from the public, makes the public in effect a partner in the enterprise.

As there is no other source from which the public can receive its dividend upon its share in the partnership, it follows naturally that the first duty of this gas monopoly therefore is to furnish its commodity to its partner, the public, at the lowest possible figure commensurate with a reasonable return upon the capital invested. Mind you, the capital actually invested, not the watered stock, as the public stands no show whatever in realizing a return upon the stock issued in excess of the investment.

This attitude of the public is sound, as from whence would it derive any benefit from the valuable privilege of using streets and alleys without other cost, if the gas corporation is permitted to make unjust and excessive rates for the commodity it furnishes?

What contribution does this gas monopoly expect to make for the privilege of owning its monopoly in this city, by grace of public favor, if not in the shape of reasonable gas rates?

Possibly it would prefer to make a fair contribution of its gross receipts, as many other cities require, but it surely does not avow the false principle of getting something for nothing.

It is a known fact that East Liverpool has been constantly discriminated against in rates for several years, and is now in Wheeling, and I am told the mill in Wellsville has always enjoyed a much less rate than the most favored factory in this city.

This being the case, why should the citizens of East Liverpool permit without opposition this attempt of the gas interests to "squeeze" them without even the justification of needing the money?

Will they stand for it?

PATRON OF GAS COMPANY.

THE ARBITRATORS FINISH THEIR WORK

Agreement Reached That Will Grant the Painters Their Increase.

The arbitration committee appointed by the grievance committee of Trades and Labor council for settling the dispute between the master painters and members of the decorators, finished up its business. The decision is now in the hands of the chairman of the grievance committee and will be opened at a joint meeting Sunday. The meeting was not lengthy, as the members had given the dispute in question much consideration.

The agreement, so far as could be learned, is that the employes would be granted their increase from $2.32 to $3, and the decrease in the hours from 9 to 8. Work is to commence at 8 o'clock instead of 7.

The apprentice question took much of the time, the board giving the opinion that apprentices should have the discharge of his employer before hiring with any other and that he be compelled to serve an apprenticeship of three years, with an increase each year. The agreement and several other points was sealed in an envelope and delivered to the grievance committee of Trades Council.

A Pleasant Function.

A 6 o'clock dinner was last evening tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gregg, of the East End, Pittsburg, who are guests of honor at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. Bert George on Fourth street. The event was a very pleasant function for the fourteen who were in attendance. The appointments were perfect in detail, the colors yellow and white being used in harmony with the decorations at dinner.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

CARROLLTON NOTES.

The second kiln has been dried out.

The pottery will use about 200 electric lights.

The roofing of the kilns sheds will be completed this week.

The third kiln of saggers—about 2,000 in all—was fired on Wednesday.

The balance of the machinery will arrive by the middle of next week.

The third and fourth kilns are about half lined, work having been stopped on them on account of a scarcity of brick.

Work was commenced Wednesday on the decorating kilns. There are two double kilns to be erected, the four of them being equal to two of the ware kilns.

M. F. Albright, of Alliance, the treasurer of the pottery company, is now here "for keeps." He will move his family to Carrollton as soon as he can find a suitable house.

John Bossen will arrive here on Monday to accept the foremanship of the clay department. Mr. Bossen was until recently foreman of the clay department of the Thomas China company, of Lisbon.

CONTEST COMMENDED.

The Potters' Herald says of the recent popularity contest conducted by the News Review:

"The popularity voting contest recently closed that took place under the patronage of the Evening News Review, goes far to show the enterprise of the paper, and also demonstrates that the public of East Liverpool will lend the proper assistance to an enterprise calculated to arouse interest in unionism, and that was the original intention of the management of the Review. No one will doubt, and that they have succeeded, no one who has followed the contest can deny. The generosity of the paper in giving more in the way of prizes than was at first intended or obligatory to them is to say the least commendable. The Herald wishes the successful candidates a pleasant journey and a safe return."

KILNS MEASURED.

The new bisque kiln at the West End that was erected a short time ago is now ready to be filled. John Wood, the statistician of local union No. 9, was called to measure it. The kiln is No. 3 and calls for 16¼ days. Mr. Wood also measured the No. 4 glost kiln at that place, which calls for 22 days.

DEATH AT WHEELING.

Charles Och, jiggerman at the Globe, who was called to Wheeling a few days by the serious illness of his mother, has written friends here that the illness terminated fatally. Mrs. Och was well known to many in this city and was one of Wheeling's most highly respected residents.

CHANGE OF DIPPERS.

John Graham, a dipper at the Oliver, has resigned his position and accepted a similar one at Derry, Pa.

W. M. Morey, of the Sebring, has taken the position made vacant by John Graham.

REPUBLICAN TARIFE HAS MADE PROSPERTY

Significant Statistics Showing How Great Industries Have Grown Under Protection.

In the last 50 years a Republican tariff has been in force most of the time. The Republican party is the champion of a tariff that protects the exceptionally good wages of American workmen and develops industries upon our own soil. If the protective policy were wrong figures would show it. A brief comparison of the industrial situation in 1900 with that in 1850 is instructive. The number of factories in the United States in that period increased from 123,025 to 512,339; the number of wage earners from 957,059 to 5,316,802, and the yearly product from $1,019,000,000 to $13,014,000,000. The product grew thirteen fold, the number of wage earners six fold and the number of factories four fold. The production of coal in the same time increased seventy fold; of petroleum more than a hundred fold; of pig iron twenty-four fold, and of copper thirty-five fold. In 1850 the yield of cotton was 2,333,418 bales, and in 1900 9,436,416 bales.

Our railway mileage grew from 9,021 miles in 1850 to 194,321 in 1900. In 1860 the tonnage at the Soo canal was 402,657; in 1900 it was 22,315,834. Exports of manufactured articles have grown from $17,580,000 in 1850 to $433,851,000 in 1900. The gain in exports of manufactures has been from $228,000,000 in 1896 to over $400,000,000 in 1903. In the light of these figures, it is useless to deny the results of Republican tariffs. They are unparalleled in the history of the world. Our workmen are the most productive, as well as the best paid. Their handiwork advances constantly in the estimation of foreign consumers. The industrial and commercial expansion that has come under Republican tariffs speaks for itself, and indisputably.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

A Remarkable Lamb.

Hammondsville, August 8.—Sherman King, near Norristown, has in his possession a freak of nature. It is a lamb, which has two tails, six legs and otherwise resembles two animals up to its shoulders. The freak died shortly after it was found. The carcass has been mounted and he has it on exhibition. He has been offered a handsome sum for the animal several times, but will not consider any offer.

It is rank foolishness to, attempt to remove sallowness or greasiness of the skin by the use of cosmetics, or "local" treatment, as advocated by the "beauty doctors." ATTEMPT TO WRECK A TROLLEY CAR

An Alliance Man Arrested Charged With Putting Obstructions on the Track.

Alliance, August 8.—As Motorman Charles Summers was running a street car upon Summit street at 9:40 p. m. he saw a bright object upon the rail of the car line between Webb and Morgan avenues and near it a dark obstructions evidently was to wreck were standing near the track at this point and a third was in a stooping posture near the bright object upon the rail. Summers at once applied the brake to his car and calling to the conductor to take charge, bounded off and captured the man that was nearest the track, who gave his name as Joe Losio. An investigation disclosed a railroad torpedo upon the track and a vitreous brick. The object of the obstruction evidently were to wreck the car.

Loslo was placed under arrest and taken to the city jail. He stoutly denies his guilt.

Summers states that very frequently of late obstructions in the shape of limbs and stones have been placed upon the track near where the torpedo was found and a strict watch has been kept to detect the guilty parties in the act. The penalty for such an offense is fine and imprisonment.

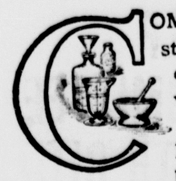
Drugs in Your Pastry.



COMMON Baking Powders are half Corn starch, the other half being Acid-phosphate, or Alum. Some of these are said to be very injurious, and quite unreliable.

Good Baking Powders are one-fourth Rice Flour, one-fourth Soda, and one-half Cream of Tartar.

These cost 13 cents per pound to manufacture, but you must pay fifty cents per lb. for them, at retail.

And it takes $4.40 worth of this Baking Powder to make a $6.00 barrel of Flour into Tea Biscuits!

"PRESTO" quick-flour needs no Baking Powder, and very little "Shortening."

It is the finest flour milled in America, being rich in Gluten (muscle-former) with a comparatively low per centage of Starch (fat), while Baker's Flour, for instance, is chiefly Starch, with little Gluten.

"PRESTO" quick-flour has the exact proportions of Cream Tartar, Soda, and Salt, that such flour needs, already blended uniformly into it, by machinery.

These chemicals are the purest made, mixed with the flour when they are fresh and strong, and then sealed up in air-tight packages that Grocers retail at 10c and 25c.

The very best flour, and the purest Cream of Tartar and Soda are thus sold in "PRESTO," at the price of common flour, combined with Baking Powder, — why?

Because—"PRESTO" carries only a Miller's profit on the whole product, instead of a Druggists profit on the Baking Powder, or 44 per cent. portion.

Then, there's the great labor saving, and the certainty of results, to consider in its valuation.

"PRESTO" makes the quickest, surest, lightest, whitest, and most economical of cakes, biscuits, and pastry.

There is no Alcohol in Nervan Tablets to interfere with the removal of all harmful sediment from the body. The Tablets soothe and heal the kidneys when they are irritated and inflamed. They cure the kidney diseases that make you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable; that make you pass water often during the day and night; that cause rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, pain in the back, joints and muscles; that make your head ache and indigestion, stomach and liver trouble, and a sallow, yellow complexion.

Robert Beale, the young man who succumbed to injuries received through accidental shooting, rested on a couch in the neat front parlor of the family residence on Mulberry street as though in a deep sleep, presenting an appearance as though he might soon awake. The room was beautifully decorated with floral contributions from the many admirers of the boy in life. A handsome wreath of astors was sent to the home by the girls of the Potters Supply company. A bouquet of rosebuds and a wreath of fall roses in the shape of a broken circle came from his shopmates and numerous other pretty flowers from the members of his Sunday school class. All were also prettily arranged about the room.

Rev. J. N. Swan preached an impressive sermon which brought tears to the eyes of those present. Members of the young man's Sunday school class acted as pallbearers. The funeral was held at 2 o'clock and the interment was in Riverview cemetery.

CROSSED THE SIERRAS IN AN AUTOMOBILE

An Ohio Man Performs a Feat Never Before Accomplished.

To E. Tom Fetch, of Warren, O., belongs the credit of crossing the Sierras in an automobile, a feat never before accomplished.

Today Fetch is well on his way eastward, on his transcontinental auto trip.

Never, even in the days when Indians lurked in the mountain passes of this wild and "woolly" state and dead men's bones lined every trail, did a traveler have more exciting experiences than has been the lot of this daring chauffeur since he left San Francisco on June 15, the rear wheels of his auto having first been wet by the waves of the Pacific, bound for New York city, where about the middle of September he expects to drive his machine into the waters of the Atlantic.

Two years ago Alex Winton, of Cleveland, made an attempt to cross the continent in a machine of his construction. Two weeks out of San Francisco his auto stuck fast in the sand and the trip was over. Fetch, who is using a Packard motor car, more than six weeks ago passed the spot where the Winton expedition came to grief and while he may not reach New York until somewhat later than he had hoped he will undoubtedly finish the trip with flying colors, for he has already passed the most dangerous and the most trying part of the journey.

CANTON CELERY VALUABLE CROP

Large Sums Made by Gardeners from Small Patches of Ground

SWAMP LANDS UTILIZED

Hartville the Center of the Industry in Stark County—Great Yield From a Single Acre—Ready Market For All That Can Be Grown.

Canton, August 8.—Canton celery is the whole thing in Pittsburg. Over one of the largest commission houses in that city is emblazoned a large sign, "Canton Celery," and Pittsburg people who come to Canton ask for celery at all seasons. All celery that is grown in Stark county goes into the market as Canton celery, and that name is sufficient guarantee that the largest price can be obtained for it.

Few people have any conception of the importance of this crop, as it is confined to a small section of the county and never gets in the agricultural reports. The Hartville section is perhaps the most extensive. Celery has been grown there for many years and the area is being extended. There are now under cultivation 150 acres of celery land, which produces for the grower on an average about $250 an acre. This is a very conservative estimate.

The possibilities of an acre are shown by the wonderful crop raised by E. W. Richard last year. He planted a little late and the growth was phenomenal. He sold $700 worth of celery from a single acre which was perhaps the best crop ever raised in the county. Hiram Hildenbrand, however, has the reputation of having raised the largest single bunches. He had a bunch containing one dozen stalks that weighed 28 pounds after it had been cleaned and trimmed, which was over two pounds to the stalk. This can be better realized when it is considered that an ordinary stalk weighs but a few ounces.

The Hartville product is all marketed in Pittsburg. It is hauled to Alliance in wagons, the celery raisers having contracted with a teamster to do the hauling. From Alliance to Pittsburg the express rates are 40 cents a hundred, and it is consigned directly to commission men, so that the farmer does not have the trouble of selling. The commission men are glad to get the crop and pay the very highest prices.

Other large celery farms and tracts are found at Greentown, Hartville, Uniontown and near Canton.

The facts with reference to the Hartville section were given by Arthur Willaman, a large grower. He stated that the variety generally grown is known as the Golden self-blanching. It is planted 5 inches apart in the row and the rows are 4 feet apart. This gives 22,000 plants to the acre, not all of which, however, develop into marketable celery. The general impression is that celery soil, which is dark and deep, cannot be exhausted, but this is a fallacy. It requires more fertilizer than any other soil. As high as a ton to the acre of commercial fertilizer is used by the best growers, and if it is not used the crop will be a short one.

A fair estimate of the value of the celery crop of Stark county is thought to be $100,000 a year. The profits are large and those farmers who have the best land are gradually accumulating a competency. The land is valued at from $300 to $400 an acre, and there is often a greater profit from five acres of swamp land when planted in celery than from a quarter section of land given to general farming.

NEGRO DESPERADO HELD UP A CAMP

A Blacksmith With a Rifle Finally Put An End to His Operations.

Steubenville, August 8.—James Brown, who is rated as a bad negro, filled up with a quart of Brilliant whisky last night and terrorized camp No. 13, on the Wabash railroad construction works. Everybody he held up disgorged their money.

A. Heff, the blacksmith, when held up, made an excuse and eluded him and secured his Winchester rifle. He followed Brown and while he was holding up C. G. Goodelle, the master mechanic, Heff kneeled and fired, and the bullet passed through Brown's body at the hips, fatally wounding him.

After he was shot the other men in the camp wanted to hang Brown, but Heff stood guard with his rifle and prevented it. Brown was brought here by an armed guard.

Trade Conditions Compared With Last Year Show Increase in Many Lines.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Railroad Equipment Inadequate for Distribution of Merchandise—Conservatism Shown in Iron and Steel Purchases.

New York, Aug. 8.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Trade advices from nearly every section continue to show as favorable conditions as a year ago, and in many lines the volume of transactions has increased. Jobbers report fall business opening with excellent prospects and manufacturing plants are will occupied, with the exception of cotton mills.

Distribution of merchandise is so heavy that railway equipment already proves inadequate, although crops are not the factor that they will be in a few weeks. Earnings for July exceed last year's by 12.7 per cent and those of 1901 by 20.2 per cent.

On the whole news from the farms is less favorable, but no serious curtailment is assured and many sections make very bright reports. A decline of 1.5 per cent in the cost of commodities during July is evidence that prices are less inflated, since the change was mainly in meats and other food which have been ruling at an abnormal position.

Consumption of iron and steel is on a large scale, and in many departments the past week has witnessed the signing of numerous contracts, but there is a tendency to delay purchases beyond early needs. This conservatism is not surprising in view of the uncertainty regarding the security and financial markets, together with considerable interruption to structural work through labor controversies. The rate of consumption and the moderate size of orders, however, indicate that stocks are running low, which encourages furnacemen and mill operators to hold quotations fairly steady. A moderate tonnage of pig iron has been ordered, and in partly finished products the best feature just now is the bidding of agricultural implement makers. More pig iron was imported during July than anticipated and German billets are still offered at Pittsburg, but the domestic makers announce their intention of meeting foreign competition. There is less pressure for tin plate, the peculiar weather extending the canning season and giving more time for delivery of cans. There is full occupation in all branches of this industry, and in merchant pipe also the mills have full order books for many months.

There were 178 commercial failures this week in the United States, against 190 last week, 191 the preceding week and 196 the corresponding week last year, and in Canada 19, against 19 last week, 19 the preceding week and 14 last year.

Mr. C. F. Given, Sussex, N. B., Vice President of "The Past-time Boating Club," writes:

"Whenever the cold weather sets in I have for years past been very sure to catch a severe cold which was hard to throw off, and which would leave after-effects on my constitution the most of the winter.

"Last winter I was advised to try Peruna, and within five days the cold was broken up and in five days more I was a well man. I recommended it to several of my friends and all speak the highest praise for it. There is nothing like Peruna for catarrhal afflictions. It is well nigh infallible as a cure, and I gladly endorse it."—C. F. Given.

"About two years ago I caught a severe cold while traveling and which settled into catarrh of the bronchial tubes, and so affected my voice that I was obliged to cancel my engagements. In distress I was advised to try Peruna, and although I had never used a patent medicine before, I sent for a bottle.

"Words but ill describe my surprise to find that within a few days I was greatly relieved, and within three weeks I was entirely recovered. I am never without it now, and take an occasional dose when I feel run down."—Julian Weisslitz.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Commercial writes his paper that "the most accurate financial barometer of the country is the increase or decrease of the receipts at the postoffice." The annual readjustment of postmasters' salaries on the basis of postoffice receipts, just completed by the department, shows a heavier rate of increase than ever before. The conclusion is drawn that the extent of the prosperity which prevails throughout the land beats anything hiterto recorded.

There is an excellent opportunity for men who are willing to do business at a reasonable profit to engage in the work of supplying meat. There is no direct evidence that the butchers are in a trust, but if ever there was an example of extortion it is in the present prices of meat. Beef on the hoof, according to an exchange printed in one of the large cities of Ohio, is nearly 50 per cent below last year's prices and yet the consumer is taxed more than he was then. Questioned for an explanation the butcher talks to you about the stock being exhausted and the present supply having been bought at old prices. Facts do not bear out this statement. On the contrary, there is absolutely no reason, other than an arbitrary one, for the present high prices of meats. But the consumer has so long grown accustomed to them that he pays without a murmur, until his attention is called to the injustice. Then he registers a kick and if prices don't come down he curtails his meat bill.

General Young, the new head of the army, is prompt, active and energetic. He is not the sort of man to let military red tape hamper his usefulness, and common sense methods will be in use while he commands.

The Ohio river is getting so low and dirty it is hardly fit to swim in. Yet its water, undiluted and unpurified, is the only sort furnished to East Liverpool water consumers without extra cost.

David Nation takes it all back. He is not going to live with Carrie again. "She is too boisterous," says the old man, and he has had an excellent chance to find out.

The Canton bank teller who wanted to get rich quickly failed in his effort, but doubtless discovered a short route to state's prison.

Russell Sage at 87, worth unknown millions, is working just as hard as if the poorhouse loomed up in the distance.

Bryan isn't hurting Cleveland. His power for harm, as well as for good, is very nearly a minus quantity.

Domestic trade has been growing, as well as foreign. The outlook for the fall and winter is excellent.

The summer resorts are not monopolizing the good weather.

Canonsburg needs to go gunning for ball players.

Autumn is rushing the season a bit.

After a short time he removed to Lisbon. He was engaged in the grocery business here many years. August 8, 1866, he married Miss Adaline Lodge, of Lisbon, who died May 5, 1893. He was married again November 27, 1895, to Miss Margaret Carlisle, who survives him. Mr. Smith leaves no children. His nearest surviving relatives are nephews and nieces. The Bartender's Revenge.

Since the bar is a necessary evil—to some folk—and is an institution of the state, being licensed, reference to it occasionally must be excused. There are some very clever men behind the bar, and once in awhile a gentleman. Tab is usually kept on him by the metal cash register. He feels that he is watched at all hours by a maze of patented machinery. If he steals a check of 15 cents he is caught, you may say. Not at all! The other day in a fashionable resort the proprietor, big and pompous, "called down" one of his men before some customers. As to the question of right or wrong I say nothing. But presently, when Signor Pomposity turned his back, the bar man emptied a full bottle of the finest whisky into the washing trough under the bar. It was worth at least $1.50. That was his way of getting even. I am informed that it is the usual way of resenting an insult from the proprietor. The mere stealing of 15 cents is a small matter when the bar man is to be trusted with thousands of dollars' worth of liquors. If a man is not to be trusted with change how is he to be trusted with liquors?—New York Press.

with the Early woman, and the scene was a stormy one.

Miss Early returned all of the presents given her by the erring husband, many of them being the property of Mrs. Heidrick, and promised to annoy her no more. She either never intended to keep the promise or was soon to forget, as the couple were together repeatedly afterward.

In her desperation Mrs. Heidrick finally sought the advice of the authorities. She remembered that the Early girl had told her her name was Kittie Walker, and she informed the authorities of the fact. This was thought to be sufficient offense to merit arrest, and steps were taken to apprehend them both. Mrs. Heidrick brought the real Kittie Walker to the city hall Thursday afternoon and the information was made.

Mrs. Heidrick has been very patient throughout the entire ordeal, and bore her sufferings with fortitude until last night when she could stand it no longer and resolved to act at once. She returned to her brother's home in the evening, and was informed that she could not remain there longer. The only home she had known since the husband had abandoned her was now denied her and she was about to be left penniless and deserted with no place to lay her head. She did not seem to consider her own comfort, and would have been content to go away rather than force herself upon the husband who had ceased to entertain toward her the affection and esteem possessed by every good wife, but with the two helpless children to care for she was powerless to do for herself, and since her husband was under the same or even more binding obligation toward them, she made up her mind to trifle no longer. The above is the substance of what the poor woman told a News Review reporter when she arrived at the city hall last night, and the determination in her manner and the malignant flash of her dark eyes left no doubt in the minds of those who heard her that she meant every word she said.

Two warrants, one charging Heidrick with desertion and non-support and the other making information against Nellie Early for impersonating Kittie Walker, were placed in the hands of Officer Clifford Dawson, and in a remarkably short time both were facing the mayor. So prompt was the action of the officer that there was a suspicion that he had been keeping his eye on the pair and knew just exactly where they could be found. The attitude of the girl was brazen and defiant, and when she was arraigned in the presence of Chief of Police Wyman and an attorney whom she had retained, her actions were disgusting and from a feminine standpoint, repugnant in the extreme. Her attorney held that the charge was insufficient to hold her, and after explaining the law on the subject, and showing that the arresting officer had thrown himself liable for false arrest, insisted that the prisoner be discharged. Mayor Weaver desired to be right in the matter, and after some deliberation, summoned another attorney for consultation.

While the other legal advisor was on his way to the city hall, the spectators were treated to another disgusting exhibition. While the little babe was asleep in its mother's arms and the three-year-old daughter of Heidrick slept in a chair in a most uncomfortable position, the husband and his temptress chatted and cooed like two mushy school children attacked with their first case of puppy love. At that juncture, had some one given the word, the twenty or thirty witnesses to the revolting spectacle would have laid hold of the couple, and what they would have done could not but meet the approval of all. It is certain that if the crowd had been given an opportunity Mrs. Heidrick's troubles would have been at an end for a time at least.

The attorneys and the mayor came to the conclusion that it would not be safe to hold the girl and she was allowed to go on her own recognizance until the expiration of the lawyers' vacation, when she will be required to face the charge of using Miss Walker's name.

Instead of departing when she had been given the privilege of doing so, the Early girl remained about the mayor's office, in the hope, it is presumed, of being able to speak some word of encouragement to her lover. Heidrick was taken into the mayor's office and his case quickly disposed of. He refused to return to his family in spite of the fact that the wife was willing to drop everything and let bygones be forgotten, and was ordered taken to jail on the charge of abandonment and non-support. As he was leaving the mayor's office on his way to jail Heidrick attempted to have a word with Miss Early but Chief Wyman had stood about as much as any human could endure and grabbing the man by the collar he was unceremoniously hustled into a cell. The chief and Officer McDermott searched the prisoner and disgorged a handful of crackers. The culprit asked if they wanted them too, and in reply the chief remarked that it would be better if he gave them to his hungry children. Even this, which was but one of many rebukes that were administered by both the officers and the spectators, failed to move the man who seemed to be lost to all sense of his duties and maintained a stubborn demeanor all the way through.

As her husband was being taken to jail Mrs. Heidrick broke down completely and cried as though her heart would break. She had hoped that her husband would relent and that they might be reconciled once more, but she was disappointed. She and the children had no place to go, and Lyman Rinehart, who was present, generously proposed to allow her to remain at his home until some arrangement could be made for her future welfare, but she finally went to the home of Mrs. Walker on Washington street, where it is presumed she spent the night.

It is probable Heidrick will not be given a hearing until Monday, and that when he is brought in for trial he will agree to return to his wife and provide for his children. A night spent in the jail has had the effect of cooling the young man off. He has experienced an entire change of heart and is more than illing to make any sort of promise as the price of his liberty. Last night he was defiant. Today he is repentant.

It is thought by all concerned that Heidrick has arrived at a very wise conclusion and he would have been shown no mercy had he been sent to court. The penalty for his offense consists of both fine and imprisonment. If the case is sufficiently flagrant he may be sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of three years.

The charge pending against the Early girl is also a serious one, and when her case is called on the 18th it is expected she can be convicted. She was allowed to go on her own recognizance, and if she takes the advice of her friends she will make herself scarce before the time for trial. If proven guilty the girl can be fined in the sum of $500 or imprisoned for six months, or both.

WELLSVILLE

SALOON ORDINANCE IS RECONSIDERED

NOT LAWFUL TO LOITER IN DRINKING RESORTS SUNDAY.

Wellsville Council Attacks Several Problems—Complaint of Houses Obstructing Street.

At the special meeting of council last evening President Crubaugh and Messrs. Joseph, Anderson, O'Grady, Blackburn, McDonald and Shoub were present. City Auditor McGregor was also present, having arrived from Greenville, Pa., on the afternoon train after an absence of over a week.

The first matter discussed was the payment of the bills. It was decided that hereafter all bills should go to the city auditor to be approved before council should act on them. None of the bills were ordered paid.

A request was made by the board of public service for an appropriation with which to pay the July expenses. There was considerable discussion upon this matter, but no action was taken.

Council appropriated the board of public safety $448 from the safety fund, by ordinance, to cover July bills.

A motion was made and passed that $88.73 be borrowed and appropriated to the board of health to be used to pay its bills. This step was necessary, as there is no money in that fund.

The matter of the blocking of Steubenville street by John Wooster was brought up again. Mr. Smith, of the West End, stated that Steubenville street had been blocked for several days by Mr. Wooster's houses and said that he had been unable to haul coal to the brick yard. Councilman McDonald, who has been the principal member of council to protest against Mr. Wooster, stated that the men who were employed to move the houses were only working eight hours a day and were making very slow progress. Council finally disposed of the matter by ordering Clerk McQueen to notify Mr. Wooster to have the work of moving the houses rushed, both day and night.

The bond ordinance providing for the paving and otherwise improving of Steubenville street was read by the clerk. Councilman McDonald stated that a street railway track was to be laid on this street in a short time and would like to have the ordinance laid over. There was considerable discussion, but the ordinance was finally passed.

A suggestion was made by one of the councilmen that the East Liverpool & Wellsville Street Railway company be asked by the board of service to make much needed repairs to the street paving on Clark avenue along their tracks. No action was taken.

A motion to place the ordinance, creating the office of clerk to the public safety board at a salary of $5 per month on its third reading was voted down. A motion to place it on its first reading was passed.

The ordinance providing for the arrest of persons found loitering in or about saloons on Sunday, voted down at the last meeting of council, was again presented and reconsidered. A few slight changes were made and the ordinance was passed on its first reading.

City Auditor McGregor was asked by council to get up a new book giving a complete record of all of the city's bonds and take the place of the book which has been lost.

An ordinance providing for the paving and otherwise improving of Sixth street from Front street to Hill street was passed finally, the rules being suspended.

The meetings will be attended for the entire season of 10 days by a large number of Wellsville people, and most particularly the members of the First United Evangelical church, of which Rev. Mr. Vandersall is pastor.

The following is the list of special workers and evangelists who have been secured to deliver addresses at the meetings: Rev. G. A. McLaughlin, of Chicago, Ill.; Rev. H. C. Stewart, of Empire; Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Harris, of Evanston, Ill., and Miss Martha Kissinger, of New Castle, Pa.

The officers and members who have the camp meeting in charge are: E. W. Cooper, president; J. W. Vantilberg, vice president; Wesley Taylor, treasurer; A. K. Householder, secretary; R. G. Wallace, Martin Briggs, Joseph, Sapp, J. E. Hartman, W. S. Crawford, George Sebring, D. Albright, L. J. Runyon and George W. Clutton.

WOMAN APPOINTED AS RURAL CARRIER

Miss Sylvia Cullion, of Wellsville, Will Attend to the Delivery of Mail.

Miss Sylvia Cullion, of this city, who recently took the civil service examination for rural mail carrier from Civil Service Examiner Crawford, when he was here, has received word officially from the postoffice department headquarters at Washington, D. C., that she has been appointed as rural route carrier for route No. 1 out of this city.

Miss Cullion has decided to accept the appointment and will sign the necessary papers at once. She will start her new duties about September 1, at which time N. G. McBane, of California Mills, the temporary carrier, will withdraw.

Mr. McBane was recently appointed by Postmaster Snowden and at that time only agreed to carry the route until a regular carrier could be appointed. He has been doing first-class work.

ELSIE ROGERS' WOUNDS FATAL

Died as the Result of Being Kicked By a Horse Several Days Ago.

Elsie Rogers, who suffered a fractured skull a few days ago by being kicked by a horse, died last night at 10 o'clock at his home, north of Wellsville. The funeral arrangements have not been announced, but will be held some time during Sunday.

REMEDY FOR HAY FEVER

After Trying Other Treatments Hyomei Was Used With Perfect Success.

Prior to the discovery of Hyomei, the only advice a physician could give to a hay fever patient was to go away from home but now any one who expects the disease, can, if Hyomei is used, stay at home without fear of the annual attack of sneezing, watery eyes, and other discomfort.

J. F. Forbes, a well known western railroad man, whose home is at McCook, Neb., writes: "I have never had relief from any other remedy for hay fever, even temporarily, until I discovered the merits of Hyomei. I will always reccommend it whenever occasion requires."

There is no offensive stomach dosing when Hyomei is used. It is a reliable remedy for the cure of all diseases of the respiratory organs and is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, so that the air taken into the throat and lungs is like that of the White Mountains or other health resorts where hay fever is unknown.

Will Reed, who has the local agency for Hyomei, advises all who are subject to hay fever to begin its use two or three weeks before the time of the annual appearance of this disease and thus prevent the attack. If, however, Hyomei is not used until the sneezing and other disagreeable symptoms have shown themselves, it is necessary to use the treatment more frequently, at least half a dozen times daily, and Hyomei Balm should be rubbed into the nostrils both morning and night.

The fact that Will Reed agrees to refund the money to any hay fever sufferer who uses Hyomei without success, should inspire confidence in its power to effect a cure.

Stock of Clothing Believed to Have Suffered to the Extent of $2,000.

Fire broke out shortly before 7 o'clock this morning in the Boston Clothing House on Main street, Wellsville, near Fourth street. The department responded promptly and made short work of the blaze. Just how the fire started is not known, although it is believed to have been caused by a lighted gas stove in the rear of the store.

Walkow, who are the proprietors of the clothing establishment, state that their stock, which they valued at $4,000, has been damaged to the amount of $2,000 both by fire and water. They carried $2,000 insurance in the J. W. Riley agency, and expect to realize only $1,000. The building, which is owned by George Murdock, was damaged to about $200; insured.

Mrs. R. E. Kimball, who resides on the second floor of the building, had her household goods damaged by water to the extent of about $50 and is covered by insurance in the C. R. Arnold agency.

Naming the House.

The custom of naming a ship when it is launched with the breaking of a bottle of wine on the prow is a survival of an ancient practice which had many forms. In early times, when the frame of a house was raised, the bottle of wine was broken on the ridgepole. The usage is mentioned in McLellan's "History of Gorham, Maine."

It was the custom at a raising to break a bottle of spirit on the ridgepole and to repeat some rhymes, "naming the frame," as it was called. When, in 1839, Jacob H. Clement of West Gorham raised a stable, John Phinney, an old Revolutionary soldier who was present, repeated the following lines, which he said were used in naming the frame of Captain John Stephenson's house and barn, which were raised about 1775:

FOR THE HOUSE FRAME.

Cursed is the Tory's heart
Which from the congress laws depart;
If the laws they do not fear
I hope they will not prosper here,
And if the laws they do obey
I hope they will prosper in corn and hay.

Chair Postures.

It is one thing to have a chair and another to know how to sit on it. The ideal of a graceful sitting posture has varied in the different ages of the world. The Egyptian sat bolt upright, the knees and feet closely pressed together. It was the ceremonial attitude. The Greeks and Romans, when they were at liberty to forget their dignity, sat stooping, with one or both elbows supported by the arms of the chair.

The Chinese ideal was with the knees and feet wide apart. They have maintained that attitude in sitting for 400 years. The Saxons and early Norman kings are represented in old manuscript and on coins in the same position. Down to a date comparatively recent, kings and queens received sitting stiffly on their thrones, any marked change of posture being thought to derogate from the royal dignity. They now receive standing.

A Legend of February.

Here is the pretty legend which tells why February has only twenty-eight or twenty-nine days. Long ago, they say, February was a gambler, and he was so unlucky that he soon lost all his money. Like other gamblers, he tried to recover it, and he said to his companions that if they would lend him some money he would give them as security one of his days. January and March, who were naturally associated with him more often than any of the other months, accepted his offer, and as poor February soon lost the money which he had borrowed each of them acquired one of his days.

That is why January and March have each thirty-one days and February has only twenty-eight in ordinary and twenty-nine in leap years.

BOND BUYERS AFTER INFORMATION

WHICH THE TOWN OF CHESTER WILL PROMPTLY GIVE.

Further Extension of Time to Pay Taxes and Secure Rebate.

The town council had a busy session last night. All the members were present except Councilman Dunn.

Solicitor Ingram stated to the council that he had received a communication from Seasongood & Mayer, the successful bidders for the bonds of the town, who request information in regard to what proportion of the assessable taxes of the town has been set apart for the payment of the interest on the bonds. The firm will be furnished the information desired and it is thought that the money from the sale will be soon forthcoming. No bids were received on the estimated cost of the grading of Fairview street on account of the absence from the city of Engineer Kelly, but the matter of letting the contract will be in shape by the next meeting.

Several bills were ordered paid One amounting to $155.67 for supplies, consisting of sewer pipe and cement, was held over, as it was thought the bill should be charged to the street improvement fund.

Recorder Maxwell reported that the collector's book was in readiness for turning over to the town sergeant. A proviso, made earlier in the year that those making payment of taxes before July 1 would be entitled to a discount of 5 per cent was stricken from the resolution and the same rebate allowed if taxes be paid before November 1, net January 1, and after that date a penalty of 5 per cent is to be added.

Councilman Johnston reported that Freshwater & Co. were being delayed on the paving of Second street on account of no instructions being given them whether there was to be an intersection on Second street at a point known as the old country road. Engineer Whittaker was present with a blue print of the original plat, which did not show that the road had been dedicated to the town. On motion the curbing was ordered to be set in from the bridge on Second street to Virginia avenue on the west side of the street.

Park officers, Good, Baker and Hogue, made a proposition to Mayor Mercer which he reported to council, that the officers were willing to act in the capacity of town police without any other remuneration than the regular fees from arrests of $1. The town has been put to much expense through the hiring of extra officers for duty about the park entrance and the proposition met with the favorable consideration of council. The mayor was instructed to swear the officers in as town police.

A list of delinquent taxpayers was before the meeting and the recorder was instructed to notify delinquents to pay up after 10 days' notice or legal action would be enforced. The frog pond nuisance and the light question were lost in the shuffle.

Two Performances Tomorrow.

The act is novel and entertaining, and has made a tremendous hit during the week. The attendance tomorrow afternoon and evening promises to be very large, as the attraction certainly merits a liberal patronage.

Tendered a Reception.

During the absence of Mrs. Gillis, the ladies of the church had carpeted the hallway and the stairs of the parsonage. The evening was enjoyably spent, supper having been prepared.

CANONSBURG BOYS PLAYED POOR BALL

Seventeen Runs and Thirteen Hits Easily Scored by the Locals.

VISITING TEAM CRIPPLED

By the Desertion of Players and a Wretched Exhibition Resulted. Their Pitcher Was Wild As a Comanche Indian.

The bunch of alleged ball tossers missed a train and did not arrive here until four o'clock in the afternoon and had they missed another one or been delayed for some other reason they would have saved themselves a disgraceful defeat. Seventeen runs and thirteen hits was the record of the locals while the Pennsylvanians were piling up errors enough to last a life time. By very liberal scoring they are credited with thirteen miscues but this does not represent by half other sins against proper ball tossing.

The locals wobbled in the opening inning but settled down to a fairly good game. The greatest fault was poor throwing in which Brown and O'Leary were the principal offenders. Wallace did not make much of a showing on the poor ones. Lawrence was touched up for a couple of safeties in the first and coupled with a couple of errors two runs were made. When the Canonsburg bunch finished their first half and trotted out upon the field they looked as good as the Pittsburg Pirates and the crowd thought the locals were up against it again. Three of the visitors deserted at Pittsburg and the team was in a crippled condition. Southpaw Smith, who went to the slab, was as wild as a Comanche Indian and he soaked a trio of preachers in the ribs. He had plenty of speed but the locals straightened out his curves for further orders. Maley helped himself to three slices of the pie, one of his licks being a scorcher to right for a homer.

The locals were blanked in the first while the visitors were making two, but they took the lead in the second on Webb's safety, Reark's sacrifice, a two sacker by Lawrence, a couple of errors by Irwin and Maley's single. The visitors made one in the second on hits by Irwin and Smith and an out.

The locals "made a hundred" in the third while the visitors made the rottenest exhibition of fielding ever seen on the local grounds. Two hits, a triple by Gibson and a single by Emmerling with four errors and some weird throwing, netted 7.

Brown's poor throwing and hits by Irwin and Smith scored the last one for Canonsburg in the fourth. The locals made two more in this inning on hits by Brown and Emmerling and more rottenness by the visitors.

Maley, first up in the fifth, hit a hot liner to the club house in right and circled the bases. Four more were landed in the sixth and then the locals stopped. Irwin's error and hits by Maley, Wallace and O'Leary did the work. Score:

Fated

To Die of Paralysis Like Father.

Helpless Invalid For Three Years.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Made My Nerves Strong.

"For many years I suffered from terrible headaches and pains at the base of the brain, and finally got so bad that I was overcome with nervous prostration. I had frequent dizzy spells and was so weak and exhausted that I could take but little food. The best physicians told me I could not live; that I would die of paralysis, as my father and grandfather had. I remained a helpless invalid for three years, when I heard of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and began using it. That winter I felt better than I had before in many years, and I have not been troubled with those dreadful headaches since I first used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. My appetite is good and my nerves are strong."—Mrs. N. M. Bucknell, 2929 Oakland Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

"For many years I suffered from nervous prostration, and could not direct my household affairs, nor have any cares. My stomach was very weak, headaches very severe, and I was so nervous that there was not a night in years that I slept over one hour at a time. We spent hundreds of dollars for doctors and medicine. I was taken to Chicago and treated by specialists, but received no benefit at all. Finally I heard of Dr. Miles' Nervine and began its use. I was surprised that it helped me so quickly, and great was my joy to find, after using seven bottles, that I had fully recovered my health."—Mrs. W. A. Thompson, Duluth, Minn.

TWO FAST TEAMS HERE NEXT WEEK

Ohio Works, of Youngstown, And Niles Will Play a Trio of Games.

Some good base ball is promised at the local park next week. The Ohio Works team, of Youngstown, will be here Tuesday for a solitary game and Wednesday and Thursday the famous Niles aggregation will do battle with the preachers. This trio of games will certainly prove a strong drawing card.

With the Ohio works bunch is the famous Guzzie, the phenomenal second baseman, who Manager Reark tried to corrall for his team. Guzzie was then with Niles, but later went to the St. Louis Americans, where he participated in a few innings of one game. He took everything that came his way and why he was cast adrift is something of a mystery.

Manager Reark will give the local team a general shaking up for these games. He has strings out for several good players, among them Houser, Wellsville's second sacker, who played such a good game at the local park. It is not likely that Maley will be here for the games, as he goes to Crooksville Monday to accept a situation as mould maker with the Crooksville China company. His loss will be keenly felt.

Manager Reark has taken a fancy to several of the Athletics and will probably give some of them a chance to make good. Bennett and Tyson are his pick of the flock.

TOWN OF KENT BASEBALL CRAZY

Its Fans Are Gloating Over the Triple Defeat of the Locals and Our Umpires are Roasted.

Kent is base ball crazy since her team has taken three straight from East Liverpool and won the series from Niles. The games of the team here are reviewed at great length in the Kent Courier and its sporting editor delivers himself of the following bit of doggerel verse anent local umpires:

EAST LIVERPOOL.

Last year your umpire he was fine,
East Liverpool.
Greatest that was on the line,
East Liverpool.

EDUCATION AS A SOLUTION OF THE RACE PROBLEM

By HERBERT BOOTH KING, Sociologist

THE race problem will not be solved by colonization nor by extermination:

IT CAN ONLY BE SOLVED BY HONEST, SYMPATHETIC CO-OPERATION BETWEEN THE WHITE AND BLACK, BETWEEN THE NORTH AND THE SOUTH.

I believe that a new era has already begun for the colored race. This hopefulness is not alone in statistics, but in conditions. THE SPIRIT OF INDEPENDENCE IS GIVING WAY TO THE SPIRIT OF SELF HELP. The question (which he himself is beginning to solve) is not alone, What shall be done with the negro? but, What will he do with himself?

"Destiny is not about thee, but in thee; thyself must make thyself," as has been truly said. "Freedom must not be a bequest but a conquest." THERE IS A GRAND WORK BEFORE THE NEGRO LEADERS OF THEIR OWN RACE. The illiteracy of the masses must be reduced, the criminal tendencies of the lower classes must be checked, the productive capacity of the wage earner must be increased, the domestic life of the race must be improved, their citizenship must be safeguarded and ennobled, AND THE DEVELOPMENT OF PERSONAL CHARACTER MUST BE STIMULATED.

THE SALEM RACES

In September to Be in Charge of Business Men of the City.

Salem, August 8.—The races at the Salem driving park for the September meet will be held on September 1, 2, 3 and 4. The driving park will be under new management this fall, P. J. Brennan, the owner, having made a proposition to a number of business men in this city to take charge of the coming meet as it will be unable to give it personal attention. The proposition was accepted and an organization will be formed at once and probably incorporated.

Mr. Brennan was present at the Wednesday evening meeting when articles of agreement were drawn up and signed. The new managers expect to elect their officers before the end of the week and get down to business.

Could Not Hit Dailey.

Youngstown, August 8.—(Special.)—The East Liverpool Athletics were defeated by the Ohio Works team here yesterday, 5 to 1. Dailey held the visitors to 2 hits and struck out 11 of them. They played a ragged game in the field, which prevented Allison being effective. The Athletics left today for Leetsdale, Pa. Score:

E. Liverpool...0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 0—	1	2	7

Pleasant Heights Club.

The base ball players of Pleasant Heights have been formed into a regular club, with John Bennett as manager. The promoters of the club have decided to scalp the diamond on top of the hill where games have been played all season, and the work is nearly finished. Suits will be purchased and the team will practice regularly. The lineup is a strong one, the team having won a large percentage of the games played during the present season.

Gone to Buffalo.

Robert Larkins, the popular young East Ender, who likes to see a horse go a fast mile, has journeyed from Mt. Clemens, Mich., where he has been health seeking, to Buffalo, where he will witness the Grand circuit races. He may bring home a fast one for the local track.

Claims the Game.

Manager Herbert, of the East End Grays, will make claim to the directors of the Crockery City league for the game scheduled for last Tuesday between his team and the Athletics. The latter team failed to put in an appearance. The Grays and Crockery City play an exhibition game today.

Visiting at Norwalk.

Pitcher Ed. Lawrence, of the local team, left last night after pitching a winner against Canonsburg, for his home in Norwalk, O., where he will make a brief visit with his parents. The "big boy" will return and finish the season here.

Wellsville Beaten.

Wellsville lost at Greenville yesterday by a score of 7 to 3. "Slab" Burns, the ex-Homesteader, pitched for Greenville, and Black for Wellsville.

Marines at Wellsville.

The Marines, with a very strong team, are playing the Wellsville base ball team this afternoon on the grounds of the latter club.

IT IS SERIOUS

Some East Liverpool People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

The constant aching of bad back,
The weariness, the tired feeling,
The pains and aches of kidney ills
Are serious—if neglected.
Dangerous urinary troubles follow.
An East Liverpool citizen shows you how to avoid them.

Mr. George Mount, of 165 Fourth street, teamster and dealer in coal, says: "For three years I had attacks of kidney complaint, some of them laying me up for two or three weeks at a time. The symptoms were pain in the back, particularly severe when stooping or moving around. Physicians called it lumbago and advised by friends to use Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured two boxes at the W. & W. Pharmacy. They cured me."

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Salineville ball team played Niles and was slaughtered to the tune of 14 to 1 at Niles.

The fall meeting of the Youngstown Driving club will be held on September 15, 16, 17 and 18, and promises to be even more successful than that held in July.

Manager Streeter, of the Ohio Works base ball club, Youngstown, has signed two new players, who came very highly recommended. They are infielder James, formerly of Alliance, and catcher and infielder Starr, who has been playing for Greenville, Pa.

Beaumont is the only player in either big league who has made more runs than he has played games.

Harvey Bailey, the big southpaw of the Columbus team, who was suspended Saturday for alleged indifference in his playing, left this week for Indianapolis to join Kelly's Saints.

A deed of trust to secure loans of $100,000 has been filed by Ralph H. Orthwein, president of the St. Louis American league base ball company. The property is conveyed to Charles C. Orthwein, of Kansas City.

Volcano Again Active.

Mexico City, Aug. 8.—Reports from various points in the southwestern part of the republic show that more earthquake shocks are again being felt. The city of Oaxaca has been shaken, also Pochutla, near the Guatemalan border. The volcano of Colima is again active. Large clouds of gas are passing over the city of Colima.

Johnson After Gubernatorial Honors.

Cleveland, Aug. 8.—County Clerk C. F. Salen, campaign manager for Mayor Tom L. Johnson, announced that Mayor Johnson had consented to permit his name to be presented to the coming state convention for the gubernatorial nomination. The only other candidate mentioned so far is John L. Zimmerman, of Springfield.

Steambarge Beached.

Alpena, Mich., Aug. 8.—The steambarge Colonial, of the Gilchrist fleet, loaded with iron ore for Ohio points, sprang a leak and has been beached about four miles from False Presque Isle. The Middle Island life saving crew and the tug Ralph, of Alpena, with a steam pump, have gone to her assistance.

Deibel Taken to Cleveland.

Warren, O., Aug. 8.—Albert W. Deibel, who is alleged to have embezzled $22,000 from the City National bank at Canton, pleaded not guilty before United States Commissioner R. I. Gillmer. He was held to court and in default of the $20,000 bond was taken to jail at Cleveland.

Costly Covington Fire.

Cincinnati, Aug. 8.—A disastrous fire in Covington, Ky., caused a loss of over $175,000. The following buildings were destroyed: Consumers Ice company, Hart & Co., Henry Heile's feed store, New England distillery, Hager's saloon and the F. Studebrand company spice mills.

General Woodson Dead.

The Iowa Tariff Idea

Some Men Who Are Prominent In the Movement

GOVERNOR ALBERT B. CUMMINS of Iowa, famous for the persistency with which he has urged the "Iowa idea" of tariff reform and who is said to have won over President Roosevelt and Senator Allison to his views, is probably the most popular man in the state of which he is the chief executive.

Public interest in what is called the "Iowa idea" was quickened last fall

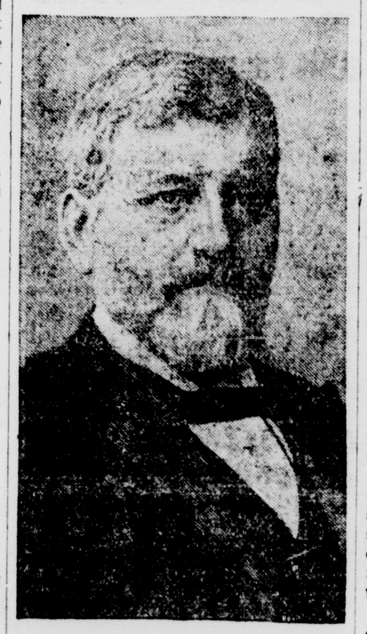
when David B. Henderson, then speaker of the national house of representatives, declined to stand for re-election rather than indorse the Iowa plan of tariff favored by Governor Cummins and indorsed by the Iowa Republican conventions of 1901 and 1902.

The pith of the "Iowa idea" was pronounced in favor of "any modification of the tariff schedules that may be required to prevent their affording a shelter to monopoly." This phraseology was too strong for Speaker Henderson, it is said, and he stepped down. In the agreement said to have been arrived at between President Roosevelt, Senator Allison and Governor Cummins the tariff idea has been made more in harmony with the tariff plank in the national Republican platform of 1896.

Governor Cummins is a native of Pennsylvania and worked his way through the common schools and the Waynesburg academy. Going west in 1869, he secured a clerkship at Elkader, Ia., and later worked as a carpenter and an express messenger. In 1871 he went to Indiana and soon became division engineer of the Cincinnati, Richmond and Fort Wayne railroad. When twenty-three years of age Mr. Cummins began to study law and two years later was admitted to the bar in Chicago. That city was his home until 1878, when he removed to Des Moines, where he has since resided.

For sixteen years Governor Cummins has been a conspicuous figure in public life. In 1893 he was a candidate for United States senator, but John H. Gear was elected. A popular speaker, he has made many friends who follow him with intense devotion. His second campaign for senator was made in 1899, when he was again defeated by the late Mr. Gear. His campaign, however, resulted in the formation of a powerful organization in his interest, and he was elected governor in 1901.

That Governor Cummins possesses talent, integrity, eloquence and a genius for politics every one in Iowa knows.



SENATOR WILLIAM B. ALLISON.

Besides this, he is considered in Iowa to be the best looking governor of any state in the upper Mississippi valley, with New York, Pennsylvania and a few other states thrown in for good measure. Personal pulchritude, however, is the last thing in the world, say his friends, that Governor Cummins would lay claim to. He is a manly man of fifty-three and a brainy one. He is broad minded and has proved conclusively that he is also a statesman.

Tall, sturdy, not too stout, with the kind of iron gray hair and mustache people call "distinguished" and with courteous, magnetic manners, the chief executive of Iowa has rapidly put himself at the head of the Republican party in the state, although that commonwealth has been noted for the number of able leaders it possessed.

The gift of oratory was acquired by Mr. Cummins in early years, but an experience of one of his first attempts at public speaking is rendered much more amusing by the lapse of time than it was when it occurred. When he was twenty-one years old he went back to his old home in Pennsylvania on a visit. Soon after his arrival a soldiers' reunion was held there, and his friends asked him to make a speech. The meeting was held at a little crossroads, and after several of the veterans had spoken young Cummins was called upon.

He arose with all the dignity he could command and began the statement that, unfortunately for him, he was born too late to participate in the toils and dangers of a soldier's life and share in his triumphs. Just here he became afflicted with mental paralysis. After an instant of hesitation he noticed an old soldier back in a corner lean over to a companion and whisper. The whisper, however, was audible all over the house, and the speaker heard with astonishment the remark, "It's a blamed pity he was born at all." That broke the spell, and, like a flash, his scattered ideas came back to him, and he made a speech that won the approval of all his hearers, even to the whisperer in the corner.

Governor Cummins is of Scotch-Irish ancestry, his father being Scotch-Irish and his mother of Irish extraction. He was married in 1874 to Miss Ida L. Gallery of Michigan. They have one daughter.

Senator William B. Allison, who is now said to favor the "Iowa idea," has represented his state in congress for nearly forty years, thirty of them as senator. Mr. Allison was brought up in Perry, O., on his father's farm, which he assisted in working when not attending the district school. In 1857 he went to Iowa and settled in Dubuque, where he has since resided.

His congressional career opened in 1862 when he was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress. He was elected three times and declined a renomination in 1871, instead becoming a candidate for the senate. After a long contest he defeated Senator James Harlan and took his seat in 1873.

Senator Allison is a ready, earnest debater, not easily disconcerted by attack and always clear and logical in the presentation of his arguments. Never a bitter partisan, he has always held the respect of public men in both parties. He is in comfortable circumstances, but far from being a millionaire.

The veteran statesman was recently re-elected to his sixth term in the senate. He is of Irish extraction and is seventy-four years old. Before the death of his wife his home on Vermont avenue, Washington, was one of the social centers of the capital.

Hon. David B. Henderson, who declined to stand for re-election because, it is said, of the views of his party in Iowa on the tariff question, was ten times elected to the house of representatives and twice was speaker of that body.

He was born in Scotland sixty-three years ago and came to this country as a child. He served in the civil war, where he lost a leg. As speaker of the house of representatives he was popular and was generally considered an impartial presiding officer. Indications seem to point to the growth of the so called "Iowa idea."

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

CHAPTER I.—Grenfall Lorry, a wealthy American globe trotter, stumbles into acquaintance with a charming foreign girl on the train from Denver to Washington. The pair are left behind when the flier stops for repairs in West Virginia. II.—Lorry wires ahead to hold the train. He and the unknown girl ride twenty miles at a tearing pace in a mountain coach. Lorry knows it is a dangerous ride. There is no love-making, but a near approach to it as the rolling stage tumbles the passengers about. III.—Lorry dines with the foreign party, consisting of Miss Guggenslocker, Uncle Caspar and Aunt Yvonne. They are natives of Graustark, a country Lorry had never heard of before. IV.—Lorry shows the foreigners the sights of Washington. They leave for New York to sail on the Kaiser Wilhelm. Miss Guggenslocker naively calls Lorry her "Ideal American" and invites him to come and see her at Edelweiss. V.—Wildly infatuated, Lorry hurries to New York. The name Guggenslocker is not on the steamer list. He sees the steamer off. Miss G. waves him a kiss from the deck. VI.—Lorry joins his old friend, Harry Anguish, an American artist in Paris. Graustark and its capital Edelweiss, are located by a guide book. The Americans get no trace of the Guggenslockers there. VII.—Lorry sees his charmer driving in a carriage with a beautiful companion of her own sex. He gets a glance of recognition, but the carriage rolls on, leaving the mystery unsolved. Later he receives a note at his hotel signed Sophia Guggenslocker, inviting him to visit her next day. VIII.—In the evening Lorry and Anguish ramble about the grounds of the castle where dwells the court of the princess of Graustark.

"He should be here at 12," said one of the newcomers in a low voice and in fairly good English. The other merely grunted. There was a silence of some duration, broken by the first speaker.

"If this job fails and you are caught, it will mean years of servitude."

"But in that case we are to have 10,000 gavvos apiece for each year we lie in prison. It's fair pay—not only for our failure, but for our silence," said the other, whose English was more difficult to understand.

Anguish's fingers gripped Lorry's leg, but there was no sound from either of the thoroughly aroused dreamers. "A plot, as I live," thought each, with a thrill.

"We must be careful to speak only in English. There are not twenty people in Edelweiss who understand it, but the night has ears. It is the only safe tongue. Geddos speaks it well. He should be here." It was the first speaker who uttered these words, little knowing that he had listeners other than the man to whom he spoke.

A dark figure shot across the roadway, and, almost before the Americans were aware of it, the party numbered three.

"Ah, Geddos, you are punctual."

"I have found it ever a virtue," responded the newcomer.

"Have you secured your men?"

"I have, your"—

"Sh! Call me Michael, on your life! They are ready and willing to undertake the venture?"

"Yes, but they do not understand the true conditions. I have told them that we are to rob the castle and carry the body to Ganlook before morning."

"They do not know the real object of the raid, then. That is as I desired. Are they trusty and experienced men?"

"The best—or the worst—that I could find in Vienna. Not one understands our language, and they are so ignorant of our town that they are entirely dependent on me. They know nothing whatever of the princess, Michael, and will do only as they are told, realizing that if caught they will be guillotined. I have told them it is the royal palace we are to rifle. Ostrom here and I are the only ones except yourself and the men who will aid us inside the castle, who know the truth, sir."

"It cannot fail unless those inside prove false or unworthy," said the hoarse voiced Ostrom. Anguish's fingers were gripping Lorry's leg so fiercely that the blood was ready to burst out, but he did not feel the pain. Here, then, was some gigantic plot in which the person of the princess herself was to be considered. Was it an assassination?

"You have five of these Viennese?"

"Yes; two to stand beneath the window to receive the booty as we lower it to the ground, one to stand

"He should be here at 12."

guard at the west gate and two to attend the carriage and horses in the ravine beyond the castle."

"When did these men arrive?"

"This morning. I kept them in my sister's home until an hour ago. They are now in the ravine awaiting Ostrom and myself. Are you sure, Michael, that the guards and the cook have been made to understand every detail? The faintest slip will mean ruin."

"They are to be trusted fully. Their pay is to be high enough to make it an object to be infallible. The guard, Dubois, will leave the gate unwatched and you will chloroform him, with his consent, of course. You will enter, as I have explained before, and crawl along in the dark shadow of the wall until you reach the arbor that leads to the kitchen and scullery. Here another guard, Rabbo, known to Ostrom as a comrade in her royal highness' service not more than a year ago, will be encountered. He will be bound and gagged without the least noise or struggle. Just as the clock strikes 2 the cook will walk past the scullery window in the basement thrice, carrying a lighted candle. You will see this light through the window and will know that all is well inside the castle. Ostrom, you will then lead the two Viennese to a place directly beneath the third window in the princess' sleeping apartment. There are several clumps of shrubbery there, and under these they will hide, protected from the gaze of any watchman who is not with us. You and Geddos will be admitted to the scullery by the cook, who will conduct you to the hall leading to her highness' bedroom. The man who guards her door is called Dannox. He will not be at his post, but will accompany you when you leave the castle. You will understand how carefully you must enter her room and how deeply she must be chloroformed. In the adjoining room her lady in waiting, the Countess Dagmar, sleeps. If her door is ajar, you are to creep in and chloroform her, leaving her undisturbed. Then the princess is to be wrapped in the cloth you take with you and lowered from the window to the men below. They are to remain in hiding until you have left the castle and have reached their side. It will not be difficult, if caution is observed, for you to get outside of the wall and to the carriage in the ravine. I have given you this plan of action before, I know, but I desire to impress it firmly upon your minds. There must not be the slightest deviation. The precision of clockwork is necessary."

The man named Michael hissed the foregoing into the ears of his companions, the palsied Americans hearing every word distinctly. They scarcely breathed, so tremendous was the restraint imposed upon their nerves. A crime so huge, so daring as the abduction of a princess, the actual invasion of a castle to commit the theft of a human being just as an ordinary burglar would steal in and make away with the contents of a silver chest, was beyond their power of comprehension.

"We understand fully how it is to be done, and we shall get her to Ganlook on time," said Geddos confidently.

"Not a hair of her head must be harmed," cautioned the arch conspirator. "In four days I shall meet you at Ganlook. You will keep her in close confinement until you hear from me. Have you the guard's uniforms that you are to wear tonight?"

"They are with the carriage in the ravine. Ostrom and I will don them before going to the castle. In case we are seen they will throw observers off the track long enough for us to secure a good start in our flight."

"Remember, there is to be no failure. This may mean death to you, certainly a long prison term, if you are apprehended. I know it is a daring deed, but it is just of the kind that succeeds. Who would dream that mortal man could find the courage to steal a princess of the realm from her bed and spirit her away from under the very noses of her vaunted guardsmen? It is the bold, the impossible plan that wins."

"We cannot fail if your men on the inside do their work well," said Geddos, repeating what Ostrom had said. "All depends on their faithfulness."

"They will not be found wanting. Your cutthroats must be sent on to Calas with the empty carriage after you have reached Ganlook in safety. You will need them no more. Ostrom will pay them, and they are to leave the country as quickly as possible. At Calas they will be able to join a pack train that will carry them to the Great Northern railroad. From there they will have no trouble in reaching Vienna. You will explain to them, Geddos. All we need them for, as you know, is to prove by their mere presence in case of capture that the attempt was no more than a case of burglary conceived by a band of Viennese robbers. There will be no danger of capture if you once get her outside the walls. You can be half way to Ganlook before she is missed from the castle. Nor can she be found at Ganlook if you follow the instructions I gave last night. It is now nearly 1 o'clock, and in half an hour the night will be as dark as Erebus. Go, men; you have no more time to lose, for this must be accomplished slowly, carefully, deliberately. There must be no haste until you are ready for the race to Ganlook. Go, but, for God's sake, do not harm her! And do not fail!"

"Failure means more to us than to you, Michael," half whispered the hoarse Ostrom.

"Failure means everything to me! I must have her!"

Already the two hirelings were moving off toward the road that ran west of the castle grounds. Michael watched them for a moment and then started swiftly in the direction of the city. The watchers had not been able to distinguish the faces of the conspirators, but they could never forget the calm, cold voice of Michael, with its quaint, jerky English.

"What shall we do?" whispered Anguish when the men were out of hearing.

"God knows!" answered Lorry. "This is the most damnable thing I ever heard of. Are we dreaming? Did we really see and hear those men?" He had risen to his feet, his companion sitting weakly before him.

"There's no question about it! It's a case of abduction, and we have it in our power to spoil the whole job. By gad, but this is luck, Gren!" Anguish was quivering with excitement as he rose to his feet. "Shall we notify old Dangloss or alarm the steward? There's no time to be lost if we want to trap these fellows. The chief devil is bound to escape, for we can't get him and the others too, and they won't peach on him. Come, we must be lively! What are you standing there for? The trap must be set!"

"Wait! Why not do the whole job ourselves?"

"How—what do you mean?"

"Why should we alarm anybody? We know the plans as well as these scoundrels themselves. Why not follow them right into the castle, capture them red handed, and then do the alarming? I'm in for saving the Princess of Graustark with our own hands and right under the noses of her vaunted guardsmen, as Michael says." Lorry was thrilled by the spirit of adventure. His hand gripped his friend's arm and his face was close to his ear. "It is the grandest opportunity two human beings ever had to distinguish themselves!"

"Great heaven, man! We can't do such a thing!" gasped Anguish.

"It's the easiest thing in the world. Besides, if we fail, we have nothing to lose. If we succeed, see what we've done! Don't hesitate, old man! Come on! Come on! We'll take 'em ourselves, as sure as fate. Have you no nerve? What kind of an American are you? This chance won't come in ten lifetimes! Are we not equal to those two scoundrels?"

"Two! There are at least ten of them!"

"You fool! The three guards are disposed of in advance, two of the Viennese are left with the horses, two are chucked off under the princess' window, and one stands at the gate. We can slug the man at the gate, the fellows under the window are harmless, and that leaves but our two friends and the cook. We have every advantage in the world. Can't you see?"

"You are right! Come on! I'll risk it with you! We will save the Princess of Graustark!"

"Don't you see it will be just as easy for us to enter the castle as for these robbers? The way will be clear and will be kept clear. Jove, man, we need not be more than thirty seconds behind them. Is your pistol all right?"

By this time the two men were speeding along the grassy stretch toward the road that ran beside the wall. They looked to their pistols and placed them carefully in outside coat pockets.

"We must throw away these heavy canes," whispered the painter to his friend, who was a pace or so ahead.

"Keep it! We'll need one of them to crack that fellow's head at the gate. Gad, it's dark along here!"

"How the devil are we to know where to go?"

"We'll stop when we come to the gate where we climbed up the wall today. That is the only entrance I saw along the west wall, and it is near the castle. Just as soon as the gang enters that gate we'll crawl up and get rid of the fellow who stands watch."

It was so dark that they could barely see the roadway, and they found it necessary to cease talking as they slunk along beside the wall. Occasionally they paused to listen, fearing that they might draw too close upon the men who had gone before. At last they came to a big gate and halted.

"Is this the gate?" whispered Anguish.

"Sh! Yes; I'm quite sure. We are undoubtedly near the castle, judging by the distance we have come. Let us cross the road and lie directly opposite. Be careful!"

Like panthers they stole across the road and down a short grassy embankment. At Anguish's suggestion Lorry wrapped his handkerchief tightly about the heavy end of his cane, preparing in that way to deaden the sound of the blow that was to fall upon the Vienna man's head. Then they threw aside their hats, buttoned their coats tightly and sank down to wait, with bounding hearts and tingling nerves, the arrival of the abductors, mutely praying that they were at the right gate.

CHAPTER IX.

THE EXPLOIT OF LORRY AND ANGUISH.

DURING the half hour spent in the grassy ditch or gutter they spoke not more than half a dozen times and in the faintest of whispers. They could hear the guard pacing the driveway inside the ponderous gate, but aside from his footsteps no sound was distinguishable. A sense of oppression came over the two watchers as the minutes grew longer and more deathlike in their stillness.

They knew nothing of the surroundings. If they failed, there was the danger of being shot by the guards before an explanation could be made. If they succeeded, it must be through sheer good fortune and not through prowess of mind or muscle. Both knew the sensible, judicious act would be to alarm the guards and thus avoid all possible chance of a fiasco. With misgivings and doubts in their hearts the two self appointed guardians of the princess lay there upon the grass, afraid to give up the project, yet fearing the outcome.

"The dickens will be to pay, Lorry, if they dispose of this guard on the inside and lock the gate. Then how are we to follow?" whispered Anguish.

Lorry was thoughtful for awhile. He felt the chill of discouragement in his heart.

"In that case we must lie outside and wait till they come out with the princess; then make a sudden assault and rescue her. In the darkness we can make them think there are a dozen rescuers," he whispered at length. After awhile Anguish asked another appalling question, the outgrowth of brain racking study:

"Suppose these fellows, who will be in guards' uniform, should turn about and capture us. What then? We are strangers, and our story would not be believed. They could slip away in the excitement and leave us in a very awkward position."

"Harry, if we are going to hatch up all sorts of possibilities, let's give up the thing right now. I have thought of a thousand contingencies, and I realize how desperate the job is to be. We must either cast discretion to the winds or we must retreat. Which shall we do?"

"Cast aside discretion and hang our fears," said the other, once more inspired. "We'll take chances and hope for the best. If we see we are going to fail, we can then call for the guards. The grounds are doubtless full of soldiers. The only part I'm worried about is the groping through that strange dark castle."

"We must do some calculating, and we must stick close together. By watching where they station the two Viennese we can figure about what direction we must take to get to the princess' room. Sh! Isn't that some one approaching?"

They strained their ears for a moment and then involuntarily, spasmodically shook hands, each heaving the deep breath of excitement. The stealthy rustle of moving bodies was heard, faint, but positive. It was a moment of suspense that would have strained the nerve of a stone image. Where were the abductors? On which side of the road and from what direction did they come? Oh, for the eyes of a cat!

There was a slight shuffling of feet near the gate, a suppressed "Sh!" and then deathly silence. The gate opened, a faint creaking attesting the fact, followed by the heavy breathing of men, the noise of subdued activity, the scent of chloroform, some whispering and then the creaking of the gate.

"They've gone," whispered Anguish. Lorry's form arose to a crouching posture, and a moment later he was crossing the road with the tread of a cat, his cane gripped firmly in his hand. Anguish followed with drawn revolver. So still was their approach that they were upon the figure of a man before they were aware of the fact. In the darkness the foremost American saw the outline of a human figure bending over a long object on the ground. He could smell chloroform strongly and grasped the situation. The Viennese was administering the drug, his companions having left that duty for him to perform. No doubt the treacherous guardsman was lying calmly on his back, bound and gagged, welcoming unconsciousness with a smile of security.

As soon as Lorry gained his bearings fully he prepared to fell the wretch who was to stand watch. Anguish heard his friend's figure suddenly shoot to an erect position. There was a whirring sound as of disturbed air and then a dull thud. Something rolled over on the ground, and all was still. He was at Lorry's side in an instant.

"I hope I haven't killed him!" whispered Lorry. "Quick! Here is his bottle of ether. Hold it beneath his nose. I am going to pile the body of this guard crosswise on top of him. He will not be able to arise if he should recover consciousness."

All this was done in a moment's time, and the two trackers were headed for the entrance. The gate was ajar two or three feet. With turbulent hearts they stole through.

"Keep along the wall," whispered Lorry, "and trust to luck. The castle is to the left."

Without hesitation they crept over the noiseless grass close beside the wall. Directly they heard sounds near at hand. The abductors were binding and chloroforming the guard at the arbor. After waiting for some moments they heard the party glide away in the darkness and followed. The body of the guard was lying just outside the mouth of the arbor, and the odor of chloroform was almost overpowering. Once inside the long arbor, the Americans moved slowly and with greater caution. There was a dim light in a basement window ahead. Toward the front of the castle and in the second story a faint glow came from another window. They guessed it to be from the princess' room or from that of the countess.

At last they saw four figures steal past the dim basement light. One of them halted near the window and three crept away in the darkness. Presently one of them returned, and all activity was at an end for the time being. How near it was to 2 o'clock the watchers could not tell. They only knew that they were within twenty-five feet of Geddos and Ostrom and that they would not have long to wait.

Soon a bright little blaze of light crossed the basement opening. Then it returned, crossing a second time and a third. All was still again. The soft shuffle of a foot, the rustle of arbor vines, and the form of a man crawled up to the window. With inconceivable stealth and carefulness it glided through the aperture, followed by a companion.

Lorry and Anguish were at the opening a second or two later, lying flat on their stomachs and listening for sounds from within. The dim light was still there, the window was open and there was a sound of whispering. Lorry raised his head and peered through, taking calculations while the light made it possible. He saw an open door on the opposite side of the low room, with steps beyond leading upward. Between the window and the door there were no obstacles. Up those steps he saw three men creep, the leader carrying the dim light. The door was left open, doubtless to afford unimpeded exit from the building in case of emergency. Harry Anguish touched Lorry's arm.

"I took the two pistols from that Vienna man out there. We may need them. Here is one for yourself. Go first, Lorry," he whispered.

Lorry stuck the revolver in his coat pocket and gently slid through the window to the floor below. His friend followed, and they paused to listen. Taking Anguish by the hand the other led the way straight to the spot where he remembered seeing the door.

"A sound and you die!" he hissed.

Boldly the two men began the breathless ascent of the stone steps. The top was reached, and far ahead, down a narrow hall, they saw the three men and the dim light moving. Two of them wore uniforms of guards. Keeping close to the wall, their followers crept after them. Up another flight of steps they went and then through a spacious hall. The Americans had no time and no desire to inspect their surroundings. The wide doors at the far side of the room opened softly, and here the trio paused. Down a great marble hallway a dim red light shed its soft glow. It came from the lamp at the foot of the broad staircase.

The cook pointed to the steps and then gave his thumb a jerk toward the left. Without the least sign of fear Geddos and Ostrom glided into the hall and made for the staircase. The watchers could not but feel a thrill of admiration for these daring wretches. But now a new danger confronted them. The cook remained standing in the doorway watching his fellows in crime! How were they to pass him?

There was no time to be lost. The abductors were creeping up the steps already, and the cook must be disposed of. He had blown out the light which he carried and was now a very dim shadow. Lorry glided forward and in an instant stood before the amazed fellow, jamming a pistol into his face.

"A sound and you die!" he hissed.

"Don't move!" came another whisper, and a second revolver touched his ear. The cook, perhaps, did not know their language, but he certainly understood its meaning. He trembled and would have fallen to the floor had not the strong hand of Lorry pinned him to the wall. The hand was on his throat too.

"Chloroform him, Harry, and don't let him make a sound!" whispered the owner of the hand. Anguish's twitching fingers succeeded those of his friend on the cook's throat, his pistol was returned to his pocket, and the little bottle came again into use.

"I'll go ahead. Follow me as soon as you have finished this fellow. Be careful and turn to the left when you come to the top."

Lorry was off across the marble floor, headed for the stairway, and Anguish was left in charge of the cook, of whom he was to make short work. Now came the desperate, uncertain part of the transaction. Suppose he were to meet the two conspirators at the head of the stairs, or in the hall, or that the other traitor, Dannox, should appear to frustrate all. It was the most trying moment in the whole life of the reckless Lorry.

When near the top of the steps, he hugged the high balustrade and cautiously peered ahead. He found himself looking down a long hall, at the far end of which, to his right, a dim light was burning. There was no sound and there was no sign of the two men either to the right or to the left. His heart felt like lead. They evidently had entered the princess' room. How was he to find that room? Slowly he wriggled across the broad, dark hall, straightening up in the shadow of a great post. From this point he edged along the wall for a distance of ten or twelve feet to the left. A sound came from farther down the hall, and he imagined he heard some one approaching.

His hand came in contact with a heavy hanging or tapestry, and he quickly squirmed behind its folds, finding himself against a door which moved as his body touched it. He felt it swing open slightly and drew back, intending to return to the hall, uncertain and very much undecided as to the course to pursue. His revolver was in his hand. Just as he was about to pull aside the curtain a man glided past, quickly followed by another. Providence had kept him from running squarely into them. They were going toward the left, and he realized that they were now approaching the princess' room. How he came to be ahead of them he could not imagine. Again he felt the door move slightly as he pressed against it. The necessity for a partial recovery of his composure before the next and most important step impelled him softly to enter the room for an instant's breath.

Holding to the door, he stood inside and drew himself to his full height, taking a long and tremulous breath. There was no light in the room, but through the door crack to his left came a dim, broad streak. He now knew where he was. This room was next to that in which the princess slept, for had he not seen the light from her window? Perhaps he was now in the room of the Countess Dagmar. Next door! Next door! Even now the daring Geddos and Ostrom were crawling toward the bed of the ruler of Graustark, not twenty feet away. His first impulse was to cross and open the door leading to the next room, surmising that it would be unlocked, but he remembered Anguish, who was doubtless, by this time, stealing up the stairs. They must not be separated, for it would require two steady, cool heads to deal with the villains. It was not one man's work. As he turned to leave the room he thought how wonderfully well they had succeeded in the delicate enterprise so far.

His knees struck the door, and there was a dull thump, not loud in reality, but like the report of a gun to him. A sudden rustle in the darkness of the room, and then a sleepy voice, soft and quick, as of a woman awakening with a start:

"Who is it?"

His heart ceased beating, his body grew stiff and immovable. Again the voice, a touch of alarm in it now:

"Is that you, Dannox?"

She spoke in German, and the voice came from somewhere in front and to his right. He could not answer, could not move. The paralysis of indecision was upon him.

"How is it that the outer door is open?"

This time there was something like a reprimand in the tones, still low. He almost could see the wide open, searching eyes.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature and of Matters About Town.

A Son Born — A son was born last evening to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coleman, of Lisbon street.

Turtle Hunters—John Coons and John Mitchell returned yesterday from Inverness, where they engaged in a mammoth turtle hunt. They brought home half a dozen turtles, aggregating 80 pounds in weight.

Outing of German Singers — Members of the Gesangverein-Leiderkranz, to the number of 30, will go to Wheeling tomorrow to participate in the meeting of the German singing societies of this section. An outing for the visitors has been planned at Mozart park by the Wheeling societies.

Not Mrs. Lytle—For fear there may have been some misunderstanding in regard to the matter, Mrs. Minnie Lytle, of Steubenville, desires the News Review to say that the Miss Minnie Lytle, who was involved in a saloon row there recently was not in any way connected with the Steubenville lady.

Mayor Set Him Free—Tommy Ward was the only victim to fall in to the hands of the police last night, and he was so drunk he scarcely realized what was transpiring until this morning. When he faced the mayor he begged so pitifully to be allowed to go and made promises of so binding a nature that Mayor Weaver discharged him.

City Mission Meeting—The executive committee for the city mission movement will meet in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. next Friday afternoon. Every church in the city will be invited to have representatives at the meeting and an announcement will be made from local pulpits tomorrow. Orchestra Director — Arrangements have been completed whereby Prof. Albert Hatch, the well known musician of this city, will have charge and direct the Grand Opera House orchestra during the coming season. Prof. Hatch has been very successful in former years, and on this occasion has made a good move in the selection of a leader. Prof. William J. Steinhauser, a violinist of note, has been engaged and will add strength to the already excellent musical organization. Prof. Steinhauser is a native of Elmira, N. RAILROAD COMMITTEE MET SERVICE BOARD

The Demands of the Railroad Company Remain Practically Unchanged.

The railroad committee of city council, Messrs. Barlow, Bullock and Cannon, held a conference with the service board after the regular session of that body last evening, to discuss the questions involved in the proposed improvements of the C. & P. railroad through this city. The members of the committee, two of whom served in the old council, were thoroughly posted on the situation and the session with the service board was not a lengthy one. It has been announced that a partial agreement was made but that a report will not be prepared until the next meeting of council.

The terms of the settlement will remain practically the same as announced a few days ago, after a meeting of the service board. Objection has been made to the phraseology of the compact, which has been prepared by attorneys for the railroad company, and the document will be submitted to the city solicitor before it is finally acted upon.

The session of the service board was taken up for the most part with the disposal of numerous bills all of which, except that of the Ceramic City Light company, were ordered paid. This bill will be investigated because of a difference in the police reports of the hours certain lights burned and the claim of the company.

Part of the employes of the water works department and some of the street men must wait until next week for their money, as the appropriation made by council has been exhausted. There is plenty of money in the water works fund and another appropriation will be made by council.

Judge Will Be Arbitrator.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 8.—Judge George Gray, who has consented to act as an arbitrator to settle the differences existing between the coal miners and operators in Alabama, left for the south to assume his duties.

Modern Sun Worshipers.

In Europe several persons now sedulously pay homage to the sun, and in a learned journal, entitled L'Ecole Nouvelle, one of them maintains that the sun should be especially honored at Christmas.

"Christmas should be regarded as a festival for the benefit of humanity," he says. "In this way we can once more become united with the Aryans, our ancestors, who worshiped fire and who celebrated the birth of the divine constellation, who is the father of light, of heat and of life."

He then suggests that the following prayer be said daily:

"O thou who causest lies to vanish, who drivest away the evil influence of prodigies, of malignant predictions, of dreams and of wicked apparitions—O thou who bringest to naught the plots of the wicked, to thee we pray, Lord Sun, since thou art the light of the world."

An Orchid Tragedy.

Perhaps Madagascar has claimed more orchid hunters' lives and been the scene of more revolting acts of cruelty than any other place. Some years ago a German orchid fancier, while seeking some specimens in the forests of this island, was captured by some of the native priests, who, after covering him with oil, burned him alive. Another collector who was seized by some of the same priests was allowed to choose between being burned alive or himself setting fire to some fagots on which lay another prisoner, also an orchid collector, and thus saving his own life. He chose the latter alternative and died six months later a lunatic.

Antiquity of Wrestling.

Probably the first authentic record of a wrestling match is in A. D. 1222, when chivalry on the European continent was undergoing a change for the better. During the reign of Henry III. of England a match took place in St. Giles' field, London, between citizens of Westminster and the city of London proper. Wrestling was, however, popular as a pastime in England at a much earlier period, and from that country many of the different styles originated.

He recommends outside closets until permanent improvements can be made. Common sense, instead of the letter of the law, should guide the board in establishing reasonable sanitary condition. He asks prompt action in abating the nuisance in front of his property.

Bills aggregating $142.60 were ordered paid, and an account presented from the Sanitary Reduction company was turned down. The bill was for $300, and was charged for three months' service of the garbage furnace. The clerk was instructed to inform the company that the board would refuse to honor the bill.

The sanitary policeman reported that to the present John Cain and John Q. A. Fowler had failed to abate nuisances after being notified to do so. The officer was instructed to consult the city solicitor, and proceed against the parties.

The drainage on St. George street in the East End was said to be in bad shape. The condition of the street could not be charged up to the property owners, as the thoroughfares had not been properly laid out, and upon the occasion of every freshet the water accumulated and laid about in pools. The clerk was instructed to communicate with the service board with a view of changing the construction of the gutters.

The condition of Alex Chafin's addition in the East End was reported intolerable, and it was asked that numerous nuisances be ordered abated at once. The sanitary policeman will take the same action under the direction of the city solicitor as has been specified before.

The report of the health officer showed that during the month of July the number of births was: Males, 16; females, 27. Deaths—males, 3; females, 8. Three cases of scarlet fever were reported during the month, none of which proved fatal; also three cases of chicken pox.

20TH YEAR. NO. 186. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., SATURDAY, AUGUST 8, 1903. TWO CENTS.

THE AMERICAN OF THE FUTURE

May Be Radically Different on Account of Immigration.

PERCENTAGE OF ALIENS

Not As Great Now As Formerly, on Account of Increased Population. The New Arrivals, Their Nature and Nativity—A Fusion of Races.

One out of every 95 persons in the United States today came from foreign lands within a year, to stay here indefinitely and make this country his home, at least for the present. In the fiscal year ending with June 30, 1882, one immigrant came for every 67 residents. The number of home-seekers then was less by about 68,000 than it was in the last 12 months, but 21 years ago the population of the United States was not within 30,000,000 of the present total.

It is well to consider the wonderful immigration record of the last fiscal year with this fact clearly fixed in mind. It shows that although all earlier figures were surpassed decisively the addition to the great multitude of Americans, native-born or naturalized and amalgamated, was relative smaller than it had been in several other years when the country was much less thoroughly developed and not nearly so well occupied. As far back as 1850 one immigrant came to the United States for every 60 people then in the country, and the immigration of the fiscal year just ended was smaller, in proportion to the population, than the inflow of foreigners in any one of 10 equal periods, most of them half a century back in the history of the great republic.

Hence no one need fear that the coming of more than 857,000 foreigners hoping to establish themselves in American homes will disrupt or revolutionize the character of the American people or their institutions. The American nation might absorb and assimilate 1,250,000 immigrants in a single year with less strain and risk than the coming of 375,000 annually implied in the early fifties of the nineteenth century. But that immigration of half a century ago was a grave problem. There is a world of power and vital influence in the immigration of the last fiscal year, but it is relative as one to one hundred or more. The overwhelming mass of the population remains very American.

But from any point of view the coming of nearly a million natives of many lands to make their homes in the United States is an event of the highest interest. It is far more important than almost any other news of the day. It means tremendous national growth and a good deal of national change, not suddenly and violently, but in blood and temperament and in the varied characteristics of the American people. The fact that the immigration of the last fiscal year was about 68,000 in excess of any previous record for an equal period and more than 210,000 above the figures for the preceding year, is also proof of the most convincing kind that the country has been very prosperous, not only for the rich few, but for the multitudes who live by the toil of their hands.

No other land compares well with the United States as a magnet for home-seekers. Canada and the Argentine Republic, Australia and Brazil, have more unoccupied and reasonably fertile soil, but not one of these countries of small population and large natural resources draws from the crowded hives of toil and poverty in the Old World as America does. The great republic is the greatest hope of the oppressed and the unfortunate of Europe, just as it has been for many generations. This is one of the risks and burdens entailed by American prosperity, and so far congress has considered it best to face the chances of inflowing life, however great.

The parts of Europe which have been feeling the attraction of America most strongly in the last year are not the nations from which most of the home-seekers of 20 years ago started in their search of happiness and fortune. Then Germany, the British Isles and the Scandinavian Peninsula were the chief sources of emigration to the United States. In the last fiscal year the Italians came 230,000 strong, and the Austro-Hungarian empire sent more than 206,000 of its people. About 136,000 left the dominions of the czar. Here are 572,000 immigrants out of a total of 857,000, leaving only 285,000 for the rest of the world, and Asia contributed 30,000 to the total.

These facts mean much. They show a strong movement toward changing the American people from a nation almost wholly of North European origin to one which may be quite a complete fusion of the principal races and nationalities of Europe. The countries of the watershed of the Mediterranean and the Black Sea are furnishing a great share of the immigrants now, and the vast majority come from lands east and south of the states which were the early builders of the white man's America. The Latins and the Slavs are going to play an important part in making the American republic of the future what it is destined to be.

This means a warmer temperament, more love of color and gayety, more passion, and more inclination toward art and music. It tends to strengthen the Catholic church beyond all other religious bodies. Not less than 550,000 immigrants of the last 12 months seem to have been adherents of the Roman Catholic church. About 160,000 were Protestants. The rest were Jews Greek Catholics, Buddhists and believers in various otner religions.

The Latins and the Slavs will apparently lower the average stature of the American people a little, but they will not lessen its weight or strength. They will tend to increase the proportion of dark-haired Americans, and they will probably make the patriotism of the future American nation even more passionate and intense than that of the earlier America. There is great capacity for fervid feeling in the races which are pouring into the ports of the United States in these prosperous times.

Altogether, the future America may be all the more interesting, varied, many-sided and imposing for the vast river of new blood and novel customs and ideas flowing into the country which is destined to remain for ages the chief hope of human progress, the pride of lovers of freedom, the magnet drawing to its ports the troubled and the ambitious of less favored lands. But the change must not be too rapid. It is time to think of floodgates to check the tide.

THOUSANDS WILL GO FROM BUCKEYE STATE

Ohio G. A. R. Will Be Strongly Represented at San Francisco Encampment.

Salem, August 8. — Commander Yengling says about 3,000 Ohio people will attend the national encampment at San Francisco, and that 400 or more will go on the special train which leaves this city Tuesday morning.

The department of Ohio will take up their headquarters in San Francisco at the Palace hotel, which has already been decorated at the expense of the department. Ohio will be entitled to 35 delegates at the encampment from each of the 35 districts and one delegate at large from the department commander and his staff who are delegates by virtue of their office. Commander Yengling has appointed about 3,000 aides who expect to attend. Memorial post No. 41, of Cleveland, will be the commander's escort during the encampment. They will lead the Ohio delegation in the parade, which will be one of the principal attractions to the public. The department banner will be taken and will be used in decorating the state headquarters.

Ohio has no aspirants to national honors and the delegates go uninstructed. D. S. Wilder, of Columbus, will be the delegate at large. Ohio has 599 posts and 27,200 members.

The W. R. C. special will leave Lima Tuesday morning and will join the G. A. R. special at Colorado Springs, Col. It is under command of J. Corey Winans, of Troy, O. Sarah D. Winans, of Toledo, is a candidate for national president.

Circling the Globe in Record Time.

Seattle, Aug. 8.—According to a cable J. W. Sayer, who is traveling around the world for the Seattle Times in an effort to break the best previous record, sailed from Germany on the steamer Campania and will reach Seattle in just 55 days after he left. If he makes it in this time he will have broken the world's record of 60 days, 16½ hours, made by Charles C. Fitzmorris, before the completion of the trans-Siberian railway.

Strikers Rioting in Russia.

Kieff, Russia, Aug. 8.—The disturbances were again renewed, the strikers parading the town, breaking windows, invading workshops and compelling workmen to join them. The Cossacks fired upon a crowd on the bank of the Dnieper after they had been assailed by a shower of stones. Several were wounded. The tramways have suspended and bakeries are closed. The price of bread is rising.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me. MRS. J. W. COOLBAUGH, Milo Center, N. Y.

ARMY CAREER CLOSED

Lieutenant General Miles Retires from Active Service Today.

GEN. YOUNG TO ASSUME DUTIES

Parting Words from Retiring Commander—The Army in the Past and Its Welfare in the Future—Glorious Example Set by Washington.

Washington, Aug. 8.—Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, commanding the army, will retire from active service at noon, having reached the age limit of 64 years.

Orders have been issued assigning Lieutenant General Young to the command of the army until Aug. 15, when he will assume the duties of chief of staff; assigning Major General Corbin as president of the board of ordnance and fortification, and assigning Lieutenant General Young as a member of the Sherman statute commission.

Miles' Parting Words.

In relinquishing the command of the army of the United States to which he was assigned by the president, Oct. 2, 1895, he hereby acknowledges his appreciation of the fidelity manifested by the officers and soldiers during the past eventful years.

To those who were his companions and associates during one of the greatest of all wars he takes pleasure in expressing his gratification that they have lived through the trials and dangers of long service to witness the results of their fortitude, heroism and unselfish devotion to the welfare of their country. They have also in a most commendable manner exemplified to the younger generation of soldiers those principles of discipline and patriotism which make the army the protector and defender, and never the menace, of the nation and its liberties.

Perfect Soldier a True Citizen.

Unswerving devotion to our government and the principles upon which it was established and has been maintained is essential to the efficiency of the national forces, and especially is this so in a democratic government where the individual, in order to be a perfect soldier, must first be a true citizen. The boast that every soldier of a great nation carried a marshal's baton in his knapsack is in a higher sense more than equaled in significance by the fact that every American soldier personifies sovereign citizenship and may by his own conduct exemplify impartial justice to those who have never experienced it and the results of the highest liberty to those who have been strangers to it.

During the darkest hour of our history the first commander of the American forces demonstrated the grandeur and nobility of his character by combating the evil influences then pervading the army and by manifesting the strongest confidence and faith in the ultimate justice and integrity of his government. His words of wisdom uttered at Newburg 120 years ago had the effect of inspiring "unexampled patriotism and patient virtue, rising superior to the pressure of the most complicated sufferings." It is one of the glories of our country that the army has maintained those principles for more than a century.

Host of Enemies Encountered.

In the discharge of its manifold duties the army has confronted enemies representing every stage of human development from the highest civilization yet obtained to savagery and barbarism. It has ever been its duty to observe in war those chivalric and human principles by which inevitable horrors are so greatly mitigated, while by unyielding prosecution of warfare against armed forces its valor has been demonstrated.

All honorable activity and life for the army must exist within the well-defined lines of patriotism, untarnished honor, sterling integrity, impartial justice, obedience to rightful authority and incessant warfare against armed enemies. Always to maintain truth, honor and justice requires the highest moral courage, and is equally as important as fortitude in battle. Drill, discipline and instruction are but preparatory for the perfection and efficiency of the army.

Must Exemplify Country's Principles.

The events of recent years have placed upon the army a new obligation. The United States army is now brought into daily communication with millions of people to whom its individual members of every grade are the exponents of American civilization. A serious duty and a great honor are now presented to every officer and soldier—namely, to exemplify to those with whom he comes into contact our country's principles of equal and exact justice, immunity from violence, equality before the law and the peaceful use and possession of his own.

Marked changes at different times have occurred in strength and organization of the army, resulting from diverse influences, and various experiments have been tried. Time has rectified errors in the past and will do so in the future. The lieutenant general has faith that under all circumstances the army will maintain its high character and that its future will be as honorable and glorious as has been its history in the past. His earnest solicitude and best wishes will ever follow the fortunes of the army.

In the World of Baseball

Rapid Thinkers Make the Best Ball Players. Story of an Unassisted Double Play That Surprised the Cincinnatis ⁘ Doyle and McCarthy.

Quick wit counts in baseball as much as in any other sport. The man who can take in the whole situation at a glance and at the same instant suit his actions to his thought will win games where an equally good player who does not think will lose them.

Here is an instance which stands alone in all the annals of baseball—with a single exception:

In the days when the Cincinnati Reds were at the top of the heap they went to Wilmington, O., to play an exhibition game. The Wilmington team was made up entirely of amateur players. The Wilmington pitcher was a young chap named David Reese and the Wilmington second base man was a college boy named Lynne Smith. It was young Smith who turned out to be the hero of one of the most sensational plays ever made in the national game.

The Reds went to the little town in the full flush of success, determined to have a lot of sport with the local players. The Reds won the toss and went to bat. Young Reese, the Wilmington pitcher, was a first class amateur, but naturally he was badly rattled at the idea of facing the best team in the National league, and for the first few minutes his work was poor.

The first two of the Reds who went to bat hit base hits. The third man got a base on balls, and everybody on the Cincinnati nine began to grin broadly at the fun ahead. All the bases were full, and there was nobody out. It was a huge snap—a regular picnic.

PITCHER WICKER, A STAR OF THE CHICAGO NATIONALS.

Then old Bug Holiday, the fourth man on the batting list of the Reds, picked up his club and sauntered up to the plate, blood in his eye. The first ball young Reese pitched Bug struck at. What is more, he hit it and sent the ball flying straight out over second base—a hit that under most circumstances would have been good for a couple of bases.

The minute the ball left Bug's bat all three of the men on bases started at the top of their speed for the next base. But they figured without their host.

Young Lynne Smith, second base man for Wilmington, was equal to the emergency. He jumped straight up into the air and made a desperate lunge at the ball with his right hand. The ball stuck, and when he came down Smith lit with both feet fairly on the second bag. That put two men out—the batter and the base runner who had just started for third.

But young Smith was not yet satisfied. Without the hesitation of a moment—which would have been fatal—he started on the dead run for first base, and, unassisted, caught and touched out the base runner who had started from first to second when Bug made his hit. So, all alone and without assistance of any kind, young Smith made a record which is unique among ball players.

The triple play seemed to take all the starch out of the Reds. It also had the effect of steadying down the Wilmington team and giving them sufficient nerve and courage to play to the best of their ability.

Reese, the scrub pitcher, struck out a lot of the Reds' best batters, and at the end of the game the famous players from Cincinnati had to go home with a score of 4 to 2 against them.

It is, of course, easy to say that young Smith's wonderful catch was only a fluke. Perhaps it was. Admitting that, and admitting further that his coming down squarely on second base with both feet was a piece of good luck, it must still be admitted that it took quick and cool thinking to lead him, the minute he struck the ground, to start after the runner from first, instead of throwing the ball to home, which nine out of ten players would have been certain to do.

Here is the story of a bit of quick baseball thinking which resulted in turning Jack Doyle of the old New York team and now with Brooklyn against his best friend, Tom McCarthy, perhaps the surest thrower and one of the quickest fielders who ever played in the National league:

Boston and New York were playing in the latter city and Doyle was at bat for New York. New York had men on first and second. Tom Brown was the base runner on second, and he was famous as one of the fastest and most daring runners in the game. Tom McCarthy was out in the left garden for Boston.

Doyle lined out a sharp grounder into left field. McCarthy ran up on it, scooped it with one hand and without stopping to look or even to gather himself together sent the ball sailing in to first base.

Ninety-nine fielders out of a hundred would have thrown the ball home in order to cut off the runner, particularly when a fast man like Tom Brown had been on second when the ball was hit. Doyle naturally figured that McCarthy would follow the rule, as he overran first thirty feet on his way to second and was caught far off the base when he tried to get back. Brown meanwhile had stopped after overrunning third in fear of the natural throw home, and no run was scored. The next man to bat flew out, and the game was over, with Boston a winner by one run.

As McCarthy came in from field Doyle met him and in something of a huff asked why on earth McCarthy had thrown to first instead of putting the ball home, which would have been the proper thing to do.

"Just because I knew that everybody would think that was the proper thing to do," answered McCarthy. "Tom Brown, I knew, was well aware that I am a good thrower, and he would stop after turning third to see if I was socking it home, and you, I figured out, would run past first with the idea of getting to second while the ball was on its way to the plate. I won by doing just exactly what nobody expected me to do."

But Doyle declared that McCarthy had taken an unfair advantage of him, and the relations between the two never got back to the old friendly footing.

One of the features of the baseball season has been the effective twirling of Pitcher Wicker of the Chicago Nationals. President Hart's men have been playing a good game, and were enabled to take the lead in the pennant race early in the season owing to the snappy work of their infield and the able performances of their slab artists. Wicker is cool and heady, and is one of the comparatively young men of the game. He has defeated Brooklyn and other heavy hitting aggregations, and will bear watching. A wicked out drop is his mainstay.

Race Horses In Indiana.

There are fifty horses in training at the Frankfort (Ind.) track. The management has spent nearly $2,000 on the track and now has one of the best in the middle west. The same amount has been expended on the Logansport track, and forty horses are taking their work there. Both places are in the Gas Belt circuit.

The following description of Ruskin at home is from the life of the great apostle of beauty by Frederic Harrison in the English Men of Letters Series:

Not only was he in social intercourse one of the most courteous and sweetest of friends, but he was in manner one of the most fascinating and impressive beings whom I ever met. I have talked with Carlyle and Tennyson, with Victor Hugo and Mazzini, with Garibaldi and Gambetta, with John Bright and Robert Browning, but no one of these ever impressed me more vividly with a sense of intense personality, with the inexplicable light of genius that seemed to well up spontaneously from heart and brain. It remains a psychological puzzle how one who could write with passion and scorn such as Carlyle and Byron never reached, who in print was so often Athenasius contra mundum, who opened every written assertion with "I know," was in private life one of the gentlest, gayest, humblest of men.

How a Rat Stole Bulbs.

M. de Parville, a well known French naturalist, told a remarkable story about a rat in the Journal des Debats. A gardener planted one afternoon 250 tulip bulbs on a terrace, and next morning he noticed that the ground had been disturbed and that they had all been taken away. He was confident that rats had done the work, and, taking a spade, he began to dig in the hope of discovering their nest. Soon he unearthed a large female rat, which he killed, and after digging a few more minutes he discovered an underground chamber lined with hay and leaves and connected by a corridor with two holes, which were evidently used as storehouses, for in them he found the 250 tulip bulbs. This was remarkable, but more remarkable was the fact that they were neatly arranged in two rows and that not one of them had been gnawed or otherwise injured.

REAL ENJOYMENT.

The woman who reads this will understand to the full what Mrs. Tipton meant when she says: "I am enjoying good health." It takes a person who has been made wretched by sickness to understand the joy of health.

There are very many women who suffer as did Mrs. Tipton, who might be cured as she was by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

"It is with pleasure I recommend Dr. Pierce's medicine," writes Mrs. Nora Tipton, of Cropper (Cropper Station), Shelby Co., Kentucky. "You remember my case was one of female weakness and weak lungs. I had no appetite and would often spit blood. was confined to my bed almost half of the time and could hardly stand on my feet at times for the pains through my whole body and system. My husband had to pay large doctor bills for me but since I have taken four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, four of 'Favorite Prescription' and three vials of 'Pleasant Pellets' we haven't paid any more doctor bills. It had been seven months since I stopped using Dr. Pierce's medicines and I have been enjoying good health all the time. I can never praise these medicines too highly, for I have received so much benefit. I pray that many who suffer as I did will take Dr. Pierce's medicines. I am sure they will never fail to cure when given a fair trial. Everybody tells me I look better than they ever saw me. I am sure I feel better than I ever did before."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a ladies' laxative. No other medicine equals them for gentleness and thoroughness.

The Ethics of Fiction

By ANNE FITZHUGH MACLEAN

IV.—The Clergyman of Romance.

BETWEEN literature and the church there is a mutual debt. The fact that the balance of obligation is on the side of the church does not make its portion of the debt less real, for despite much holding up of clergymen and their flocks to ridicule—indeed, partly through that very means—novelists have shown a zeal for the welfare of the church, even, as is but too often the case, when they are not themselves inside the fold.

The artistic mind—that is, the mind of every writer born for his work—has a natural disinclination toward form and convention. It is frequently deeply devotional without recognizing the necessity for the institutions of religion. At the same time the artistic mind should by its very nature see more clearly than others into the heart of vital truth; consequently, if from one point of view the novelist is in danger of undervaluing the religious life, he should from another and a higher view be able to value it with peculiar justness.

The church fills an immense place in fiction. So deep rooted and widespread is its use that a body of fiction without the ecclesiastical element is hard to imagine. The dramatic possibilities of the priesthood, with its monasticism, its obedience, its inviolate confession, have been developed in every conceivable direction.

To the unspeakable corruption attributed to this clergy in mediæval Italian romance, to the cunning and merciless fanaticism charged against it by Eugene Sue and his like, has succeeded a conception of a priesthood true to its vows of chastity, obedience and poverty and exceeding its vows in voluntary self renunciation. Fiction, as has often been said, exaggerates what it deals with, as a statue must be exaggerated to appear of normal size. We do not believe that all priests are unselfish, heroic and pure because they are thus represented today any more than we believe that all were degraded or cruelly fanatic because we find them so described in the fiction of certain periods. But it cannot be doubted that the change in novelists' conception of the priesthood indicates a similar change in the standard of life and character of the priesthood as a whole.

Charlotte Bronte.
[Whose ineffectual, undersized curates gave her fame.]

As the Romish clergy have contributed to the dramatic needs of fiction so have the English clergy been interwoven with the social and domestic life of English stories, and as the priest was once portrayed as a jolly libertine or a cunning bigot so there was an accepted idea of the Anglican cleric.

No hypocrite he, but an open worldling, free in the use of wine and strong language, fond of his ease and of fox hunting and acquit of his ministerial duties when he had raced through two brief Sunday services and done all the baptizing, marrying and burying that was thrust upon him. The really contemptible variety of him was the domestic chaplain, who groveled at the feet of the great and was thankful to retain his seat at the nobleman's table at whatever cost of self abasement. When dissent was ripe for the novelist, the dissenting parson was eagerly seized upon as an opportunity for a new type.

These three types have been gradually replaced by very different characterizations, but one unfortunate order remains still an object of derision—the curates. How long will they continue to furnish story tellers with ineffectual, undersized young men who fall hopelessly in love with the highborn beauty of the parish and provide a foil for the tall and virile hero? Through them Charlotte Bronte attained the summit of her fame, and, hard as it is upon the curates, it must be admitted that her portraits were not imaginary. Doubtless, however, she saw the originals as she saw most things, with a passionate intensity that enlarged the characteristic upon which her vision fixed and minimized its modifying features. Bishops have been favored almost as much as curates have been derided, which is hopeful for the lesser order, as are not all curates potential bishops?

There is a goodly company of ideal bishops in fiction of whom the dear and adorable bishop in "Les Miserables" is chief and best. Among living writers Hall Caine has given us in "The Deemster" a notable prelate, though the heartbreaking pathos of his story makes it too painful to read with enjoyment. A less sane and admirable creation is the young minister, Ewan, in the same story, a cleric of a morbid type fast passing out of fiction. Anthony Trollope's parsons are so numerous and so varied in their motives and characters that they form a little world in themselves. Of them he says: "I trust that I shall not be thought to scoff at the pulpit, though some may imagine that I do not feel all the respect that is due to the cloth. I may question the infallibility of the teachers, but I hope that I shall not therefore be accused of doubt as to the thing taught."

This, too, was Thackeray's standpoint. His veneration for the thing taught made him hard upon insincerity in the teachers, and, as Trollope says of him, he was not cynical, but only necessarily severe in "Clerical Snobs" and in his bold delineation of "the Rev. Bute Crawley, the horse racing rector, and others. When this is done with sympathy, as is pre-eminently the case with George Eliot, when there is discrimination between vice and mere human weakness, it is undoubtedly for the good, not for the injury, of institutional religion. Thackeray himself says, though the words may be slightly different, "God forbid that any words of mine should do harm to the church!"

George Eliot had a calmer, wider vision than Charlotte Bronte and a deeper vision than Thackeray and Trollope. She saw in the ministry all manner of men and bore noble testimony to much that she saw in such delineations as Mr. Irwine in "Adam Bede," Mr. Tryan in "Janet's Repentance" and Mr. Lyon in "Felix Holt." She has given us the holder of the sacred office as rabbi, Romish priest, English clergyman, Methodist sister and independent parson and always with a marvelous, impartial insight. Whose heart has not ached with the commonplace heart of the Rev. Amos Barton, with his ill adjusted family and income, "a man whose nature it was not to be superlative in anything unless indeed he was superlatively middling, the quintessential extract of mediocrity," and ached yet more with his exquisitely drawn wife in the dreary realism of her sorrows?

Then there is Dinah, a sort of prophetic apotheosis of the Salvation Army girl. Very different in its delightful and kindly humor is the contrasting, in "Felix Holt," of the two ministerial types, the independent parson and the two English churchmen, rector and curate. In connection with her skill George Eliot's modesty is interesting when she says in apology for the imperfections of her clerical personages: "My strongest effort is to avoid any arbitrary picture and to give a faithful account of men and things as they have mirrored themselves in my mind. The mirror is doubtless defective, the outlines will sometimes be disturbed, the reflection faint or confused, but I feel as much bound to tell you as precisely as I can what that reflection is as if I were in the witness box narrating my experience on oath."

In American letters the preacher has long been a popular figure, but "The Scarlet Letter" is still the most powerful and successful study of the mind of a man in holy office. It is a unique conception, not to be easily classified.

The late popular ministerial hero, John Storm, Dean Maitland, the several finely drawn priests in "Helbeck of Bannisdale" and "Eleanor," the distinct individualities of the Scotch pastors for whom we are indebted to Barrie, Ian Maclaren and many others—all indicate an increase in public respect for the holy calling and a demand for consistent living on the part of those who profess to teach the truth. Today the unworthy clergyman is the exception, and his unworthiness is not proclaimed as implying the unworthiness of the church he represents.

The actively bad priest or parson had in fiction a successor who, though less pestilential, could have been scarcely more effectual in aiding the cause of practical religion. With effeminacy as his chief characteristic, it was he who gave foundation to the description of the clergy as "the third sex." To him in turn succeeded the honest doubter, whose doubt itself was a relief after the timid, unhealthy, thin blooded piety of his predecessors.

A few years ago there was no theme more popular than this—the clergyman who questioned his own teachings. "Robert Elsmere" was but the strongest of a multitude of books with kindred motive. Latterly the young clergyman has settled his doubts or left the pulpit with them.

The time has indeed passed when the clergy could be spoken of with applause as "the third sex." Today two types predominate. One is the representative of "muscular Christianity," the red blooded "man among men," who bases his life upon the doctrine that he is a man and nothing that pertains to men is indifferent to him. He takes a hand in public affairs if need arises, he can use his fists to good purpose, and his aspiration is to be an exemplar of religion in practical working.

The piety of the other popular type is less robust in appearance, but not in fact. He endures privation that he may have to give to them that need, and while leading the life of an ascetic he does for his people the work of two men. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps gives us a fine embodiment of this conception in "A Singular Life."

In books the ascetic clergyman generally dies of some wasting disease, and I doubt not in life also of innutrition, for no man can keep his bodily machine at high pressure and deny the furnace necessary fuel.

Margaret Deland's clergymen are endowed with her favorite virtue—common sense—and are so natural and human that we all recognize them among our own ministerial acquaintances. There are some such comfortable counselors in life as her Dr. Lavendar. Would there were more!

Mrs. Emmons, saved from an operation for Ovaritis, tells how she was cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I am so pleased with the results I obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I feel it a duty and a privilege to write you about it.

"I suffered for over five years with ovarian troubles, causing an unpleasant discharge, a great weakness, and at times a faintness would come over me which no amount of medicine, diet, or exercise seemed to correct. Your Vegetable Compound found the weak spot, however, within a few weeks—and saved me from an operation—all my troubles had disappeared, and I found myself once more healthy and well. Words fail to describe the real, true grateful feeling that is in my heart, and I want to tell every sick and suffering sister. Don't dally with medicines you know nothing about, but take Lydia E. Go Prepared.

In preparing for your summer outing a little forethought may save you no end of trouble. Mr. John H. Manly, a dry goods merchant, of Bellville, R. I., while packing an outfit for camping a few weeks on Narragansett Bay, put in a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for emergency use. The second day in camp his little boy was taken with cramp colic. The first dose of this remedy gave relief and the second dose effected a cure. Think of the pain and suffering this boy would have had to endure without this remedy at hand to relieve him. Such cases often result fatally. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger.

Engineer Held Responsible.

In discussing the question of responsibility for the horror, the railroad officials unhesitatingly lay it to Engineer Probst of the second section of the train whose home is in Battle Creek. Probst says that the airbrake on his train refused to work, but the officials declare that he could have stopped the train in time to have avoided serious consequences. General Manager F. H. McGuigan said:

"Probst knew that he was coming into a yard where trains usually stand and take on coal and water. The rules say plainly that engineers shall approach such yards with their trains under control. A brakeman sent back by the first train warned him of the danger three-quarters of a mile before he got to the standing section. For nearly half a mile before he got to the first train the track is straight and clear, and he should have been able to see the red light on the back of the train ahead in time to stop his train. Of course he, like anyone else, will try to avoid such a dreadful responsibility."

Airbrakes Apparently All Right.

The official report on the accident, issued by Superintendent Brownlee, declares positively that the airbrakes have been tested since the accident and found to be in perfect condition and there is evidence that they were not applied.

One of the officials in discussing the accident and its causes says that he believed Engineer Probst had exhausted his air in checking his train several times between Lansing and Durand and failed to again charge his tank. The head brakeman and fireman, who were on the engine, bear out Engineer Probst's statement that the brakes refused to work.

The bodies of the dead have been placed in caskets and are being shipped to their homes as rapidly as possible. The injured who are still here at the temporary hospital, in the Hotel Richelieu, are those suffering from lesser hurts, the seriously wounded being removed to Detroit.

The Grand Trunk tracks have been cleared and the officials of the road place their loss at $4,700.

Epidemic of Rabies Reported.

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The alarming outbreak of rabies in the town of Montgomery, this county, has caused the state department of agriculture to take decisive action. Twenty-two cows are already dead of the disease. Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture E. J. Preston says about 200 dogs have been killed in Montgomery during the past few days.

PIUS X., THE NEW POPE

IN April, 1902, when the late Pope Leo XIII. was in practically perfect health and there was no probability that his brilliant reign would be so soon cut short by the grim reaper, the pontiff remarked in a serious conversation with Father Perosi, the Italian priest whose musical compositions have made him famous the world over, that he was convinced that his successor would be Cardinal Sarto, the patriarch of Venice. When the recent conclave went into session there seemed little probability that Leo's prophecy would be fulfilled, for Rampolla seemed to have an almost commanding lead among the members of the college of cardinals, with Oreglia, Gotti and Serafino Vannutelli as strong possibilities. Besides these, there were several others who were thought to be likely candidates in case the rivalry among the leaders should become so intense as to make the election of any one of them impossible. But Sarto's name was scarcely mentioned except among the most reverent who remembered the prediction of Pope Leo and those who were mindful of the popularity in the Catholic church of Cardinal Sarto, which by many was regarded as being second not even to that of Leo himself. Cardinal Sarto, now Pope Pius X., evidently did not seriously consider himself as one of the papabili, for the evening before his election he declared, in speaking to a friend who had suggested that he might be the next pope, that when he started for Rome from Venice he had bought a return ticket. But the unexpected has happened, and Leo's prediction has been fulfilled. Cardinal Sarto is Pope Pius X., and the Roman Catholic church is satisfied that the progress made during the reign of Leo XIII. is to be continued and perhaps amplified under the administration of the present pontiff.

Pope Leo's prediction was considered remarkable by reason of the fact that because of Sarto's position with reference to a modus vivendi between the church and the state he seemed to be on that important point directly opposed to Leo. For instance, Cardinal Sarto publicly announced his joy when there were strong probabilities of a union between church and state, and his accession to the pontificate has long been regarded in certain quarters as the solution of the Roman problem so long unsolved and so long a cause of dissension over all Italy, to say nothing of its bearing upon the attitude of other Catholic countries. Cardinal Sarto is noted for his prudence, having never meddled with politics, and for extreme independence. He is also a patron of the arts, and launched Father Lorenzo Perosi, the celebrated priest composer.

The cardinal is recognized as one of the most learned men in the church. He is a stickler for the exact truth as between the church and the people, and won much renown some years ago by destroying certain relics of doubtful authenticity. He brings to his high office a character of most attractive modesty, unusual energy in the direction of matters large and small, the talents of a fine administrative officer and the first qualities of an organizer. In addition to his abilities and his undoubted Christian character, the cardinal is, from the sweetness of his nature, beloved by many millions of people. It is certain that no prelate would have a more enthusiastic sanction from the laity.

Pope Pius X. is sixty-eight years old. He was born at Riese, in the province of Venice, and was educated in the Salesian institute at Cottolengo, founded by the famous Dom Bosco. He was always of a serious turn of mind and when a young man his rector said to him that he had "never been a child."

Cardinal Sarto was not "discovered" until he had reached middle age. He was a parish priest in the province of Venice for the most of his years and finally became a bishop. His high executive qualities and unexcelled learning became known soon after his elevation and were recognized by the authorities of the church. It was not until 1893 that he was created a cardinal, at which time he was also named as patriarch of Venice. Thus the modest but able parish priest became the head of the province in which he had served so many years in a lowly position. His selection was made by the consistory of 1893, which was compelled to sue the throne for the privilege of installing him as patriarch of Venice. In return for this concession, which was made through Premier Crispi, the church appointed an ecclesiastical vicar apostolic in northeastern Africa to assist the premier in his pet scheme of extending the African colonies.

Cardinal Sarto had not been in office more than a year before he publicly declared for a union between church and state, speaking in no uncertain way. His utterances created a great sensation, and it was felt that he might have offended the holy father by the fervor of his words. Apparently he received the silent approbation of the pope, in whose estimation he ever held a firm place.

It was said at the time that Cardinal Sarto made his public announcement that the Austrian and Prussian ambassadors at the Vatican were endeavoring to induce the papal authorities to agree to a modus vivendi. Emperor Francis Joseph is reported to have written several letters to the pope with this end in view, and Emperor William of Germany is said to have been equally anxious to bring about an understanding between the Vatican and the Italian government.

For more than three decades a gulf has yawned between the rival palaces of king and pope, a gulf material and political. For thirty-five years—since the Italians battered down the massive walls near the old Porta Pia—earnest men and noble women of all parties have been dreaming and hoping that the mighty breach between victors and vanquished might in some way be closed.

It was said of Pope Leo that in 1878, when he had just succeeded Pope Pius IX., he longed for some amicable arrangement with the Italians, but if he did reasons of state outweighed his private wish. He was silent, and thus pledged himself to the no compromise party.

It is strange that while Sarto was never seriously considered by the public at large or by the ordinary press correspondents as a papal probability, his availability was commented upon by the really thoughtful writers more frequently than that of any other cardinal. As an example, a special correspondent of a prominent American daily last April wrote as follows to his paper concerning Cardinal Sarto and the papacy:

"It is Cardinal Guiseppe Sarto, the patriarch of Venice, the friend and patron of Abbe Perosi, the composer, who is at the present moment regarded not only throughout Italy, but likewise in the principal capitals of Europe, as destined to become the next pope. So little has been heard of him until now in connection with the papal succession that he may be regarded in the light of a dark horse in the race, which is perhaps due to the fact that he rarely goes to Rome, that he has never been a resident of the Eternal City, and that from the time of his being appointed vicar general of the diocese of Treviso until now he has held steadily aloof from all the projects of the curia.

"The vast majority of the Italian cardinals, and especially those who, forming part of the curia, are established in the Eternal City, have won their promotion to the sacred college as members of the diplomatic service of the papacy rather than as priests. And when a prelate has spent the greater portion of his life in diplomacy, and has found it the stepping stone to high honors, it naturally leaves him at the close of his career as representative of the Vatican abroad, with a greater cleaning toward statecraft than toward the administrative and doctrinal duties of his office at Rome. Many persons declare that it is imperative that the next pontiff should be a prelate who would devote his entire energies to reforms of an administrative and economic character, and likewise to the more rigid enforcement of the doctrines and discipline of the church.

"Cardinal Sarto, the patriarch of Venice, is the man of all others who fills these requirements. He is probably the most able adminstrator of the Italian episcopacy, combines firmness and determination with abundant tact and common sense, and has managed to institute a number of very practical reforms in his archdiocese of Venice without giving offense either to the clergy or to the laity. He avoids all newspaper notoriety. Indeed, his name is rarely mentioned in the press. He has always understood how to maintain an agreeable yet dignified modus vivendi with the Italian authorities, from whom he derives his stipend, and has shown his enlightenment by the vigorous campaign which he has carried on against the veneration of relics of questionable authenticity. He is on friendly terms with the members of the reigning house of Italy, during the late reign took part with King Humbert and Queen Margherita in the launching of a man-of-war at Venice, as well as in other state ceremonies at which they were present, and would certainly be a most agreeable choice as pope to the present ruler of Italy. He is just sixty-eight years old, which will be in his favor in the eyes of the conclave, since, as a general rule, that number of years constitutes a guarantee that the pontificate will not be of undue length."

POPE PIUS X., FORMERLY CARDINAL SARTO.

Thousands Awaiting Sunday's Ceremonies—Don Carlos Sanguine. Herrero Out of Danger.

Rome, Aug. 8.—St. Peter's is closed while preparations for the coronation Sunday is proceeding. Pope Pius X. has expressed a desire to have as many of the humble members of the faith as possible admitted and 50,000 tickets will be distributed. The remainder of the seats will be reserved for distinguished guests. Only two galleries have been erected, one for the diplomatic body and one for the Roman aristocracy.

Thousands are already leaving the Venetian provinces to attend the coronation of "their pope." The papal master of ceremonies has issued the invitations to the archbishops and bishops who will participate in the procession from the vatican into St. Peter's. They are requested to be at the vatican at 7 o'clock on Sunday morning.

The government, to avoid untoward incidents, has ordered the piazza and the neighborhood of St. Peter's and the basilica to be occupied by the military and forbidding an anti-clerical manifestation proposed by the Socialists and Republicans for that day. The pope's first allocution to be delivered at the next secret consistory is looked forward to with great interest.

Don Carlos, the Spanish pretender, who is a personal friend of Pius X., has said to his followers that he would not now have the papacy against him as he did under the pontificate of Leo, who was the godfather of King Alfonso, and has even gone so far as to say that he hoped the accession of the pope would help him to the throne.

Dr. Lapponi stated that Cardinal Herrero y Espinosa was out of danger.

Outbreaks Cause Sensation.

Sofia, Aug. 8.—The fresh insurrectionary outbreak in Macedonia which was believed to be impossible has produced a sensation everywhere. It is believed that the latest provocations by the Turkish troops drove the insurrectionists to despair. The Bulgarian government is resolved to maintain friendly relations with the porte and to prevent bands from crossing the frontier, but a popular movement is feared in the event of massacres of peaceful Macedonians by the Turkish soldiery. Meetings of prominent Macedonians were held and measures for succoring the sufferers from the insurrection were discussed, but no decision was reached.

Silence and Fun.

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 8.—The state convention of deaf mutes concluded when the delegates went to Roxbury park to enjoy a picnic. They played baseball, ran foot races and played tag. It was a day of silence and fun. The feature, however, was the dancing to the music of an orchestra, though not a note did they hear. They kept the step with the precision and grace of those more fortunate. How they did it is still a puzzle to the spectators, but it has been explained that one couple could hear and that the rest followed their movements.

Chinaman Seeks License.

Pittsburg, Aug. 8.—The appearance of a Chinaman in the court house seeking a marriage license caused considerable excitement along the corridors of the county building. A Celestial giving the name of Lee Chang applied for a license to marry a woman whose name he said was Lillian Russell, and who the Chinaman said was beyond the age that required the parents' consent to the union. The addresses of both the prospective groom and bride were given as Allegheny.

Damage Suits Threatened.

Sharon, Pa., Aug. 8.—No further fatalities have resulted from the collision on the Youngstown and Sharon trolley line, and it is believed that all the injured will recover. A rigid investigation is being made by the Trumbull county authorities. Several damage suits against the company are threatened by some of the injured.

Charged With Liquor Selling.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 8.—Postmaster J. A. McCermick, of Shady Springs, Raleigh county, was arrested by Deputy Marshal Cunningham on the charge of selling liquor illegally. The accused was taken before United States Commissioner Dunn at Beckley for a hearing. He waived examination.

McFadden Gets Decision.

Boston, Aug. 8.—Kid McFadden, of San Francisco, won the decision over Patsey Haley, of Boston, before the Lenox Athletic club. The bout went 12 rounds, the limit, and while it was McFadden's all the way, Haley did remarkable work and kept his opponent busy from beginning to end.

Whitaker Wright Released.

London, Aug. 8.—Whitaker Wright, the arrested promoter and director of the London and Globe Finance corporation, was released from Brixton jail, satisfactory securities for his $250,000 bail having been furnished.

To Build National Salon.

Indianapolis, Aug. 8.—The photographers at the national convention approved the plan of building a national salon at Winona. It will be the first undertaking of its kind in the world.

Nathaniel P. Gage Dead.

The Object Is to Treat With the Gas Company and Prevent Threatened Advance in Rates.

The officers of the new association, formed a few days ago to resist the efforts of the gas corporation to increase the gas rates, have prepared the communication to be presented to the city council at its next meeting. It was thought that there are citizens and gas consumers who will not connect themselves with the association on account of the fear that the companies, in a spirit of retaliation, may either cut off the supply entirely or make the service so bad that it will cause suffering and inconvenience to the private consumer. It is not the intention of the association to take any radical steps. This will been seen and appreciated when the letter to the city council is read. The communication as drafted today is as follows:

East Liverpool, O., August 10, 1903.
To the Honorable City Council of East Liverpool, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—It is well known that the cost of living in East Liverpool is unusually high, owing to heavy taxation, the cost of market products and rental expenses.

In addition to the expensive nature of what are accepted as the necessities of life, the company controlling the natural gas supply of this community, which is almost a necessity of life, has announced the intention of advancing its rate to domestic consumers with the current month.

We therefore would request your honorable body, two from Trades Countee, to consist of two members of your honorable bdy, two from Trades Council and two from the business community, in conjunction with the president of your honorable body, to arrange a meeting with the proper officials of the gas corporation, and lay before them a request to refrain from making the announced advance, with due explanation of the reasons for the objection to this advance in rates, and consequent advance in living expenses in this city. Begging your immediate attention, we are

Very truly yours,
CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION,
CRISS M'CONNELL, Secretary.
P. J. M'KEONE, President.

BAD BLOW TO TOWN OF IRONDALE

Fire This Morning Destroyed the Plants, Both Old and New, of Fire Brick Company.

Irondale, August 8.—(Special.)—Another severe blow to the industrial prosperity of Irondale was struck early this morning, fire being the agent. The plant of the Standard Fire Brick company was destroyed, all except the kilns, involving a loss variously estimater at from $20,000 to $30,000, partially insured.

The company had just completed a new plant and installed valuable machinery. This plant was not in operation, but the old factory was running until the new one could be got ready. The fire broke out in the old works, and the dry old building burned like tinder. In half an hour the flames had licked it up, and the new plant as well.

The new building was of frame, 60x80 feet, and among the machinery it contained was a 300 horse-power engine. It is not yet known how much of the machinery will be a total loss, but some of it, it is thought, can be saved and made serviceable.

John Watkins, the watchman, discovered the fire too late to check it.

Captain John Porter, of Congo, is one of the principal owners of the plant. He could not give an estimate of the loss today. It is thought the works will be rebuilt.

LISBON WILL LEND NO ENCOURAGEMENT

Business Men's Association Turns Down Telphone Company's Increased Rates Proposition.

Lisbon, August 8.—(Special)—W. F. Crossley, manager of the Columbiana County Telephone company, and another representative of the company, were present at a meeting of the Lisbon Business Men's association last evening made overtures to approve an increase of telephone rates. The association flatly refused to take any action in the matter. A statement was made as to the affairs of the company, similar to what was said recently in East Liverpool, Wellsville and Salem.

It was decided by the association that the annual merchants' picnic shall be declared off this year. Negotiations had already been in progress with several resorts, but it was considered advisable to forego the picnic.

Sebring Also Opposed.

Sebring, August 8.—The Sebring board of trade met on Thursday evening in the city hall and was attended by about 30 members. But little business was transacted other than to discuss the matter of the attempt on the part of the Columbiana County Telephone company to eliminate free county service or materially advance the rates. A free discussion of the matter was entered into and a vote resulted in an almost unanimous voice in favor of resisting the attempt to increase rates.

DIED OF WORRY

Mrs. Fitzpatrick, Who Killed Her Cruel Husband, Passes Away.

Steubenville, August 8.—Mrs. John Fitzpatrick died at Youngstown yesterday as the result of worry over the killing of her husband by herself about one year ago at Mingo Junction.

He was drunk and beating her on the floor when she grabbed a knife off the table and stabbed him. No action was taken against her.

FIRE OF STRANGE ORIGIN DAMAGES OLD BLOCK

Pennsylvania Company Property Lately Purchased Came Near Destruction.

Fire was discovered in the large frame building at the foot of Union street at 11:15 last night by Officer Saulsberry, who was attracted by an unwonted light in the second story. The premises have been unoccupied since purchased by the Pennsylvania company about a month ago. The flames had made considerable headway when first discovered and it looked like the structure and several more adjoining were doomed. The fire department made one of the quickest runs in its history and with two streams from the fire plugs and the chemical extinguisher soon had the blaze under control.

The flames had found their way between the sills and beneath the roof and the firemen worked an hour or more tearing away the woodwork and extinguishing stray sparks. Fearing some spot had been overlooked Chief Morley had the place closely watched and shortly after midnight the firemen were called out again. This time the extinguishers were adequate to qunch the blaze.

The origin of the fire is a mystery, as there were no lights in the building. It may have been of incendiary origin. On one of the rear doors was found marks where an attempt had been made to cut through to reach the bolt. A pane of glass in one of the windows was broken out and the window was raised.

The building was damaged to the extent of about $200.

Petitions to Sell Real Estate.

Lisbon, August 8.—(Special)—Idella C. Haas, of East Palestine, has petitioned the court for permission to sell real estate free of the dower interests of her husband, Dr. Ephraim Haas, who is insane. She says she is the owned of lots 13 and 14 in the village of East Palestine and alleges that she purchased this realty with her own means, accumulated before her marriage.

New River Packet.

It is announced that the handsome new steamer being built by Captain Gordon Green at Marietta has been successfully launched and will be ready to enter the Wheeling, Charleston and Pittsburg trade within 40 days. The boat is larger than the Greenwood and has both side and stern wheels.

CHILD LABOR LAW TO BE ATTACKED

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, August 8.—A Dayton firm, charged with violating the child labor law by the state department of workshops and factories, has served notice on Chief Inspector John H. Morgan, of the department, of its intention to attack the constitutionality of the statute. The case against the company comes up next Monday. The ground on which the suit is to be brought is that the law was repealed by the school law requiring that children under 14 years of age shall attend school. Both laws were passed on the same day. The attorneys for the firm claim that the school law was passed after the enactment of the child labor law and that consequently it repeals the latter. Chief Inspector Morgan made a careful examination of the legislative journals and found that the child labor law was enacted about 15 minutes after the enactment of the school law. If the theory advanced by the attorneys for the firm is sound then they can make no case as the child labor law, according to their contention, being the last enacted, repeals the other.

The purpose of the firm is to have the school law declared invalid, assuming it is the statute having precedence. There is a clause in this law which specifies that no child under 14 shall be permitted to work unless he produces a certificate attesting possession of certain qualifications as to education. In this respect the act is somewhat infirm as it implies that a child under legal age who has attained certain amount of education may be put at work. The child labor law very plainly points out that no minor under 14 shall be employed. The technical defect in the school law will probably be cured by the next general assembly. No attempt has been made heretofore to attack the law.

The department will make an exhibit at the St. Louis exposit Views will be shown of modern factories in which safety appliances are installed for the protection of life and limb of employes.

In explanation of its action in remitting penalties aggregating $14,000,000 to delinquent corporations under the Willis law, Attorney General Sheets, speaking for the state commission which did this, said that the penalties provided in this law are so outrageously excessive that no man with a conscience could enforce them. Enforcement would have ruined most of the delinquents and would have amounted to a confiscation of their plants and other property. The penalty for each day of delinquency should be reduced from $5,000 to $25, Judge Sheets said.

Willing to Put Up Cash.

A difference of opinion seems to exist in regard to which of the horses, Ikey Boy and Robert L, is the fastest. Parties controlling Robert L called up the News Review and stated that money would talk and that they are willing to cover any amount from $200 to $500 a side.

BOARD OF HEALTH DECIDED ON ACTION

Sanitary Policeman Will Proceed Against Those Using the Storm Sewer.

A LIST OF THE OFFENDERS

Has Been Prepared And No Time Will Be Wasted in Taking Steps to Induce Property Owners to Abate Alleged Nuisances.

That the East Liverpool board of health means to improve the sanitary condition of the city and that at once, there is the best of evidence, and if any one has an idea that it is a joke their minds will be disabused of the fact within the next few weeks.

The regular monthly meeting of the board was held at city hall last night, and in the absence of Mayor Weaver, Mr. Haines presided. Members Harris, Mowen and Birkett were present and the first matter taken up was the condition of Tanyard run. The sanitary policeman had been instructed to secure a list of names of parties who were attached onto the storm water sewer. He accomplished the work some time ago, and the list was turned over to the board of public service. This body, after some deliberation, referred it back to the health department, and it has been decided to waste no more time in the effort to induce property owners to abate the nuisance and discontinue the use of the storm water sewer for sanitary purposes. The sanitary policeman will proceed against these parties without delay, acting under the direction of the city solicitor. Following is a list of those manufacturing establishments, public institutions and private properties which are sewered into the Tanyard run storm water sewer:

George Thomas, no sewer, Seventh street.

Lawrence Thomas, no sewer, Seventh street.

Mrs. Richard Thomas, no sewer, Seventh street.

Thomas & Sons, no sewer, Seventh street.

Dresden pottery, West Market street.

Clem McQuilkin, West Market street.

Ice plant, Accommodation lane.

Burford Bros. Pottery company, East Seventh or Hailes street, Green lane.

Armour company, old Hailes property, West Market street.

McKinley school building, Riley avenue and Ambrose avenue.

Union Planing mill, West Market street.

Standard Pottery company, Broadway.

William Bagley, old Hilbert property, East Market street.

William Bagley, fruit store, East Market street.

James Massey, West Market street.

I. N. Crable, East Market street, waste water.

Thomas Plunkett, Spring street.

William R. Buxton, Spring street.

George C. Potter, corner Bradshaw and Ambrose avenues.

George C. Potter, Bradshaw avenue.

Frank Bergner, Bradshaw avenue.

John Worcester, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

W. C. Johnston, Bradshaw avenue.

W. C. Kell, Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

G. E. Stuffelbeam, Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

W. S. Arbuthnot, Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

Milton J. Arbuthnot, Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

Kate O'Donnell, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Laura Huffman, (David McLane, agent), Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Thomas Lynch, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

George Parry, (Tallis McCain, agent), Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

George Parry, (Tallis McCain, agent), Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

U. G. King, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Sheridan McGavern, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Clarence Gray, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Mrs. J. N. Smith, West Market and Spring streets, closet and waste water.

Flora Pomeroy, Grant street, waste water.

Proctor Ankrim, Grant street, tub, closet and waste water.

C. L. Gray, of 288 Bradshaw avenue, sent a communication to the board stating that since his house and five others were built there had been at least 10 houses built further up the street, most of which he felt sure, were provided with inside closets and drained into the storm sewer, which ends at the upper end of the lot on which his house is located. The stream from the sewer becomes an exposed and open one in front of his property and on down to Bradshaw avenue and Avondale streets, where it runs into the storm sewer. Sinks and bath tubs drain into the same sewer.

Mr. Gray believes all this drainage is contrary to municipal and state laws, but he believes conditions can be much improved without accomplishing the ideal. He objects to the drainage of closets into the sewer and asks the board to abate the nuisance. As to dishwater and other drainage, it should be drained into the running water under cover, if a sewer is not provided, and he thinks such a sewer would not be advisable at present.

OLD VETERANS' GLAD REUNION

Survivors of Co. F, 46th Pa. Vols., Met Today at the Frederick Home.

FOUGHT OVER OLD BATTLES

Survivors of Company F, Forty-Sixth Pennsylvania Veteran Volunteer infantry, held their annual reunion today at the pleasant home of Noah Frederick, East Fourth and Elm streets. Twenty-two gray-haired veterans, not one under 60 years of age, spared by the gods of war during battle and from the hand of death after peace had been declared, came to this city this morning to meet with one another and talk over the incidents of the great conflict. With the veterans was Captain James Hay's Homestead durm corps, which enlivened the trip and the day with martial music.

The veterans were given a cordial welcome by the host and his family and soon they were comfortably disposed upon the shady lawn. The exercises were arranged for afternoon, and during the morning the visitors were free to do as they wished. The dinner served at the Frederick home was a most bounteous repast and one of the features of the day most enjoyed by the veterans.

After a smoke and a few airs from the drum corps the company meeting was held, at which the old officers, Captain Ben Morgan, president, and Captain George R. Beecher, were reelected. Pittsburg was selected as the place for next year's reunion. The remainder of the afternoon was given over to speechmaking, the principal orators being Captains Morgan and Beecher, Mr. Frederick, Benjamin Hayes and Preston Dunwoodie.

The latter was the cook of the company and was taken when a slave in Virginia. He remained with the company and at the close of the war settled in Pittsburg, where several of the members now reside.

Company F saw much active service in the great conflict between the north and the south and participated in a number of hard battles. The regiment was in the Twelfth corps under General Slocum until the battle of Gettysburg, when it was transferred to the Twentieth corps, in Sherman's army, and served under that noted commander until the grand review of the army at Washington in May, 1865.

Twelve members of the company were killed in battle, five died from wounds thus received, three died as prisoners of war and seven died from disease while in the service. Since the war 38 have died.

Those present at the reunion were: Captain Ben Morgan, Pittsburg; Captain George R. Beecher, Pittsburg; Lieut. Cyrus Shade, Rochester; Lieut. Thomas D. Matthews, Rochester, Hamilton Gordon, John Reagan, John Wrigley, Pittsburg; James Hales, Homestead; H. M. Campbell, Hookstown; Samuel Searight and Noah Frederick, East Liverpool; Charles Shenkle, Akron; Matthew Nelson, Hookstown; H. B. Ewing, Beaver Falls; William Hayward, Shippingport; James Boyle, Salineville; Peter Barty, Slippery Rock, Butler county, Pa.; Bryce McKinnon, New Sheffield; James Purdy, Clinton; James D. Ewing, Pittsburg, and Preston Dunwoodie, the company cook.

These reunions have been held yearly since 1885. Since the last meeting two members of the company have died.

The Girl in the Case Is Also Held For a Hearing. Much Indignation Aroused.

The troubles of the Heidrick family, the revolting details of which have appeared in the News Review at various times during the past two weeks, received an airing in court last night, and if the action of Mayor W. A. Weaver can be taken as an indication, it would have been vastly better for Mrs. Heidrick's peace of mind had she adopted the course long ago.

The disgusting and reprehensible actions of Walter Heidrick in his treatment of his wife and two little children has been the subject of comment in this city by people in every walk of life for nearly a month. Several times the indignation among his old associates on the East Liverpool railway has reached a point where all that would have been required to administer a coat of tar and feathers and a dose of the whipping post, was a leader.

Heidrick, who has a wife and two little children, innocent of an evil thought or action, and who are too young to realize the disgrace of the father, became infatuated with a girl named Nellie Early some time ago, and for several weeks his attentions were marked and uninterrupted. The couple finally became insensible to any moral obligation they owed to their families or to themselves, and were lost to even a sense of common decency. Mrs. Heidrick was made acquainted with the circumstances in the case, and though she was thoroughly convinced of the guilt of both, she was loath to begin legal action in order to obtain redress.

Both Mrs. Heidrick and her brother had encounters with the pair and everything possible was done to induce Heidrick to abandon the other woman and return to his heartbroken wife and suffering little ones, but he steadily refused. The relations of man and wife became so strained that Heidrick left home more than two weeks ago, and had neither contributed to the support of his family nor recognized the wife since that time. Mrs. Heidrick sought an interview

FIRST DUTY OF THE GAS MONOPLY

To the Editor of the News Review:

The News Review is to be complimented for the bold stand it has made in the interest of the taxpayer as against the demands of the gas monopoly.

Many persons confuse the rights of a private corporation with those of a quasi-public institution like the organization furnishing a public convenience to the citizens of East Liverpool the shape of natural gas.

There is no anology whatever between the characters of the two organizations.

A private corporation is formed for the avowed and implied purpose of securing the greatest returns on the capital invested that the product of the plant will bring in through shrewd management and careful policy.

Its first duty is to the stockholders, and it is refrained from extortion by virtue of competition in trade, and the fact that if the article produced is not a fair equivalent for the price charged, the public will have none of it.

With a quasi-public corporation, operating, as in this case, as a monopoly and under a public franchise, for the furnishment of a public convenience which is recognized as a necessity, the case is fundamentally different in all respects.

The fact of this corporation being a monopoly owing to its grant, without charge from the public, makes the public in effect a partner in the enterprise.

As there is no other source from which the public can receive its dividend upon its share in the partnership, it follows naturally that the first duty of this gas monopoly therefore is to furnish its commodity to its partner, the public, at the lowest possible figure commensurate with a reasonable return upon the capital invested. Mind you, the capital actually invested, not the watered stock, as the public stands no show whatever in realizing a return upon the stock issued in excess of the investment.

This attitude of the public is sound, as from whence would it derive any benefit from the valuable privilege of using streets and alleys without other cost, if the gas corporation is permitted to make unjust and excessive rates for the commodity it furnishes?

What contribution does this gas monopoly expect to make for the privilege of owning its monopoly in this city, by grace of public favor, if not in the shape of reasonable gas rates?

Possibly it would prefer to make a fair contribution of its gross receipts, as many other cities require, but it surely does not avow the false principle of getting something for nothing.

It is a known fact that East Liverpool has been constantly discriminated against in rates for several years, and is now in Wheeling, and I am told the mill in Wellsville has always enjoyed a much less rate than the most favored factory in this city.

This being the case, why should the citizens of East Liverpool permit without opposition this attempt of the gas interests to "squeeze" them without even the justification of needing the money?

Will they stand for it?

PATRON OF GAS COMPANY.
East Liverpool, August 8.

THE ARBITRATORS FINISH THEIR WORK

Agreement Reached That Will Grant the Painters Their Increase.

The arbitration committee appointed by the grievance committee of Trades and Labor council for settling the dispute between the master painters and members of the decorators, finished up its business. The decision is now in the hands of the chairman of the grievance committee and will be opened at a joint meeting Sunday. The meeting was not lengthy, as the members had given the dispute in question much consideration.

The agreement, so far as could be learned, is that the employes would be granted their increase from $2.32 to $3, and the decrease in the hours from 9 to 8. Work is to commence at 8 o'clock instead of 7.

The apprentice question took much of the time, the board giving the opinion that apprentices should have the discharge of his employer before hiring with any other and that he be compelled to serve an apprenticeship of three years, with an increase each year. The agreement and several other points was sealed in an envelope and delivered to the grievance committee of Trades Council.

A Pleasant Function.

A 6 o'clock dinner was last evening tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gregg, of the East End, Pittsburg, who are guests of honor at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. Bert George on Fourth street. The event was a very pleasant function for the fourteen who were in attendance. The appointments were perfect in detail, the colors yellow and white being used in harmony with the decorations at dinner.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

CARROLLTON NOTES.

The second kiln has been dried out.

The pottery will use about 200 electric ligats.

The roofing of the kilns sheds will be completed this week.

The third kiln of saggers—about 2,000 in all—was fired on Wednesday.

The balance of the machinery will arrive by the middle of next week.

The third and fourth kilns are about half lined, work having been stopped on them on account of a scarcity of brick.

Work was commenced Wednesday on the decorating kilns. There are two double kilns to be erected, the four of them being equal to two of the ware kilns.

M. F. Albright, of Alliance, the treasurer of the pottery company, is now here "for keeps." He will move his family to Carrollton as soon as he can find a suitable house.

John Bossen will arrive here on Monday to accept the foremanship of the clay department. Mr. Bossen was until recently foreman of the clay department of the Thomas China company, of Lisbon.

CONTEST COMMENDED.

The Potters' Herald says of the recent popularity contest conducted by the News Review:

"The popularity voting contest recently closed that took place under the patronage of the Evening News Review, goes far to show the enterprise of the paper, and also demonstrates that the public of East Liverpool will lend the proper assistance to an enterprise calculated to arouse interest in unionism, and that was the original intention of the management of the Review. No one will doubt, and that they have succeeded, no one who has followed the contest can deny. The generosity of the paper in giving more in the way of prizes than was at first intended or obligatory to them is to say the least commendable. The Herald wishes the successful candidates a pleasant journey and a safe return."

KILNS MEASURED.

The new bisque kiln at the West End that was erected a short time ago is now ready to be filled. John Wood, the statistician of local union No. 9, was called to measure it. The kiln is No. 3 and calls for 16¼ days. Mr. Wood also measured the No. 4 glost kiln at that place, which calls for 22 days.

W. M. Morey, of the Sebring, has taken the position made vacant by John Graham.

REPUBLICAN TARIFE HAS MADE PROSPERTY

Significant Statistics Showing How Great Industries Have Grown Under Protection.

In the last 50 years a Republican tariff has been in force most of the time. The Republican party is the champion of a tariff that protects the exceptionally good wages of American workmen and develops industries upon our own soil. If the protective policy were wrong figures would show it. A brief comparison of the industrial situation in 1900 with that in 1850 is instructive. The number of factories in the United States in that period increased from 123,025 to 512,339; the number of wage earners from 957,059 to 5,316,802, and the yearly product from $1,019,000,000 to $13,014,000,000. The product grew thirteen fold, the number of wage earners six fold and the number of factories four fold. The production of coal in the same time increased seventy fold; of petroleum more than a hundred fold; of pig iron twenty-four fold, and of copper thirty-five fold. In 1850 the yield of cotton was 2,333,118 bales, and in 1900 9,436,416 bales.

Our railway mileage grew from 9,021 miles in 1850 to 194,321 in 1900. In 1860 the tonnage at the Soo canal was 403,657; in 1900 it was 22,315,834. Exports of manufactured articles have grown from $17,580,000 in 1850 to $433,851,000 in 1900. The gain in exports of manufactures has been from $228,000,000 in 1896 to over $400,000,000 in 1903. In the light of these figures, it is useless to deny the results of Republican tariffs. They are unparalleled in the history of the world. Our workmen are the most productive, as well as the best paid. Their handiwork advances constantly in the estimation of foreign consumers. The industrial and commercial expansion that has come under Republican tariffs speaks for itself, and indisputably.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

A Remarkable Lamb.

Hammondsville, August 8.—Sherman King, near Norristown, has in his possession a freak of nature. It is a lamb, which has two tails, six legs and otherwise resembles two animals up to its shoulders. The freak died shortly after it was found. The carcass has been mounted and he has it on exhibition. He has been offered a handsome sum for the animal several times, but will not consider any offer.

A Woman's Complexion.

It is rank foolishness to, attempt to remove sallowness or greasiness of the skin by the use of cosmetics, or "local" treatment, as advocated by the "beauty doctors." The only safe and sure way that a woman can improve her complexion is by purifying and enriching the blood, which can only be accomplished by keeping the liver healthy and active. The liver is the seat of disease and blood pollution. Green's August Flower acts directly on the liver, cleanses and enriches the blood, purifies the complexion. It also cures constipation, biliousness, nervousness, and induces refreshing sleep. A single bottle of August Flower has been known to cure the most pronounced and distressing cases of dyspepsia and indigestion. New size trial bottle, 25 cents; regular size 75 cents. ATTEMPT TO WRECK A TROLLEY CAR

An Alliance Man Arrested Charged With Putting Obstructions on the Track.

Alliance, August 8.—As Motorman Charles Summers was running a street car upon Summit street at 9:40 p. m. he saw a bright object upon the rail of the car line between Webb and Morgan avenues and near it a dark obstructions evidently was to wreck were standing near the track at this point and a third was in a stooping posture near the bright object upon the rail. Summers at once applied the brake to his car and calling to the conductor to take charge, bounded off and captured the man that was nearest the track, who gave his name as Joe Losio. An investigation disclosed a railroad torpedo upon the track and a vitreous brick. The object of the obstruction evidently were to wreck the car.

Losio was placed under arrest and taken to the city jail. He stoutly denies his guilt.

Summers states that very frequently of late obstructions in the shape of limbs and stones have been placed upon the track near where the torpedo was found and a strict watch has been kept to detect the guilty parties in the act. The penalty for such an offense is fine and imprisonment.

Drugs in Your Pastry.

COMMON Baking Powders are half Corn starch, the other half being Acid-phosphate, or Alum. Some of these are said to be very injurious, and quite unreliable.

Good Baking Powders are one-fourth Rice Flour, one-fourth Soda, and one-half Cream of Tartar.

These cost 13 cents per pound to manufacture, but you must pay fifty cents per lb. for them, at retail.

And it takes $4.40 worth of this Baking Powder to make a $6.00 barrel of Flour into Tea Biscuits!

"PRESTO" quick-flour needs no Baking Powder, and very little "Shortening."

It is the finest flour milled in America, being rich in Gluten (muscle-former) with a comparatively low per centage of Starch (fat), while Baker's Flour, for instance, is chiefly Starch, with little Gluten.

"PRESTO" quick-flour has the exact proportions of Cream Tartar, Soda, and Salt, that such flour needs, already blended uniformly into it, by machinery.

These chemicals are the purest made, mixed with the flour when they are fresh and strong, and then sealed up in air-tight packages that Grocers retail at 10c and 25c.

The very best flour, and the purest Cream of Tartar and Soda are thus sold in "PRESTO," at the price of common flour, combined with Baking Powder, — why?

Because—"PRESTO" carries only a Miller's profit on the whole product, instead of a Druggists profit on the Baking Powder, or 44 per cent. portion.

Then, there's the great labor saving, and the certainty of results, to consider in its valuation.

"PRESTO" makes the quickest, surest, lightest, whitest, and most economical of cakes, biscuits, and pastry.

Give you a good appetite, renew life cells in young and old. Permanently restore youthful vigor and vitality. They tone up the whole system and make you feel like a new person. No remedy in the world to equal them. Take a few Nervan Tablets and note the wonderful effect.

ALCOHOL IN ALL LIQUID KIDNEY AND RHEUMATIC REMEDIES CONDEMNS THEM.

An ignorantly compounded remedy, containing alcohol, as nearly all kidney remedies do, will stimulate them so violently that an inflammation will be set up, and instead of being merely lazy the kidneys will become diseased. Alcohol congests the kidneys with blood and retards their activity.

There is no Alcohol in Nervan Tablets to interfere with the removal of all harmful sediment from the body. The Tablets soothe and heal the kidneys when they are irritated and inflamed. They cure the kidney diseases that make you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable; that make you pass water often during the day and night; that cause rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, pain in the back, joints and muscles; that make your head ache and indigestion, stomach and liver trouble, and a sallow, yellow complexion.

No matter how many other remedies you may have tried and found useless, remember the great modern remedy, Nervan Tablets.

FUNERAL OF ROBT' BEALE

The Victim of the Shooting Accident Laid to Rest—Many Handsome Tributes.

Robert Beale, the young man who succumbed to injuries received through accidental shooting, rested on a couch in the neat front parlor of the family residence on Mulberry street as though in a deep sleep, presenting an appearance as though he might soon awake. The room was beautifully decorated with floral contributions from the many admirers of the boy in life. A handsome wreath of astors was sent to the home by the girls of the Potters Supply company. A bouquet of rosebuds and a wreath of fall roses in the shape of a broken circle came from his shopmates and numerous other pretty flowers from the members of his Sunday school class. All were also prettily arranged about the room.

Rev. J. N. Swan preached an impressive sermon which brought tears to the eyes of those present. Members of the young man's Sunday school class acted as pallbearers. The funeral was held at 2 o'clock and the interment was in Riverview cemetery.

CROSSED THE SIERRAS IN AN AUTOMOBILE

An Ohio Man Performs a Feat Never Before Accomplished.

To E. Tom Fetch, of Warren, O., belongs the credit of crossing the Sierras in an automobile, a feat never before accomplished.

Today Fetch is well on his way eastward, on his transcontinental auto trip.

Never, even in the days when Indians lurked in the mountain passes of this wild and "woolly" state and dead men's bones lined every trail, did a traveler have more exciting experiences than has been the lot of this daring chauffeur since he left San Francisco on June 15, the rear wheels of his auto having first been wet by the waves of the Pacific, bound for New York city, where about the middle of September he expects to drive his machine into the waters of the Atlantic.

Two years ago Alex Winton, of Cleveland, made an attempt to cross the continent in a machine of his construction. Two weeks out of San Francisco his auto stuck fast in the sand and the trip was over. Fetch, who is using a Packard motor car, more than six weeks ago passed the spot where the Winton expedition came to grief and while he may not reach New York until somewhat later than he had hoped he will undoubtedly finish the trip with flying colors, for he has already passed the most dangerous and the most trying part of the journey.

CANTON CELERY VALUABLE CROP

Large Sums Made by Gardeners from Small Patches of Ground

SWAMP LANDS UTILIZED

Hartville the Center of the Industry in Stark County—Great Yield From a Single Acre—Ready Market For All That Can Be Grown.

Canton, August 8.—Canton celery is the whole thing in Pittsburg. Over one of the largest commission houses in that city is emblazoned a large sign, "Canton Celery," and Pittsburg people who come to Canton ask for celery at all seasons. All celery that is grown in Stark county goes into the market as Canton celery, and that name is sufficient guarantee that the largest price can be obtained for it.

Few people have any conception of the importance of this crop, as it is confined to a small section of the county and never gets in the agricultural reports. The Hartville section is perhaps the most extensive. Celery has been grown there for many years and the area is being extended. There are now under cultivation 150 acres of celery land, which produces for the grower on an average about $250 an acre. This is a very conservative estimate.

The possibilities of an acre are shown by the wonderful crop raised by E. W. Richard last year. He planted a little late and the growth was phenomenal. He sold $700 worth of celery from a single acre which was perhaps the best crop ever raised in the county. Hiram Hildenbrand, however, has the reputation of having raised the largest single bunches. He had a bunch containing one dozen stalks that weighed 28 pounds after it had been cleaned and trimmed, which was over two pounds to the stalk. This can be better realized when it is considered that an ordinary stalk weighs but a few ounces.

The Hartville product is all marketed in Pittsburg. It is hauled to Alliance in wagons, the celery raisers having contracted with a teamster to do the hauling. From Alliance to Pittsburg the express rates are 40 cents a hundred, and it is consigned directly to commission men, so that the farmer does not have the trouble of selling. The commission men are glad to get the crop and pay the very highest prices.

Other large celery farms and tracts are found at Greentown, Hartville, Uniontown and near Canton.

The facts with reference to the Hartville section were given by Arthur Willaman, a large grower. He stated that the variety generally grown is known as the Golden self-blanching. It is planted 5 inches apart in the row and the rows are 4 feet apart. This gives 22,000 plants to the acre, not all of which, however, develop into marketable celery. The general impression is that celery soil, which is dark and deep, cannot be exhausted, but this is a fallacy. It requires more fertilizer than any other soil. As high as a ton to the acre of commercial fertilizer is used by the best growers, and if it is not used the crop will be a short one.

A fair estimate of the value of the celery crop of Stark county is thought to be $100,000 a year. The profits are large and those farmers who have the best land are gradually accumulating a competency. The land is valued at from $300 to $400 an acre, and there is often a greater profit from five acres of swamp land when planted in celery than from a quarter section of land given to general farming.

NEGRO DESPERADO HELD UP A CAMP

A Blacksmith With a Rifle Finally Put An End to His Operations.

Steubenville, August 8.—James Brooks, who is rated as a bad negro, filled up with a quart of Brilliant whisky last night and terrorized camp No. 13, on the Wabash railroad construction works. Everybody he held up disgorged their money.

A. Heff, the blacksmith, when held up, made an excuse and eluded him and secured his Winchester rifle. He followed Brown and while he was holding up C. G. Goodelle, the master mechanic, Heff kneeled and fired, and the bullet passed through Brown's body at the hips, fatally wounding him.

After he was shot the other men in the camp wanted to hang Brown, but Heff stood guard with his rifle and prevented it. Brown was brought here by an armed guard.

Trade Conditions Compared With Last Year Show Increase in Many Lines.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Railroad Equipment Inadequate for Distribution of Merchandise—Conservatism Shown in Iron and Steel Purchases.

New York, Aug. 8.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Trade advices from nearly every section continue to show as favorable conditions as a year ago, and in many lines the volume of transactions has increased. Jobbers report fall business opening with excellent prospects and manufacturing plants are will occupied, with the exception of cotton mills.

Distribution of merchandise is so heavy that railway equipment already proves inadequate, although crops are not the factor that they will be in a few weeks. Earnings for July exceed last year's by 12.7 per cent and those of 1901 by 20.2 per cent.

On the whole news from the farms is less favorable, but no serious curtailment is assured and many sections make very bright reports. A decline of 1.5 per cent in the cost of commodities during July is evidence that prices are less inflated, since the change was mainly in meats and other food which have been ruling at an abnormal position.

Consumption of iron and steel is on a large scale, and in many departments the past week has witnessed the signing of numerous contracts, but there is a tendency to delay purchases beyond early needs. This conservatism is not surprising in view of the uncertainty regarding the security and financial markets, together with considerable interruption to structural work through labor controversies. The rate of consumption and the moderate size of orders, however, indicate that stocks are running low, which encourages furnacemen and mill operators to hold quotations fairly steady. A moderate tonnage of pig iron has been ordered, and in partly finished products the best feature just now is the bidding of agricultural implement makers. More pig iron was imported during July than anticipated and German billets are still offered at Pittsburg, but the domestic makers announce their intention of meeting foreign competition. There is less pressure for tin plate, the peculiar weather extending the canning season and giving more time for delivery of cans. There is full occupation in all branches of this industry, and in merchant pipe also the mills have full order books for many months.

There were 178 commercial failures this week in the United States, against 190 last week, 191 the preceding week and 196 the corresponding week last year, and in Canada 19, against 19 last week, 19 the preceding week and 14 last year.

"Whenever the cold weather sets in I have for years past been very sure to catch a severe cold which was hard to throw off, and which would leave after-effects on my constitution the most of the winter.

I recommended it to several of my friends and all speak the highest praise for it. There is nothing like Peruna for catarrhal afflictions. It is well nigh infallible as a cure, and I gladly endorse it."---C. F. Given.

In distress I was advised to try Peruna, and although I had never used a patent medicine before, I sent for a bottle.

"Words but illy describe my surprise to find that within a few days I was greatly relieved, and within three weeks I was entirely recovered. I am never without it now, and take an occasional dose when I feel run down."—Julian Weisslitz.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Commercial writes his paper that "the most accurate financial barometer of the country is the increase or decrease of the receipts at the postoffice." The annual readjustment of postmasters' salaries on the basis of postoffice receipts, just completed by the department, shows a heavier rate of increase than ever before. The conclusion is drawn that the extent of the prosperity which prevails throughout the land beats anything hiterto recorded.

There is an excellent opportunity for men who are willing to do business at a reasonable profit to engage in the work of supplying meat. There is no direct evidence that the butchers are in a trust, but if ever there was an example of extortion it is in the present prices of meat. Beef on the hoof, according to an exchange printed in one of the large cities of Ohio, is nearly 50 per cent below last year's prices and yet the consumer is taxed more than he was then. Questioned for an explanation the butcher talks to you about the stock being exhausted and the present supply having been bought at old prices. Facts do not bear out this statement. On the contrary, there is absolutely no reason, other than an arbitrary one, for the present high prices of meats. But the consumer has so long grown accustomed to them that he pays without a murmur, until his attention is called to the injustice. Then he registers a kick and if prices don't come down he curtails his meat bill.

General Young, the new head of the army, is prompt, active and energetic. He is not the sort of man to let military red tape hamper his usefulness, and common sense methods will be in use while he commands.

The Ohio river is getting so low and dirty it is hardly fit to swim in. Yet its water, undiluted and unpurified, is the only sort furnished to East Liverpool water consumers without extra cost.

David Nation takes it all back. He is not going to live with Carrie again. "She is too boisterous," says the old man, and he has had an excellent chance to find out.

The Canton bank teller who wanted to get rich quickly failed in his effort, but doubtless discovered a short route to state's prison.

Russell Sage at 87, worth unknown millions, is working just as hard as if the poorhouse loomed up in the distance.

Bryan isn't hurting Cleveland. His power for harm, as well as for good, is very nearly a minus quantity.

Domestic trade has been growing, as well as foreign. The outlook for the fall and winter is excellent.

The summer resorts are not monopolizing the good weather.

Canonsburg needs to go gunning for ball players.

The Bartender's Revenge.

Since the bar is a necessary evil—to some folk—and is an institution of the state, being licensed, reference to it occasionally must be excused. There are some very clever men behind the bar, and once in awhile a gentleman. Tab is usually kept on him by the metal cash register. He feels that he is watched at all hours by a maze of patented machinery. If he steals a check of 15 cents he is caught, you may say. Not at all! The other day in a fashionable resort the proprietor, big and pompous, "called down" one of his men before some customers. As to the question of right or wrong I say nothing. But presently, when Signor Pomposity turned his back, the bar man emptied a full bottle of the finest whisky into the washing trough under the bar. It was worth at least $1.50. That was his way of getting even. I am informed that it is the usual way of resenting an insult from the proprietor. The mere stealing of 15 cents is a small matter when the bar man is to be trusted with thousands of dollars' worth of liquors. If a man is not to be trusted with change how is he to be trusted with liquors?—New York Press.

with the Early woman, and the scene was a stormy one.

Miss Early returned all of the presents given her by the erring husband, many of them being the property of Mrs. Heidrick, and promised to annoy her no more. She either never intended to keep the promise or was soon to forget, as the couple were together repeatedly afterward.

In her desperation Mrs. Heidrick finally sought the advice of the authorities. She remembered that the Early girl had told her her name was Kittie Walker, and she informed the authorities of the fact. This was thought to be sufficient offense to merit arrest, and steps were taken to apprehend them both. Mrs. Heidrick brought the real Kittie Walker to the city hall Thursday afternoon and the information was made.

Mrs. Heidrick has been very patient throughout the entire ordeal, and bore her sufferings with fortitude until last night when she could stand it no longer and resolved to act at once. She returned to her brother's home in the evening, and was informed that she could not remain there longer. The only home she had known since the husband had abandoned her was now denied her and she was about to be left penniless and deserted with no place to lay her head. She did not seem to consider her own comfort, and would have been content to go away rather than force herself upon the husband who had ceased to entertain toward her the affection and esteem possessed by every good wife, but with the two helpless children to care for she was powerless to do for herself, and since her husband was under the same or even more binding obligation toward them, she made up her mind to trifle no longer. The above is the substance of what the poor woman told a News Review reporter when she arrived at the city hall last night, and the determination in her manner and the malignant flash of her dark eyes left no doubt in the minds of those who heard her that she meant every word she said.

Two warrants, one charging Heidrick with desertion and non-support and the other making information against Nellie Early for impersonating Kittie Walker, were placed in the hands of Officer Clifford Dawson, and in a remarkably short time both were facing the mayor. So prompt was the action of the officer that there was a suspicion that he had been keeping his eye on the pair and knew just exactly where they could be found. The attitude of the girl was brazen and defiant, and when she was arraigned in the presence of Chief of Police Wyman and an attorney whom she had retained, her actions were disgusting and from a feminine standpoint, repugnant in the extreme. Her attorney held that the charge was insufficient to hold her, and after explaining the law on the subject, and showing that the arresting officer had thrown himself liable for false arrest, insisted that the prisoner be discharged. Mayor Weaver desired to be right in the matter, and after some deliberation, summoned another attorney for consultation.

While the other legal advisor was on his way to the city hall, the spectators were treated to another disgusting exhibition. While the little babe was asleep in its mother's arms and the three-year-old daughter of Heidrick slept in a chair in a most uncomfortable position, the husband and his temptress chatted and cooed like two mushy school children attacked with their first case of puppy love. At that juncture, had some one given the word, the twenty or thirty witnesses to the revolting spectacle would have laid hold of the couple, and what they would have done could not but meet the approval of all. It is certain that if the crowd had been given an opportunity Mrs. Heidrick's troubles would have been at an end for a time at least.

The attorneys and the mayor came to the conclusion that it would not be safe to hold the girl and she was allowed to go on her own recognizance until the expiration of the lawyers' vacation, when she will be required to face the charge of using Miss Walker's name.

Instead of departing when she had been given the privilege of doing so, the Early girl remained about the mayor's office, in the hope, it is presumed, of being able to speak some word of encouragement to her lover. Heidrick was taken into the mayor's office and his case quickly disposed of. He refused to return to his family in spite of the fact that the wife was willing to drop everything and let by-gones be forgotten, and was ordered taken to jail on the charge of abandonment and non-support. As he was leaving the mayor's office on his way to jail Heidrick attempted to have a word with Miss Early but Chief Wyman had stood about as much as any human could endure and grabbing the man by the collar he was unceremoniously hustled into a cell. The chief and Officer McDermott searched the prisoner and disgorged a handful of crackers. The culprit asked if they wanted them too, and in reply the chief remarked that it would be better if he gave them to his hungry children. Even this, which was but one of many rebukes that were administered by both the officers and the spectators, failed to move the man who seemed to be lost to all sense of his duties and maintained a stubborn demeanor all the way through.

As her husband was being taken to jail Mrs. Heidrick broke down completely and cried as though her heart would break. She had hoped that her husband would relent and that they might be reconciled once more, but she was disappointed. She and the children had no place to go, and Lyman Rinehart, who was present, generously proposed to allow her to remain at his home until some arrangement could be made for her future welfare, but she finally went to the home of Mrs. Walker on Washington street, where it is presumed she spent the night.

It is probable Heidrick will not be given a hearing until Monday, and that when he is brought in for trial he will agree to return to his wife and provide for his children. A night spent in the jail has had the effect of cooling the young man off. He has experienced an entire change of heart and is more than illing to make any sort of promise as the price of his liberty. Last night he was defiant. Today he is repentant.

It is thought by all concerned that Heidrick has arrived at a very wise conclusion and he would have been shown no mercy had he been sent to court. The penalty for his offense consists of both fine and imprisonment. If the case is sufficiently flagrant he may be sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of three years.

The charge pending against the Early girl is also a serious one, and when her case is called on the 18th it is expected she can be convicted. She was allowed to go on her own recognizance, and if she takes the advice of her friends she will make herself scarce before the time for trial. If proven guilty the girl can be fined in the sum of $500 or imprisoned for six months, or both.

WELLSVILLE

NOT LAWFUL TO LOITER IN DRINKING RESORTS SUNDAY.

Wellsville Council Attacks Several Problems—Complaint of Houses Obstructing Street.

At the special meeting of council last evening President Crubaugh and Messrs. Joseph, Anderson, O'Grady, Blackburn, McDonald and Shoub were present. City Auditor McGregor was also present, having arrived from Greenville, Pa., on the afternoon train after an absence of over a week.

The first matter discussed was the payment of the bills. It was decided that hereafter all bills should go to the city auditor to be approved before council should act on them. None of the bills were ordered paid.

A request was made by the board of public service for an appropriation with which to pay the July expenses. There was considerable discussion upon this matter, but no action was taken.

Council appropriated the board of public safety $448 from the safety fund, by ordinance, to cover July bills.

A motion was made and passed that $186.73 be borrowed and appropriated to the board of health to be used to pay its bills. This step was necessary, as there is no money in that fund.

The matter of the blocking of Steubenville street by John Wooster was brought up again. Mr. Smith, of the West End, stated that Steubenville street had been blocked for several days by Mr. Wooster's houses and said that he had been unable to haul coal to the brick yard. Councilman McDonald, who has been the principal member of council to protest against Mr. Wooster, stated that the men who were employed to move the houses were only working eight hours a day and were making very slow progress. Council finally disposed of the matter by ordering Clerk McQueen to notify Mr. Wooster to have the work of moving the houses rushed, both day and night.

The bond ordinance providing for the paving and otherwise improving of Steubenville street was read by the clerk. Councilman McDonald stated that a street railway track was to be laid on this street in a short time and would like to have the ordinance laid over. There was considerable discussion, but the ordinance was finally passed.

A suggestion was made by one of the councilmen that the East Liverpool & Wellsville Street Railway company be asked by the board of service to make much needed repairs to the street paving on Clark avenue along their tracks. No action was taken.

A motion to place the ordinance, creating the office of clerk to the public safety board at a salary of $5 per month on its third reading was voted down. A motion to place it on its first reading was passed.

The ordinance providing for the arrest of persons found loitering in or about saloons on Sunday, voted down at the last meeting of council, was again presented and reconsidered. A few slight changes were made and the ordinance was passed on its first reading.

City Auditor McGregor was asked by council to get up a new book giving a complete record of all of the city's bonds and take the place of the book which has been lost.

An ordinance providing for the paving and otherwise improving of Sixth street from Front street to Hill street was passed finally, the rules being suspended.

REMEDY FOR HAY FEVER

After Trying Other Treatments Hyomei Was Used With Perfect Success.

Prior to the discovery of Hyomei, the only advice a physician could give to a hay fever patient was to go away from home but now any one who expects the disease, can, if Hyomei is used, stay at home without fear of the annual attack of sneezing, watery eyes, and other discomfort.

J. F. Forbes, a well known western railroad man, whose home is at McCook, Neb., writes: "I have never had relief from any other remedy for hay fever, even temporarily, until I discovered the merits of Hyomei. I will always reccommend it whenever occasion requires."

There is no offensive stomach dosing when Hyomei is used. It is a reliable remedy for the cure of all diseases of the respiratory organs and is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, so that the air taken into the throat and lungs is like that of the White Mountains or other health resorts where hay fever is unknown.

Will Reed, who has the local agency for Hyomei, advises all who are subject to hay fever to begin its use two or three weeks before the time of the annual appearance of this disease and thus prevent the attack. If, however, Hyomei is not used until the sneezing and other disagreeable symptoms have shown themselves, it is necessary to use the treatment more frequently, at least half a dozen times daily, and Hyomei Balm should be rubbed into the nostrils both morning and night.

The fact that Will Reed agrees to refund the money to any hay fever sufferer who uses Hyomei without success, should inspire confidence in its power to effect a cure.

CLOTHING STORE BADLY SCORCHED

A BLAZE IN WELLSVILLE CAUSES MUCH DAMAGE.

Stock of Clothing Believed to Have Suffered to the Extent of $2,000.

Fire broke out shortly before 7 o'clock this morning in the Boston Clothing House on Main street, Wellsville, near Fourth street. The department responded promptly and made short work of the blaze. Just how the fire started is not known, although it is believed to have been caused by a lighted gas stove in the rear of the store.

A. B. Walkow and son, S. A. Walkow, who are the proprietors of the clothing establishment, state that their stock, which they valued at $4,000, has been damaged to the amount of $2,000 both by fire and water. They carried $2,000 insurance in the J. W. Riley agency, and expect to realize only $1,000. The building, which is owned by George Murdock, was damaged to about $200; insured.

Mrs. R. E. Kimball, who resides on the second floor of the building, had her household goods damaged by water to the extent of about $50 and is covered by insurance in the C. R. Arnold agency.

Naming the House.

The custom of naming a ship when it is launched with the breaking of a bottle of wine on the prow is a survival of an ancient practice which had many forms. In early times, when the frame of a house was raised, the bottle of wine was broken on the ridgepole. The usage is mentioned in McLellan's "History of Gorham, Maine."

It was the custom at a raising to break a bottle of spirit on the ridgepole and to repeat some rhymes, "naming the frame," as it was called. When, in 1829, Jacob H. Clement of West Gorham raised a stable, John Phinney, an old Revolutionary soldier who was present, repeated the following lines, which he said were used in naming the frame of Captain John Stephenson's house and barn, which were raised about 1775:

FOR THE HOUSE FRAME.

Cursed is the Tory's heart
Which from the congress laws depart;
If the laws they do not fear
I hope they will not prosper here,
And if the laws they do obey
I hope they will prosper in corn and hay.

Chair Postures.

It is one thing to have a chair and another to know how to sit on it. The ideal of a graceful sitting posture has varied in the different ages of the world. The Egyptian sat bolt upright, the knees and feet closely pressed together. It was the ceremonial attitude. The Greeks and Romans, when they were at liberty to forget their dignity, sat stooping, with one or both elbows supported by the arms of the chair.

The Chinese ideal was with the knees and feet wide apart. They have maintained that attitude in sitting for 400 years. The Saxons and early Norman kings are represented in old manuscript and on coins in the same position. Down to a date comparatively recent, kings and queens received sitting stiffly on their thrones, any marked change of posture being thought to derogate from the royal dignity. They now receive standing.

A Legend of February.

Here is the pretty legend which tells why February has only twenty-eight or twenty-nine days. Long ago, they say, February was a gambler, and he was so unlucky that he soon lost all his money. Like other gamblers, he tried to recover it, and he said to his companions that if they would lend him some money he would give them as security one of his days. January and March, who were naturally associated with him more often than any of the other months, accepted his offer, and as poor February soon lost the money which he had borrowed each of them acquired one of his days.

That is why January and March have each thirty-one days and February has only twenty-eight in ordinary and twenty-nine in leap years.

BOND BUYERS AFTER INFORMATION

WHICH THE TOWN OF CHESTER WILL PROMPTLY GIVE.

Further Extension of Time to Pay Taxes and Secure Rebate.

The town council had a busy session last night. All the members were present except Councilman Dunn.

Solicitor Ingram stated to the council that he had received a communication from Seasongood & Mayer, the successful bidders for the bonds of the town, who request information in regard to what proportion of the assessable taxes of the town has been set apart for the payment of the interest on the bonds. The firm will be furnished the information desired and it is thought that the money from the sale will be soon forthcoming. No bids were received on the estimated cost of the grading of Fairview street on account of the absence from the city of Engineer Kelly, but the matter of letting the contract will be in shape by the next meeting.

Several bills were ordered paid. One amounting to $155.67 for supplies, consisting of sewer pipe and cement, was held over, as it was thought the bill should be charged to the street improvement fund.

Recorder Maxwell reported that the collector's book was in readiness for turning over to the town sergeant. A proviso, made earlier in the year that those making payment of taxes before July 1 would be entitled to a discount of 5 per cent was stricken from the resolution and the same rebate allowed if taxes be paid before November 1, net January 1, and after that date a penalty of 5 per cent is to be added.

Councilman Johnston reported that Freshwater & Co. were being delayed on the paving of Second street on account of no instructions being given them whether there was to be an intersection on Second street at a point known as the old country road. Engineer Whittaker was present with a blue print of the original plat, which did not show that the road had been dedicated to the town. On motion the curbing was ordered to be set in from the bridge on Second street to Virginia avenue on the west side of the street.

Park officers, Good, Baker and Hogue, made a proposition to Mayor Mercer which he reported to council, that the officers were willing to act in the capacity of town police without any other remuneration than the regular fees from arrests of $1. The town has been put to much expense through the hiring of extra officers for duty about the park entrance and the proposition met with the favorable consideration of council. The mayor was instructed to swear the officers in as town police.

A list of delinquent taxpayers was before the meeting and the recorder was instructed to notify delinquents to pay up after 10 days' notice or legal action would be enforced. The frog pond nuisance and the light question were lost in the shuffle.

FIRST COMMUNION

At the Sacred Heart Church Will Be Solemnly Observed.

The communion class of 16 children will take first communion tomorrow in the Sacred Heart chapel and the services will be observed with great solemnity. Mass will be observed at 7 and 9 o'clock. Rev. Father Sauers, Mr. McKeever and Mr. Gough, of St. Mary's Seminary, who are home on a visit, will assist in the communion ceremony. Miss Margaret Hamil, of East Liverpool, who was graduated recently from Villa Angela, and is an accomplished organist, will render J. L. Battman's mass. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock solemn vespers and the benediction will be pronounced.

Sunday School Picnic.

The Sunday schools of Hancock county will picnic at Rock Springs park on Friday, August 14. Trains will run as follows: Leave New Cumberland Junction at 7:40 a. m.; Zalia, 7:50; New Cumberland, 9 o'clock. Stops will be made at the Chelsea, Globe, Brownsdale, Arroyo and Congo. The rate from New Cumberland Junction will be 50 cents for adults, children 35 cents, from Zalia 35 cents for big and little, from New Cumberland, Chelsea, Globe, Brownsdale, Arroyo and Congo 30 cents for all, adults and children.

Two Performances Tomorrow.

So well pleased has been the management of the Rock Springs theatre and the public generally with the magnificent production of Ruth Shea's transformation choir act, that the little lady and her company have been engaged for two performances tomorrow. The act is novel and entertaining, and has made a tremendous hit during the week. The attendance tomorrow afternoon and evening promises to be very large, as the attraction certainly merits a liberal patronage.

Tendered a Reception.

Mrs. W. B. Gillis, on her return from Xenia, was tendered an enjoyable reception by about 50 members of the congregation of the United Presbyterian church. During the absence of Mrs. Gillis, the ladies of the church had carpeted the hallway and the stairs of the parsonage. The evening was enjoyably spent, supper having been prepared.

CANONSBURG BOYS PLAYED POOR BALL

Seventeen Runs and Thirteen Hits Easily Scored by the Locals.

VISITING TEAM CRIPPLED

By the Desertion of Players and a Wretched Exhibition Resulted. Their Pitcher Was Wild As a Comanche Indian.

The bunch of alleged ball tossers missed a train and did not arrive here until four o'clock in the afternoon and had they missed another one or been delayed for some other reason they would have saved themselves a disgraceful defeat. Seventeen runs and thirteen hits was the record of the locals while the Pennsylvanians were piling up errors enough to last a life time. By very liberal scoring they are credited with thirteen miscues but this does not represent by half other sins against proper ball tossing.

The locals wobbled in the opening inning but settled down to a fairly good game. The greatest fault was poor throwing in which Brown and O'Leary were the principal offenders. Wallace did not make much of a showing on the poor ones. Lawrence was touched up for a couple of safeties in the first and coupled with a couple of errors two runs were made. When the Canonsburg bunch finished their first half and trotted out upon the field they looked as good as the Pittsburg Pirates and the crowd thought the locals were up against it again. Three of the visitors deserted at Pittsburg and the team was in a crippled condition. Southpaw Smith, who went to the slab, was as wild as a Comanche Indian and he soaked a trio of preachers in the ribs. He had plenty of speed but the locals straightened out his curves for further orders. Maley helped himself to three slices of the pie, one of his licks being a scorcher to right for a homer.

The locals were blanked in the first while the visitors were making two, but they took the lead in the second on Webb's safety, Reark's sacrifice, a two sacker by Lawrence, a couple of errors by Irwin and Maley's single. The visitors made one in the second on hits by Irwin and Smith and an out.

The locals "made a hundred" in the third while the visitors made the rottenest exhibition of fielding ever seen on the local grounds. Two hits, a triple by Gibson and a single by Emmerling with four errors and some weird throwing, netted 7.

Brown's poor throwing and hits by Irwin and Smith scored the last one for Canonsburg in the fourth. The locals made two more in this inning on hits by Brown and Emmerling and more rottenness by the visitors.

Maley, first up in the fifth, hit a hot liner to the club house in right and circled the bases. Four more were landed in the sixth and then the locals stopped. Irwin's error and hits by Maley, Wallace and O'Leary did the work. Score:

TWO FAST TEAMS HERE NEXT WEEK

Ohio Works, of Youngstown, And Niles Will Play a Trio of Games.

Some good base ball is promised at the local park next week. The Ohio Works team, of Youngstown, will be here Tuesday for a solitary game and Wednesday and Thursday the famous Niles aggregation will do battle with the preachers. This trio of games will certainly prove a strong drawing card.

With the Ohio works bunch is the famous Guzzie, the phenomenal second baseman, who Manager Reark tried to corrall for his team. Guzzie was then with Niles, but later went to the St. Louis Americans, where he participated in a few innings of one game. He took everything that came his way and why he was cast adrift is something of a mystery.

Manager Reark will give the local team a general shaking up for these games. He has strings out for several good players, among them Houser, Wellsville's second sacker, who played such a good game at the local park. It is not likely that Maley will be here for the games, as he goes to Crooksville Monday to accept a situation as mould maker with the Crooksville China company. His loss will be keenly felt.

Manager Reark has taken a fancy to several of the Athletics and will probably give some of them a chance to make good. Bennett and Tyson are his pick of the flock.

TOWN OF KENT BASEBALL CRAZY

Its Fans Are Gloating Over the Triple Defeat of the Locals and Our Umpires are Roasted.

Kent is base ball crazy since her team has taken three straight from East Liverpool and won the series from Niles. The games of the team here are reviewed at great length in the Kent Observer and its sporting editor delivers himself of the following bit of doggerel verse anent local umpires:

EAST LIVERPOOL.
Last year your umpire he was fine,
East Liverpool.
Greatest that was on the line,
East Liverpool.
This year they're the worst can be,
But we beat you, one, two, three,
For we like ous straight, you see,
East Liverpool.
Dan and Pards and Jack were there,
East Liverpool
And we beat you out for fair,
East Liverpool.
Captain France he led the troop,
In the trip around the loop.
And put your ball bunch in the soup,
East Liverpool.

THE SALEM RACES

In September to Be in Charge of Business Men of the City.

Salem, August 8.—The races at the Salem driving park for the September meet will be held on September 1, 2, 3 and 4. The driving park will be under new management this fall, P. J. Brennan, the owner, having made a proposition to a number of business men in this city to take charge of the coming meet as it will be unable to give it personal attention. The proposition was accepted and an organization will be formed at once and probably incorporated.

Mr. Brennan was present at the Wednesday evening meeting when articles of agreement were drawn up and signed. The new managers expect to elect their officers before the end of the week and get down to business.

Could Not Hit Dailey.

Youngstown, August 8.—(Special.)—The East Liverpool Athletics were defeated by the Ohio Works team here yesterday, 5 to 1. Dailey held the visitors to 2 hits and struck out 11 of them. They played a ragged game in the field, which prevented Allison being effective. The Athletics left today for Leetsdale, Pa. Score:

Pleasant Heights Club.

The base ball players of Pleasant Heights have been formed into a regular club, with John Bennett as manager. The promoters of the club have decided to scalp the diamond on top of the hill where games have been played all season, and the work is nearly finished. Suits will be purchased and the team will practice regularly. The lineup is a strong one, the team having won a large percentage of the games played during the present season.

Gone to Buffalo.

Robert Larkins, the popular young East Ender, who likes to see a horse go a fast mile, has journeyed from Mt. Clemens, Mich., where he has been health seeking, to Buffalo, where he will witness the Grand circuit races. He may bring home a fast one for the local track.

Claims the Game.

Manager Herbert, of the East End Grays, will make claim to the directors of the Crockery City league for the game scheduled for last Tuesday between his team and the Athletics. The latter team failed to put in an appearance. The Grays and Crockery City play an exhibition game today.

Visiting at Norwalk.

Pitcher Ed. Lawrence, of the local team, left last night after pitching a winner against Canonsburg, for his home in Norwalk, O., where he will make a brief visit with his parents. The "big boy" will return and finish the season here.

Wellsville Beaten.

Wellsville lost at Greenville yesterday by a score of 7 to 3. "Slab" Burns, the ex-Homesteader, pitched for Greenville, and Black for Wellsville.

Marines at Wellsville.

The Marines, with a very strong team, are playing the Wellsville base ball team this afternoon on the grounds of the latter club.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Salineville ball team played Niles and was slaughtered to the tune of 14 to 1 at Niles.

The fall meeting of the Youngstown Driving club will be held on September 15, 16, 17 and 18, and promises to be even more successful than that held in July.

Manager Streeter, of the Ohio Works base ball club, Youngstown, has signed two new players, who came very highly recommended. They are infielder James, formerly of Alliance, and catcher and infielder Starr, who has been playing for Greenville, Pa.

Beaumont is the only player in either big league who has made more runs than he has played games.

Harvey Bailey, the big southpaw of the Columbus team, who was suspended Saturday for alleged indifference in his playing, left this week for Indianapolis to join Kelly's Saints.

A deed of trust to secure loans of $100,000 has been filed by Ralph H. Orthwein, president of the St. Louis American league base ball company. The property is conveyed to Charles C. Orthwein, of Kansas City.

To Die of Paralysis Like Father.

Helpless Invalid For Three Years.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Made My Nerves Strong.

"For many years I suffered from terrible headaches and pains at the base of the brain, and finally got so bad that I was overcome with nervous prostration. I had frequent dizzy spells and was so weak and exhausted that I could take but little food. The best physicians told me I could not live; that I would die of paralysis, as my father and grandfather had. I remained a helpless invalid for three years, when I heard of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and began using it. That winter I felt better than I had before in many years, and I have not been troubled with those dreadful headaches since I first used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. My appetite is good and my nerves are strong."—Mrs. N. M. Bucknell, 2929 Oakland Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

"For many years I suffered from nervous prostration, and could not direct my household affairs, nor have any cares. My stomach was very weak, headaches very severe, and I was so nervous that there was not a night in years that I slept over one hour at a time. We spent hundreds of dollars for doctors and medicine. I was taken to Chicago and treated by specialists, but received no benefit at all. Finally I heard of Dr. Miles' Nervine and began its use. I was surprised that it helped me so quickly, and great was my joy to find, after using seven bottles, that I had fully recovered my health."—Mrs. W. A. Thompson, Duluth, Minn.

EDUCATION AS A SOLUTION OF THE RACE PROBLEM

By HERBERT BOOTH KING, Sociologist

THE race problem will not be solved by colonization nor by extermination:

IT CAN ONLY BE SOLVED BY HONEST, SYMPATHETIC CO-OPERATION BETWEEN THE WHITE AND BLACK, BETWEEN THE NORTH AND THE SOUTH.

I believe that a new era has already begun for the colored race. This hopefulness is not alone in statistics, but in conditions. THE SPIRIT OF INDEPENDENCE IS GIVING WAY TO THE SPIRIT OF SELF HELP. The question (which he himself is beginning to solve) is not alone, What shall be done with the negro? but, What will he do with himself?

"Destiny is not about thee, but in thee; thyself must make thyself," as has been truly said. "Freedom must not be a bequest but a conquest." THERE IS A GRAND WORK BEFORE THE NEGRO LEADERS OF THEIR OWN RACE. The illiteracy of the masses must be reduced, the criminal tendencies of the lower classes must be checked, the productive capacity of the wage earner must be increased, the domestic life of the race must be improved, their citizenship must be safeguarded and ennobled, AND THE DEVELOPMENT OF PERSONAL CHARACTER MUST BE STIMULATED.

"My Sons,"

said a great business man, "are my partners and they need all the strength and courage I can give them," and he forthwith paid for a $1,000,000 policy in The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. Not without the most careful investigation, however, extending over six months. He was convinced by just such facts as led the President of a National Bank in New York to make the curious and shrewd provision in his will, which is contained in "A Banker's Will." The Iowa Tariff Idea

Some Men Who Are Prominent In the Movement

GOVERNOR ALBERT B. CUMMINS of Iowa, famous for the persistency with which he has urged the "Iowa idea" of tariff reform and who is said to have won over President Roosevelt and Senator Allison to his views, is probably the most popular man in the state of which he is the chief executive.

Public interest in what is called the "Iowa idea" was quickened last fall when David B. Henderson, then speaker of the national house of representatives, declined to stand for re-election rather than indorse the Iowa plan of tariff favored by Governor Cummins and indorsed by the Iowa Republican conventions of 1901 and 1902.

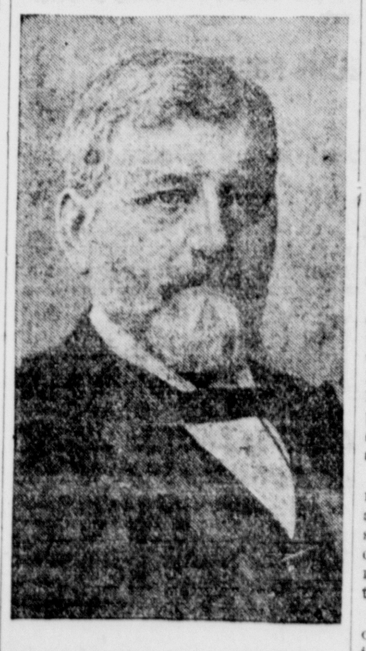
The pith of the "Iowa idea" was pronounced in favor of "any modification of the tariff schedules that may be required to prevent their affording a shelter to monopoly." This phraseology was too strong for Speaker Henderson, it is said, and he stepped down. In the agreement said to have been arrived at between President Roosevelt, Senator Allison and Governor Cummins the tariff idea has been made more in harmony with the tariff plank in the national Republican platform of 1896.

Governor Cummins is a native of Pennsylvania and worked his way through the common schools and the Waynesburg academy. Going west in 1869, he secured a clerkship at Elkader, Ia., and later worked as a carpenter and an express messenger. In 1871 he went to Indiana and soon became division engineer of the Cincinnati, Richmond and Fort Wayne railroad. When twenty-three years of age Mr. Cummins began to study law and two years later was admitted to the bar in Chicago. That city was his home until 1878, when he removed to Des Moines, where he has since resided.

For sixteen years Governor Cummins has been a conspicuous figure in public life. In 1893 he was a candidate for United States senator, but John H. Gear was elected. A popular speaker, he has made many friends who follow him with intense devotion. His second campaign for senator was made in 1899, when he was again defeated by the late Mr. Gear. His campaign, however, resulted in the formation of a powerful organization in his interest, and he was elected governor in 1901.

That Governor Cummins possesses talent, integrity, eloquence and a genius for politics every one in Iowa knows.



SENATOR WILLIAM B. ALLISON.

Besides this, he is considered in Iowa to be the best looking governor of any state in the upper Mississippi valley, with New York, Pennsylvania and a few other states thrown in for good measure. Personal pulchritude, however, is the last thing in the world, say his friends, that Governor Cummins would lay claim to. He is a manly man of fifty-three and a brainy one. He is broad minded and has proved conclusively that he is also a statesman.

Tall, sturdy, not too stout, with kind of iron gray hair and mustache people call "distinguished" and with courteous, magnetic manners, the chief executive of Iowa has rapidly put himself at the head of the Republican party in the state, although that commonwealth has been noted for the number of able leaders it possessed.

The gift of oratory was acquired by Mr. Cummins in early years, but experience of one of his first attempts at public speaking is rendered much more amusing by the lapse of time than it was when it occurred. When he was twenty-one years old he went back to his old home in Pennsylvania on a visit. Soon after his arrival a soldiers' reunion was held there, and his friends asked him to make a speech. The meeting was held at a little crossroads and after several of the veterans had spoken young Cummins was called on.

He arose with all the dignity he could command and began the statement that, unfortunately for him, he was born too late to participate in the toils and dangers of a soldier's life and share in his triumphs. Just here he became afflicted with mental paralysis. After an instant of hesitation he noticed an old soldier back in a corner lean over to a companion and whisper. The whisper, however, was audible all over the house, and the speaker heard with astonishment the remark, "It's a blamed pity he was born at all." That broke the spell, and, like a flash, his scattered ideas came back to him, and he made a speech that won the approval of all his hearers, even to the whisperer in the corner.

Governor Cummins is of Scotch-Irish ancestry, his father being Scotch-Irish and his mother of Irish extraction. He was married in 1874 to Miss Ida L. Gallery of Michigan. They have one daughter.

EX-SPEAKER DAVID B. HENDERSON.
[From a snap shot photograph.]

Senator William B. Allison, who is now said to favor the "Iowa idea," has represented his state in congress for nearly forty years, thirty of them as senator. Mr. Allison was brought up in Perry, O., on his father's farm, which he assisted in working when not attending the district school. In 1857 he went to Iowa and settled in Dubuque, where he has since resided.

His congressional career opened in 1862 when he was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress. He was elected three times and declined a renomination in 1871, instead becoming a candidate for the senate. After a long contest he defeated Senator James Harlan and took his seat in 1873.

Senator Allison is a ready, earnest debater, not easily disconcerted by attack and always clear and logical in the presentation of his arguments. Never a bitter partisan, he has always held the respect of public men in both parties. He is in comfortable circumstances, but far from being a millionaire.

The veteran statesman was recently re-elected to his sixth term in the senate. He is of Irish extraction and is seventy-four years old. Before the death of his wife his home on Vermont avenue, Washington, was one of the social centers of the capital.

Hon. David B. Henderson, who declined to stand for re-election because, it is said, of the views of his party in Iowa on the tariff question, was ten times elected to the house of representatives and twice was speaker of that body.

He was born in Scotland sixty-three years ago and came to this country as a child. He served in the civil war, where he lost a leg. As speaker of the house of representatives he was popular and was generally considered an impartial presiding officer. Indications seem to point to the growth of the so-called "Iowa idea."

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

CHAPTER I.—Grenfall Lorry, a wealthy American globe trotter, stumbles into acquaintance with a charming foreign girl on the train from Denver to Washington. The pair are left behind when the flier stops for repairs in West Virginia. II.—Lorry wires ahead to hold the train. He and the unknown girl ride twenty miles at a tearing pace in a mountain coach. Lorry knows it is a dangerous ride. There is no love-making, but a near approach to it as the rolling stage tumbles the passengers about. III.—Lorry dines with the foreign party, consisting of Miss Guggenslocker, Uncle Caspar and Aunt Yvonne. They are natives of Graustark, a country Lorry had never heard of before. IV.—Lorry shows the foreigners the sights of Washington. They leave for New York to sail on the Kaiser Wilhelm. Miss Guggenslocker naively calls Lorry her "Ideal American" and invites him to come and see her at Edelweiss. V.—Wildly infatuated, Lorry hurries to New York. The name Guggenslocker is not on the steamer list. He sees the steamer off. Miss G. waves him a kiss from the deck. VI.—Lorry joins his old friend, Harry Anguish, an American artist in Paris. Graustark and its capital Edelweiss, are located by a guide book. The Americans get no trace of the Guggenslockers there. VII.—Lorry sees his charmer driving in a carriage with a beautiful companion of her own sex. He gets a glance of recognition, but the carriage rolls on, leaving the mystery unsolved. Later he receives a note at his hotel signed Sophia Guggenslocker, inviting him to visit her next day. VIII.—In the evening Lorry and Anguish ramble about the grounds of the castle where dwells the court of the princess of Graustark.

"He should be here at 12," said one of the newcomers in a low voice and in fairly good English. The other merely grunted. There was a silence of some duration, broken by the first speaker.

"If this job fails and you are caught, it will mean years of servitude."

"But in that case we are to have 10,000 gavvos apiece for each year we lie in prison. It's fair pay—not only for our failure, but for our silence," said the other, whose English was more difficult to understand.

Anguish's fingers gripped Lorry's leg, but there was no sound from either of the thoroughly aroused dreamers. "A plot, as I live," thought each, with a thrill.

"We must be careful to speak only in English. There are not twenty people in Edelweiss who understand it, but the night has ears. It is the only safe tongue. Geddos speaks it well. He should be here." It was the first speaker who uttered these words, little knowing that he had listeners other than the man to whom he spoke.

A dark figure shot across the roadway, and, almost before the Americans were aware of it, the party numbered three.

"Ah, Geddos, you are punctual."

"I have found it ever a virtue," responded the newcomer.

"Have you secured your men?"

"I have, your"—

"Sh! Call me Michael, on your life! They are ready and willing to undertake the venture?"

"Yes, but they do not understand the true conditions. I have told them that we are to rob the castle and carry the booty to Ganlook before morning."

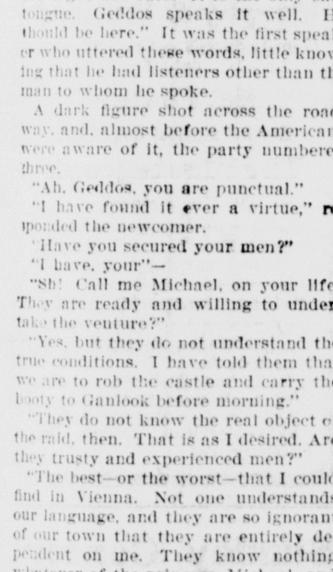
"They do not know the real object of the raid, then. That is as I desired. Are they trusty and experienced men?"

"The best—or the worst—that I could find in Vienna. Not one understands our language, and they are so ignorant of our town that they are entirely dependent on me. They know nothing whatever of the princess, Michael, and will do only as they are told, realizing that if caught they will be guillotined. I have told them it is the royal palace we are to rifle. Ostrom here and I are the only ones except yourself and the men who will aid us inside the castle, who know the truth, sir."

"It cannot fail unless those inside prove false or unworthy," said the hoarse voiced Ostrom. Anguish's fingers were gripping Lorry's leg so fiercely that the blood was ready to burst out, but he did not feel the pain. Here, then, was some gigantic plot in which the person of the princess herself was to be considered. Was it an assassination?

"You have five of these Viennese?"

"Yes; two to stand beneath the window to receive the booty as we lower it to the ground, one to stand



"He should be here at 12."

guard at the west gate and two to attend the carriage and horses in the ravine beyond the castle."

"When did these men arrive?"

"This morning. I kept them in my sister's home until an hour ago. They are now in the ravine awaiting Ostrom and myself. Are you sure, Michael, that the guards and the cook have been made to understand every detail? The faintest slip will mean ruin."

"They are to be trusted fully. Their pay is to be high enough to make it an object to be infallible. The guard, Dannox, will leave the gate unwatched, and you will chloroform him, with his consent, of course. You will enter, as I have explained before, and crawl along in the dark shadow of the wall until you reach the arbor that leads to the kitchen and scullery. Here another guard, Rabbo, known to Ostrom as a comrade in her royal highness' service not more than a year ago, will be encountered. He will be bound and gagged without the least noise or struggle. Just as the clock strikes 2 the cook will walk past the scullery window in the basement thrice, carrying a lighted candle. You will see this light through the window and will know that all is well inside the castle. Ostrom, you will then lead the two Viennese to a place directly beneath the third window in the princess' sleeping apartment. There are several clumps of shrubbery there, and under these they will hide, protected from the gaze of any watchman who is not with us. You and Geddos will be admitted to the scullery by the cook, who will conduct you to the hall leading to her highness' bedroom. The man who guards her door is called Dannox. He will not be at his post, but will accompany you when you leave the castle. You will understand how carefully you must enter her room and how deeply she must be chloroformed. In the adjoining room her lady in waiting, the Countess Dagmar, sleeps. If her door is ajar, you are to creep in and chloroform her, leaving her undisturbed. Then the princess is to be wrapped in the cloth you take with you and lowered from the window to the men below. They are to remain in hiding until you have left the castle and have reached their side. It will not be difficult, if caution is observed, for you to get outside the wall and to the carriage in the ravine. I have given you this plan of action before, I know, but I desire to impress it firmly upon your minds. There must not be the slightest deviation. The precision of clockwork is necessary."

The man named Michael hissed the foregoing into the ears of his companions, the palsied Americans hearing every word distinctly. They scarcely breathed, so tremendous was the restraint imposed upon their nerves. A crime so huge, so daring as the abduction of a princess, the actual invasion of a castle to commit the theft of a human being just as an ordinary burglar would steal in and make way with the contents of a silver chest, was beyond their power of comprehension.

"We understand fully how it is to be done, and we shall get her to Ganlook on time," said Geddos confidently.

"Not a hair of her head must be harmed," cautioned the arch conspirator. "In four days I shall meet you at Ganlook. You will keep her in close confinement until you hear from me. Have you the guard's uniforms that you are to wear tonight?"

"They are with the carriage in the ravine. Ostrom and I will don them before going to the castle. In case we are seen they will throw observers off the track long enough for us to secure a good start in our flight."

"Remember, there is to be no failure. This may mean death to you, certainly a long prison term, if you are apprehended. I know it is a daring deed, but it is just of the kind that succeeds. Who would dream that mortal man could find the courage to steal a princess of the realm from her bed and spirit her away from under the very noses of her vaunted guardsmen? It is the bold, the impossible plan that wins."

"We cannot fail if your men on the inside do their work well," said Geddos, repeating what Ostrom had said. "All depends on their faithfulness."

"They will not be found wanting. Your cutthroats must be sent on to Caias with the empty carriage after you have reached Ganlook in safety. You will need them no more. Ostrom will pay them, and they are to leave the country as quickly as possible. At Caias they will be able to join a pack train that will carry them to the Great Northern railroad. From there they will have no trouble in reaching Vienna. You will explain to them, Geddos. All we need them for, as you know, is to prove by their mere presence in case of capture that the attempt was no more than a case of burglary conceived by a band of Viennese robbers. There will be no danger of capture if you once get her outside the walls. You can be half way to Ganlook before she is missed from the castle. Nor can she be found at Ganlook if you follow the instructions I gave last night. It is now nearly 1 o'clock, and in half an hour the night will be as dark as Erebus. Go, men; you have no more time to lose, for this must be accomplished slowly, carefully, deliberately. There must be no haste until you are ready for the race to Ganlook. Go, but, for God's sake, do not harm her! And do not fail!"

"Failure means more to us than to you, Michael," half whispered the hoarse Ostrom.

"Failure means everything to me! I must have her!"

Already the two hirelings were moving off toward the road that ran west of the castle grounds. Michael watched them for a moment and then started swiftly in the direction of the city. The watchers had not been able to distinguish the faces of the conspirators, but they could never forget the calm, cold voice of Michael, with its quaint, jerky English.

"What shall we do?" whispered Anguish when the men were out of hearing.

"God knows!" answered Lorry. "This is the most damnable thing I ever heard of. Are we dreaming? Did we really see and hear those men?" He had risen to his feet, his companion sitting weakly before him.

"There's no question about it! It's a case of abduction, and we have it in our power to spoil the whole job. By gad, but this is luck, Gren!" Anguish was quivering with excitement as he rose to his feet. "Shall we notify old Dangloss or alarm the steward? There's no time to be lost if we want to trap these fellows. The chief devil is bound to escape, for we can't get him and the others too, and they won't peach on him. Come, we must be lively! What are you standing there for? The trap must be set!"

"Wait! Why not do the whole job ourselves?"

"How—what do you mean?"

"Why should we alarm anybody? We know the plans as well as these scoundrels themselves. Why not follow them right into the castle, capture them red handed, and then do the alarming? I'm in for saving the Princess of Graustark with our own hands and right under the noses of her vaunted guardsmen, as Michael says." Lorry was thrilled by the spirit of adventure. His hand gripped his friend's arm and his face was close to his ear. "It is the grandest opportunity two human beings ever had to distinguish themselves!"

"Great heaven, man! We can't do such a thing!" gasped Anguish.

"It's the easiest thing in the world. Besides, if we fail, we have nothing to lose. If we succeed, see what we've done! Don't hesitate, old man! Come on! Come on! We'll take 'em ourselves, as sure as fate. Have you no nerve? What kind of an American are you? This chance won't come in ten lifetimes! Are we not equal to those two scoundrels?"

"Two! There are at least ten of them!"

"You fool! The three guards are disposed of in advance, two of the Viennese are left with the horses, two are chucked off under the princess' window, and one stands at the gate. We can slug the man at the gate, the fellows under the window are harmless, and that leaves but our two friends and the cook. We have every advantage in the world. Can't you see?"

"You are right! Come on! I'll risk it with you! We will save the Princess of Graustark!"

"Don't you see it will be just as easy for us to enter the castle as for these robbers? The way will be clear and will be kept clear. Jove, man, we need not be more than thirty seconds behind them. Is your pistol all right?"

By this time the two men were speeding along the grassy stretch toward the road that ran beside the wall. They looked to their pistols and placed them carefully in outside coat pockets.

"We must throw away these heavy canes," whispered the painter to his friend, who was a pace or so ahead.

"Keep it! We'll need one of them to crack that fellow's head at the gate. Gad, it's dark along here!"

"How the devil are we to know where to go?"

"We'll stop when we come to the gate where we climbed up the wall today. That is the only entrance I saw along the west wall, and it is near the castle. Just as soon as the gang enters that gate we'll crawl up and get rid of the fellow who stands watch."

It was so dark that they could barely see the roadway, and they found it necessary to cease talking as they slunk along beside the wall. Occasionally they paused to listen, fearing that they might draw too close upon the men who had gone before. At last they came to a big gate and halted.

"Is this the gate?" whispered Anguish.

"Sh! Yes; I'm quite sure. We are undoubtedly near the castle, judging by the distance we have come. Let us cross the road and lie directly opposite. Be careful!"

Like panthers they stole across the road and down a short grassy embankment. At Anguish's suggestion Lorry wrapped his handkerchief tightly about the heavy end of his cane, preparing in that way to deaden the sound of the blow that was to fall upon the Vienna man's head. Then they threw aside their hats, buttoned their coats tightly and sank down to wait, with bounding hearts and tingling nerves, the arrival of the abductors, mutely praying that they were at the right gate.

CHAPTER IX.

THE EXPLOIT OF LORRY AND ANGUISH.

DURING the half hour spent in the grassy ditch or gutter they spoke not more than half a dozen times and in the faintest of whispers. They could hear the guard pacing the driveway inside the ponderous gate, but aside from his footsteps no sound was distinguishable. A sense of oppression came over the two watchers as the minutes grew longer and more deathlike in their stillness.

They knew nothing of the surroundings. If they failed, there was the danger of being shot by the guards before an explanation could be made. If they succeeded, it must be through sheer good fortune and not through prowess of mind or muscle. Both knew the sensible, judicious act would be to alarm the guards and thus avoid all possible chance of a fiasco. With misgivings and doubts in their hearts the two self appointed guardians of the princess lay there upon the grass, afraid to give up the project, yet fearing the outcome.

"The dickens will be to pay, Lorry, if they dispose of this guard on the inside and lock the gate. Then how are we to follow?" whispered Anguish.

Lorry was thoughtful for awhile. He felt the chill of discouragement in his heart.

"In that case we must lie outside and wait till they come out with the princess; then make a sudden assault and rescue her. In the darkness we can make them think there are a dozen rescuers," he whispered at length. After awhile Anguish asked another appalling question, the outgrowth of brain racking study:

"Suppose these fellows, who will be in guards' uniform, should turn about and capture us. What then? We are strangers, and our story would not be believed. They could slip away in the excitement and leave us in a very awkward position."

"Harry, if we are going to hatch up all sorts of possibilities, let's give up the thing right now. I have thought of a thousand contingencies, and I realize how desperate the job is to be. We must either cast discretion to the winds or we must retreat. Which shall we do?"

"Cast aside discretion and hang our fears," said the other, once more inspired. "We'll take chances and hope for the best. If we see we are going to fail, we can then call for the guards. The grounds are doubtless full of soldiers. The only part I'm worried about is the groping through that strange dark castle."

"We must do some calculating, and we must stick close together. By watching where they station the two Viennese we can figure about what direction we must take to get to the princess' room. Sh! Isn't that some one approaching?"

They strained their ears for a moment and then involuntarily, spasmodically shook hands, each heaving the deep breath of excitement. The stealthy rustle of moving bodies was heard, faint, but positive. It was a moment of suspense that would have strained the nerve of a stone image. Where were the abductors? On which side of the road and from what direction did they come? Oh, for the eyes of a cat!

There was a slight shuffling of feet near the gate, a suppressed "Sh!" and then deathly silence. The gate opened, a faint creaking attesting the fact, followed by the heavy breathing of men, the noise of subdued activity, the scent of chloroform, some whispering and then the creaking of the gate.

"They've gone," whispered Anguish. Lorry's form arose to a crouching posture, and a moment later he was crossing the road with the tread of a cat, his cane gripped firmly in his hand. Anguish followed with drawn revolver. So still was their approach that they were upon the figure of a man before they were aware of the fact. In the darkness the foremost American saw the outline of a human figure bending over a long object on the ground. He could smell chloroform strongly and grasped the situation. The Viennese was administering the drug, his companions having left that duty for him to perform. No doubt the treacherous guardsman was lying calmly on his back, bound and gagged, welcoming unconsciousness with a smile of security.

As soon as Lorry gained his bearings fully he prepared to fell the wretch who was to stand watch. Anguish heard his friend's figure suddenly shoot to an erect position. There was a whirring sound as of disturbed air and then a dull thud. Something rolled over on the ground, and all was still. He was at Lorry's side in an instant.

"I hope I haven't killed him!" whispered Lorry. "Quick! Here is his bottle of ether. Hold it beneath his nose. I am going to pile the body of this guard crosswise on top of him. He will not be able to arise if he should recover consciousness."

All this was done in a moment's time, and the two trackers were headed for the entrance. The gate was ajar two or three feet. With turbulent hearts they stole through.

Without hesitation they crept over the noiseless grass close beside the wall. Directly they heard sounds near at hand. The abductors were binding and chloroforming the guard at the arbor. After waiting for some moments they heard the party glide away in the darkness and followed. The body of the guard was lying just outside the mouth of the arbor, and the odor of chloroform was almost overpowering. Once inside the long arbor, the Americans moved slowly and with greater caution. There was a dim light in a basement window ahead. Toward the front of the castle and in the second story a faint glow came from another window. They guessed it to be from the princess' room or from that of the countess.

At last they saw four figures steal past the dim basement light. One of them halted near the window and three crept away in the darkness. Presently one of them returned, and all activity was at an end for the time being. How near it was to 2 o'clock the watchers could not tell. They only knew that they were within twenty-five feet of Geddos and Ostrom and that they would not have long to wait.

Soon a bright little blaze of light crossed the basement opening. Then it returned, crossing a second time and a third. All was still again. The soft shuffle of a foot, the rustle of arbor vines, and the form of a man crawled up to the window. With inconceivable stealth and carefulness it glided through the aperture, followed by a companion.

Lorry and Anguish were at the opening a second or two later, lying flat on their stomachs and listening for sounds from within. The dim light was still there, the window was open and there was a sound of whispering. Lorry raised his head and peered through, taking calculations while the light made it possible. He saw an open door on the opposite side of the low room, with steps beyond leading upward. Between the window and the door there were no obstacles. Up those steps he saw three men creep, the leader carrying the dim light. The door was left open, doubtless to afford unimpeded exit from the building in case of emergency. Harry Anguish touched Lorry's arm.

"I took the two pistols from that Vienna man out there. We may need them. Here is one for yourself. Go first, Lorry," he whispered.

Lorry stuck the revolver in his coat pocket and gently slid through the window to the floor below. His friend followed, and they paused to listen. Taking Anguish by the hand the other led the way straight to the spot where he remembered seeing the door.

"A sound and you die!" he hissed.

Boldly the two men began the breathless ascent of the stone steps. The top was reached, and far ahead, down a narrow hall, they saw the three men and the dim light moving. Two of them wore uniforms of guards. Keeping close to the wall, their followers crept after them. Up another flight of steps they went and then through a spacious hall. The Americans had no time and no desire to inspect their surroundings. The wide doors at the far side of the room opened softly, and here the trio paused. Down a great marble hallway a dim red light shed its soft glow. It came from the lamp at the foot of the broad staircase.

The cook pointed to the steps and then gave his thumb a jerk toward the left. Without the least sign of fear Geddos and Ostrom glided into the hall and made for the staircase. The watchers could not but feel a thrill of admiration for these daring wretches. But now a new danger confronted them. The cook remained standing in the doorway watching his fellows in crime! How were they to pass him?

There was no time to be lost. The abductors were creeping up the steps already, and the cook must be disposed of. He had blown out the light which he carried and was now a very dim shadow. Lorry glided forward and in an instant stood before the amazed fellow, jamming a pistol into his face.

"A sound and you die!" he hissed.

"Don't move!" came another whisper, and a second revolver touched his ear. The cook, perhaps, did not know their language, but he certainly understood its meaning. He trembled and would have fallen to the floor had not the strong hand of Lorry pinned him to the wall. The hand was on his throat too.

"Chloroform him, Harry, and don't let him make a sound!" whispered the owner of the hand. Anguish's twitching fingers succeeded those of his friend on the cook's throat, his pistol was returned to his pocket, and the little bottle came again into use.

"I'll go ahead. Follow me as soon as you have finished this fellow. Be careful and turn to the left when you come to the top."

Lorry was off across the marble floor, headed for the stairway, and Anguish was left in charge of the cook, of whom he was to make short work. Now came the desperate, uncertain part of the transaction. Suppose he were to meet the two conspirators at the head of the stairs, or in the hall, or that the other traitor, Dannox, should appear to frustrate all. It was the most trying moment in the whole life of the reckless Lorry.

When near the top of the steps, he hugged the high balustrade and cautiously peered ahead. He found himself looking down a long hall, at the far end of which, to his right, a dim light was burning. There was no sound and there was no sign of the two men either to the right or to the left. His heart felt like lead. They evidently had entered the princess' room. How was he to find that room? Slowly he wriggled across the broad, dark hall, straightening up in the shadow of a great post. From this point he edged along the wall for a distance of ten or twelve feet to the left. A sound came from farther down the hall, and he imagined he heard some one approaching.

His hand came in contact with a heavy hanging or tapestry, and he quickly squirmed behind its folds, finding himself against a door which moved as his body touched it. He felt it swing open slightly and drew back, intending to return to the hall, uncertain and very much undecided as to the course to pursue. His revolver was in his hand. Just as he was about to pull aside the curtain a man glided past, quickly followed by another. Providence had kept him from running squarely into them. They were going toward the left, and he realized that they were now approaching the princess' room. How he came to be ahead of them he could not imagine. Again he felt the door move slightly as he pressed against it. The necessity for a partial recovery of his composure before the next and most important step impelled him softly to enter the room for an instant's breath.

Holding to the door, he stood inside and drew himself to his full height, taking a long and tremulous breath. There was no light in the room, but through the door crack to his left came a dim, broad streak. He now knew where he was. This room was next to that in which the princess slept, for had he not seen the light from her window? Perhaps he was now in the room of the Countess Dagmar. Next door! Next door! Even now the daring Geddos and Ostrom were crawling toward the bed of the ruler of Graustark, not twenty feet away. His first impulse was to cross and open the door leading to the next room, surmising that it would be unlocked, but he remembered Anguish, who was doubtless, by this time, stealing up the stairs. They must not be separated, for it would require two steady, cool heads to deal with the villains. It was not one man's work. As he turned to leave the room he thought how wonderfully well they had succeeded in the delicate enterprise so far.

His knees struck the door, and there was a dull thump, not loud in reality, but like the report of a gun to him. A sudden rustle in the darkness of the room, and then a sleepy voice, soft and quick, as of a woman awakening with a start:

"Who is it?"

His heart ceased beating, his body grew stiff and immovable. Again the voice, a touch of alarm in it now:

"Is that you, Dannox?"

She spoke in German, and the voice came from somewhere in front and to his right. He could not answer, could not move. The paralysis of indecision was upon him.

"How is it that the outer door is open?"

This time there was something like a reprimand in the tones, still low. He almost could see the wide open, searching eyes.

Orchestra Director — Arrangements have been completed whereby Prof. Albert Hatch, the well known musician of this city, will have charge and direct the Grand Opera House orchestra during the coming season. Prof. Hatch has been very successful in former years, and on this occasion has made a good move in the selection of a leader. Prof. William J. Steinhauser, a violinist of note, has been engaged and will add strength to the already excellent musical organization. Prof. Steinhauser is a native of Elmira, N. Y., and will arrive in this city some time during the present month.

$3750 Six room dwelling and store room 20x30 feet. A chance for one who wants a home and to go into the retail grocery business. The location for a grocery store is one of the best in the city, being in a closely built up neighborhood with no stores conveniently located. It is sure to command the trade of its district and neighborhood and it is grocery stores located as this is that make the money. Location overcomes the necessity of meeting ruinous competition and with less expenses and with regular trade the merchant prospers when his contemporary in the city's center does five times the business and makes less. The dwelling is modern, containing bath, hot and cold water, sanitary sewer connections, porticos, gas, electric light wiring, china closets, cabinet mantel, etc. This is an opportunity for some one—will it be you? Terms—$750 down; balance $30 monthly.

$1650 Six rooms, slate roof, front, back and side porticos, grained inside, well arranged, comfortable and convenient. Good cellar, drilled well with force pump. Lot 40x100. Commands a fine view, is easy of access, within one minute's walk of north side street car line. It is located one-half square east of the Calcutta road just beyond Riverview cemetery. We have 25 times as many more properties. Call and see us about any or all of them. We will sell on terms to suit your income. Why pay rent when you can own a home? Don't you know that by paying a dollar on each $100 you owe will wipe out the debt and interest in ten years? For instance, fifteen dollars paid monthly for ten years will pay off a $1,500 debt and interest. It's not how much money one spends but how one spends it that makes one's financial weal or woe.

RAILROAD COMMITTEE MET SERVICE BOARD

The Demands of the Railroad Company Remain Practically Unchanged.

The railroad committee of city council, Messrs. Barlow, Bullock and Cannon, held a conference with the service board after the regular session of that body last evening, to discuss the questions involved in the proposed improvements of the C. & P. railroad through this city. The members of the committee, two of whom served in the old council, were thoroughly posted on the situation and the session with the service board was not a lengthy one. It has been announced that a partial agreement was made but that a report will not be prepared until the next meeting of council.

The terms of the settlement will remain practically the same as announced a few days ago, after a meeting of the service board. Objection has been made to the phraseology of the compact, which has been prepared by attorneys for the railroad company, and the document will be submitted to the city solicitor before it is finally acted upon.

The session of the service board was taken up for the most part with the disposal of numerous bills all of which, except that of the Ceramic City Light company, were ordered paid. This bill will be investigated because of a difference in the police reports of the hours certain lights burned and the claim of the company.

Part of the employes of the water works department and some of the street men must wait until next week for their money, as the appropriation made by council has been exhausted. There is plenty of money in the water works fund and another appropriation will be made by council.

Judge Will Be Arbitrator.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 8.—Judge George Gray, who has consented to act as an arbitrator to settle the differences existing between the coal miners and operators in Alabama, left for the south to assume his duties.

Modern Sun Worshipers.

In Europe several persons now sedulously pay homage to the sun, and in a learned journal, entitled L'Ecole Nouvelle, one of them maintains that the sun should be especially honored at Christmas.

"Christmas should be regarded as a festival for the benefit of humanity," he says. "In this way we can once more become united with the Aryans, our ancestors, who worshiped fire and who celebrated the birth of the divine constellation, who is the father of light, of heat and of life."

He then suggests that the following prayer be said daily:

"O thou who causest lies to vanish, who drivest away the evil influence of prodigies, of malignant predictions, of dreams and of wicked apparitions—O thou who bringest to naught the plots of the wicked, to thee we pray, Lord Sun, since thou art the light of the world."

An Orchid Tragedy.

Perhaps Madagascar has claimed more orchid hunters' lives and been the scene of more revolting acts of cruelty than any other place. Some years ago a German orchid fancier, while seeking some specimens in the forests of this island, was captured by some of the native priests, who, after covering him with oil, burned him alive. Another collector who was seized by some of the same priests was allowed to choose between being burned alive or himself setting fire to some fagots on which lay another prisoner, also an orchid collector, and thus saving his own life. He chose the latter alternative and died six months later a lunatic.

Antiquity of Wrestling.

Probably the first authentic record of a wrestling match is in A. D. 1222, when chivalry on the European continent was undergoing a change for the better. During the reign of Henry III. of England a match took place in St. Giles' field, London, between citizens of Westminster and the city of London proper. Wrestling was, however, popular as a pastime in England at a much earlier period, and from that country many of the different styles originated.

He recommends outside closets until permanent improvements can be made. Common sense, instead of the letter of the law, should guide the board in establishing reasonable sanitary condition. He asks prompt action in abating the nuisance in front of his property.

Bills aggregating $142.60 were ordered paid, and an account presented from the Sanitary Reduction company was turned down. The bill was for $300, and was charged for three months' service of the garbage furnace. The clerk was instructed to inform the company that the board would refuse to honor the bill.

The sanitary policeman reported that to the present John Cain and John Q. A. Fowler had failed to abate nuisances after being notified to do so. The officer was instructed to consult the city solicitor, and proceed against the parties.

The drainage on St. George street in the East End was said to be in bad shape. The condition of the street could not be charged up to the property owners, as the thoroughfares had not been properly laid out, and upon the occasion of every freshet the water accumulated and laid about in pools. The clerk was instructed to communicate with the service board with a view of changing the construction of the gutters.

The condition of Alex Chafin's addition in the East End was reported intolerable, and it was asked that numerous nuisances be ordered abated at once. The sanitary policeman will take the same action under the direction of the city solicitor as has been specified before.

The report of the health officer showed that during the month of July the number of births was: Males, 16; females, 27. Deaths—males, 3; females, 8. Three cases of scarlet fever were reported during the month, none of which proved fatal; also three cases of chicken pox.

THE AMERICAN OF THE FUTURE

May Be Radically Different on Account of Immigration.

PERCENTAGE OF ALIENS

Not As Great Now As Formerly, on Account of Increased Population. The New Arrivals, Their Nature and Nativity—A Fusion of Races.

One out of every 95 persons in the United States today came from foreign lands within a year, to stay here indefinitely and make this country his home, at least for the present. In the fiscal year ending with June 30, 1882, one immigrant came for every 67 residents. The number of home-seekers then was less by about 68,000 than it was in the last 12 months, but 21 years ago the population of the United States was not within 30,000,000 of the present total.

It is well to consider the wonderful immigration record of the last fiscal year with this fact clearly fixed in mind. It shows that although all earlier figures were surpassed decisively the addition to the great multitude of Americans, native-born or naturalized and amalgamated, was relative smaller than it had been in several other years when the country was much less thoroughly developed and not nearly so well occupied. As far back as 1850 one immigrant came to the United States for every 60 people then in the country, and the immigration of the fiscal year just ended was smaller, in proportion to the population, than the inflow of foreigners in any one of 10 equal periods, most of them half a century back in the history of the great republic.

Hence no one need fear that the coming of more than 857,000 foreigners hoping to establish themselves in American homes will disrupt or revolutionize the character of the American people or their institutions. The American nation might absorb and assimilate 1,250,000 immigrants in a single year with less strain and risk than the coming of 375,000 annually implied in the early fifties of the nineteenth century. But that immigration of half a century ago was a grave problem. There is a world of power and vital influence in the immigration of the last fiscal year, but it is relative as one to one hundred or more. The overwhelming mass of the population remains very American.

But from any point of view the coming of nearly a million natives of many lands to make their homes in the United States is an event of the highest interest. It is far more important than almost any other news of the day. It means tremendous national growth and a good deal of national change, not suddenly and violently, but in blood and temperament and in the varied characteristics of the American people. The fact that the immigration of the last fiscal year was about 68,000 in excess of any previous record for an equal period and more than 210,000 above the figures for the preceding year, is also proof o. the most convincing kind that the country has been very prosperous, not only for the rich few, but for the multitudes who live by the toil of their hands.

No other land compares well with the United States as a magnet for home-seekers. Canada and the Argentine Republic, Australia and Brazil, have more unoccupied and reasonably fertile soil, but not one of these countries of small population and large natural resources draws from the crowded hives of toil and poverty in the Old World as America does. The great republic is the greatest hope of the oppressed and the unfortunate of Europe, just as it has been for many generations. This is one of the risks and burdens entailed by American prosperity, and so far congress has considered it best to face the chances of inflowing life, however great.

The parts of Europe which have been feeling the attraction of America most strongly in the last year are not the nations from which most of the home-seekers of 20 years ago started in their search of happiness and fortune. Then Germany, the British Isles and the Scandinavian Peninsula were the chief sources of emigration to the United States. In the last fiscal year the Italians came 230,000 strong, and the Austro-Hungarian empire sent more than 206,000 of its people. About 136,000 left the dominions of the czar. Here are 572,000 immigrants out of a total of 857,000, leaving only 285,000 for the rest of the world, and Asia contributed 30,000 to the total.

These facts mean much. They show a strong movement toward changing the American people from a nation almost wholly of North European origin to one which may be quite a complete fusion of the principal races and nationalities of Europe. The countries of the watershed of the Mediterranean and the Black Sea are furnishing a great share of the immigrants now, and the vast majority come from lands east and south of the states which were the early builders of the white man's America. The Latins and the Slavs are going to play an important part in making the American republic of the future what it is destined to be.

This means a warmer temperament, more love of color and gayety, more passion, and more inclination toward art and music. It tends to strengthen the Catholic church beyond all other religious bodies. Not less than 550,000 immigrants of the last 12 months seem to have been adherents of the Roman Catholic church. About 160,000 were Protestants. The rest were Jews Greek Catholics, Buddhists and believers in various otner religions.

The Latins and the Slavs will apparently lower the average stature of the American people a little, but they will not lessen its weight or strength. They will tend to increase the proportion of dark-haired Americans, and they will probably make the patriotism of the future American nation even more passionate and intense than that of the earlier America. There is great capacity for fervid feeling in the races which are pouring into the ports of the United States in these prosperous times.

Altogether, the future America may be all the more interesting, varied, many-sided and imposing for the vast river of new blood and novel customs and ideas flowing into the country which is destined to remain for ages the chief hope of human progress, the pride of lovers of freedom, the magnet drawing to its ports the troubled and the ambitious of less favored lands. But the change must not be too rapid. It is time to think of floodgates to check the tide.

THOUSANDS WILL GO FROM BUCKEYE STATE

Ohio G. A. R. Will Be Strongly Represented at San Francisco Encampment.

Salem, August 8. — Commander Yengling says about 3,000 Ohio people will attend the national encampment at San Francisco, and that 400 or more will go on the special train which leaves this city Tuesday morning.

The department of Ohio will take up their headquarters in San Francisco at the Palace hotel, which has already been decorated at the expense of the department. Ohio will be entitled to 35 delegates at the encampment from each of the 35 districts and one delegate at large from the department commander and his staff who are delegates by virtue of their office. Commander Yengling has appointed about 3,000 aides who expect to attend. Memorial post No. 41, of Cleveland, will be the commander's escort during the encampment. They will lead the Ohio delegation in the parade, which will be one of the principal attractions to the public. The department banner will be taken and will be used in decorating the state headquarters.

Ohio has no aspirants to national honors and the delegates go uninstructed. D. S. Wilder, of Columbus, will be the delegate at large. Ohio has 599 posts and 27,200 members.

The W. R. C. special will leave Lima Tuesday morning and will join the G. A. R. special at Colorado Springs, Col. It is under command of J. Corey Winans, of Troy, O. Sarah D. Winans, of Toledo, is a candidate for national president.

Circling the Globe In Record Time.

Seattle, Aug. 8.—According to a cable J. W. Sayer, who is traveling around the world for the Seattle Times in an effort to break the best previous record, sailed from Germany on the steamer Campania and will reach Seattle in just 55 days after he left. If he makes it in this time he will have broken the world's record of 60 days, 16½ hours, made by Charles C. Fitzmorris, before the completion of the trans-Siberian railway.

Strikers Rioting in Russia.

Kieff, Russia, Aug. 8.—The disturbances were again renewed, the strikers parading the town, breaking windows, invading workshops and compelling workmen to join them. The Cossacks fired upon a crowd on the bank of the Dnieper after they had been assailed by a shower of stones. Several were wounded. The tramways have suspended and bakeries are closed. The price of bread is rising.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me. MRS. J. W. COOLBAUGH, Milo Center, N. Y.

ARMY CAREER CLOSED

Lieutenant General Miles Retires from Active Service Today.

GEN. YOUNG TO ASSUME DUTIES

Parting Words from Retiring Commander—The Army in the Past and Its Welfare in the Future—Glorious Example Set by Washington.

Washington, Aug. 8.—Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, commanding the army, will retire from active service at noon, having reached the age limit of 64 years.

Orders have been issued assigning Lieutenant General Young to the command of the army until Aug. 15, when he will assume the duties of chief of staff; assigning Major General Corbin as president of the soldiers' home board; Brigadier General Gillespie as president of the board of ordnance and fortification, and assigning Lieutenant General Young as a member of the Sherman statute commission.

Miles' Parting Words.

In relinquishing the command of the army of the United States to which he was assigned by the president, Oct. 2, 1895, he hereby acknowledges his appreciation of the fidelity manifested by the officers and soldiers during the past eventful years.

To those who were his companions and associates during one of the greatest of all wars he takes pleasure in expressing his gratification that they have lived through the trials and dangers of long service to witness the results of their fortitude, heroism and unselfish devotion to the welfare of their country. They have also in a most commendable manner exemplified to the younger generation of soldiers those principles of discipline and patriotism which make the army the protector and defender, and never the menace, of the nation and its liberties.

Perfect Soldier a True Citizen.

Unswerving devotion to our government and the principles upon which it was established and has been maintained is essential to the efficiency of the national forces, and especially is this so in a democratic government where the individual, in order to be a perfect soldier, must first be a true citizen. The boast that every soldier of a great nation carried a marshal's baton in his knapsack is in a higher sense more than equaled in significance by the fact that every American soldier personifies sovereign citizenship and may by his own conduct exemplify impartial justice to those who have never experienced it and the results of the highest liberty to those who have been strangers to it.

During the darkest hour of our history the first commander of the American forces demonstrated the grandeur and nobility of his character by combating the evil influences then pervading the army and by manifesting the strongest confidence and faith in the ultimate justice and integrity of his government. His words of wisdom uttered at Newburg 120 years ago had the effect of inspiring "unexampled patriotism and patient virtue, rising superior to the pressure of the most complicated sufferings." It is one of the glories of our country that the army has maintained those principles for more than a century.

Host of Enemies Encountered.

In the discharge of its manifold duties the army has confronted enemies representing every stage of human development from the highest civilization yet obtained to savagery and barbarism. It has ever been its duty to observe in war those chivalric and human principles by which inevitable horrors are so greatly mitigated, while by unyielding prosecution of warfare against armed forces its valor has been demonstrated.

All honorable activity and life for the army must exist within the well-defined lines of patriotism, untarnished honor, sterling integrity, impartial justice, obedience to rightful authority and incessant warfare against armed enemies. Always to maintain truth, honor and justice requires the highest moral courage, and is equally as important as fortitude in battle. Drill, discipline and instruction are but preparatory for the perfection and efficiency of the army.

Must Exemplify Country's Principles.

The events of recent years have placed upon the army a new obligation. The United States army is now brought into daily communication with millions of people to whom its individual members of every grade are the exponents of American civilization. A serious duty and a great honor are now presented to every officer and soldier—namely, to exemplify to those with whom he comes into contact our country's principles of equal and exact justice, immunity from violence, equality before the law and the peaceful use and possession of his own.

Marked changes at different times have occurred in strength and organization of the army, resulting from diverse influences, and various experiments have been tried. Time has rectified errors in the past and will do so in the future. The lieutenant general has faith that under all circumstances the army will maintain its high character and that its future will be as honorable and glorious as has been its history in the past. His earnest solicitude and best wishes will ever follow the fortunes of the army.

In the World of Baseball

Rapid Thinkers Make the Best Ball Players. Story of an Unassisted Double Play That Surprised the Cincinnatis ∴ Doyle and McCarthy.

Quick wit counts in baseball as much as in any other sport. The man who can take in the whole situation at a glance and at the same instant suit his actions to his thought will win games where an equally good player who does not think will lose them.

Here is an instance which stands alone in all the annals of baseball—with a single exception:

In the days when the Cincinnati Reds were at the top of the heap they went to Wilmington, O., to play an exhibition game. The Wilmington team was made up entirely of amateur players. The Wilmington pitcher was a young chap named David Reese and the Wilmington second base man was a college boy named Lynne Smith. It was young Smith who turned out to be the hero of one of the most sensational plays ever made in the national game.

The Reds went to the little town in the full flush of success, determined to have a lot of sport with the local players. The Reds won the toss and went to bat. Young Reese, the Wilmington pitcher, was a first class amateur, but naturally he was badly rattled at the idea of facing the best team in the National league, and for the first few minutes his work was poor.

The first two of the Reds who went to bat hit base hits. The third man got a base on balls, and everybody on the Cincinnati nine began to grin broadly at the fun ahead. All the bases were full, and there was nobody out. It was a huge snap—a regular picnic.

PITCHER WICKER, A STAR OF THE CHICAGO NATIONALS.

Then old Bug Holiday, the fourth man on the batting list of the Reds, picked up his club and sauntered up to the plate, blood in his eye. The first ball young Reese pitched Bug struck at. What is more, he hit it and sent the ball flying straight out over second base—a hit that under most circumstances would have been good for a couple of bases.

The minute the ball left Bug's bat all three of the men on bases started at the top of their speed for the next base. But they figured without their host.

Young Lynne Smith, second base man for Wilmington, was equal to the emergency. He jumped straight up into the air and made a desperate lunge at the ball with his right hand. The ball stuck, and when he came down Smith lit with both feet fairly on the second bag. That put two men out—the batter and the base runner who had just started for third.

But young Smith was not yet satisfied. Without the hesitation of a moment—which would have been fatal—he started on the dead run for first base, and, unassisted, caught and touched out the base runner who had started from first to second when Bug made his hit. So, all alone and without assistance of any kind, young Smith made a record which is unique among ball players.

The triple play seemed to take all the starch out of the Reds. It also had the effect of steadying down the Wilmington team and giving them sufficient nerve and courage to play to the best of their ability.

Reese, the scrub pitcher, struck out a lot of the Reds' best batters, and at the end of the game the famous players from Cincinnati had to go home with a score of 4 to 2 against them.

It is, of course, easy to say that young Smith's wonderful catch was only a fluke. Perhaps it was. Admitting that, and admitting further that his coming down squarely on second base with both feet was a piece of good luck, it must still be admitted that it took quick and cool thinking to lead him, the minute he struck the ground, to start after the runner from first, instead of throwing the ball to home, which nine out of ten players would have been certain to do.

Here is the story of a bit of quick baseball thinking which resulted in turning Jack Doyle of the old New York team and now with Brooklyn against his best friend, Tom McCarthy, perhaps the surest thrower and one of the quickest fielders who ever played in the National league:

Boston and New York were playing in the latter city and Doyle was at bat for New York. New York had men on first and second. Tom Brown was the base runner on second, and he was famous as one of the fastest and most daring runners in the game. Tom McCarthy was out in the left garden for Boston.

Doyle lined out a sharp grounder into left field. McCarthy ran up on it, scooped it with one hand and without stopping to look or even to gather himself together sent the ball sailing in to first base.

Ninety-nine fielders out of a hundred would have thrown the ball home in order to cut off the runner, particularly when a fast man like Tom Brown had been on second when the ball was hit. Doyle naturally figured that McCarthy would follow the rule, as he overran first thirty feet on his way to second and was caught far off the base when he tried to get back. Brown meanwhile had stopped after overrunning third in fear of the natural throw home, and no run was scored. The next man to bat flew out, and the game was over, with Boston a winner by one run.

As McCarthy came in from field Doyle met him and in something of a huff asked why on earth McCarthy had thrown to first instead of putting the ball home, which would have been the proper thing to do.

"Just because I knew that everybody would think that was the proper thing to do," answered McCarthy. "Tom Brown, I knew, was well aware that I am a good thrower, and he would stop after turning third to see if I was socking it home, and you, I figured out, would run past first with the idea of getting to second while the ball was on its way to the plate. I won by doing just exactly what nobody expected me to do."

But Doyle declared that McCarthy had taken an unfair advantage of him, and the relations between the two never got back to the old friendly footing.

One of the features of the baseball season has been the effective twirling of Pitcher Wicker of the Chicago Nationals. President Hart's men have been playing a good game, and were enabled to take the lead in the pennant race early in the season owing to the snappy work of their infield and the able performances of their slab artists. Wicker is cool and heady, and is one of the comparatively young men of the game. He has defeated Brooklyn and other heavy hitting aggregations, and will bear watching. A wicked out drop is his mainstay.

Race Horses In Indiana.

There are fifty horses in training at the Frankfort (Ind.) track. The management has spent nearly $2,000 on the track and now has one of the best in the middle west. The same amount has been expended on the Logansport track, and forty horses are taking their work there. Both places are in the Gas Belt circuit.

The following description of Ruskin at home is from the life of the great apostle of beauty by Frederic Harrison in the English Men of Letters Series:

Not only was he in social intercourse one of the most courteous and sweetest of friends, but he was in manner one of the most fascinating and impressive beings whom I ever met. I have talked with Carlyle and Tennyson, with Victor Hugo and Mazzini, with Garibaldi and Gambetta, with John Bright and Robert Browning, but no one of these ever impressed me more vividly with a sense of intense personality, with the inexplicable light of genius that seemed to well up spontaneously from heart and brain. It remains a psychological puzzle how one who could write with passion and scorn such as Carlyle and Byron never reached, who in print was so often Athenasius contra mundum, who opened every written assertion with "I know," was in private life one of the gentlest, gayest, humblest of men.

How a Rat Stole Bulbs.

M. de Parville, a well known French naturalist, told a remarkable story about a rat in the Journal des Debats. A gardener planted one afternoon 250 tulip bulbs on a terrace, and next morning he noticed that the ground had been disturbed and that they had all been taken away. He was confident that rats had done the work, and, taking a spade, he began to dig in the hope of discovering their nest. Soon he unearthed a large female rat, which he killed, and after digging a few more minutes he discovered an underground chamber lined with hay and leaves and connected by a corridor with two holes, which were evidently used as storehouses, for in them he found the 250 tulip bulbs. This was remarkable, but more remarkable was the fact that they were neatly arranged in two rows and that not one of them had been gnawed or otherwise injured.

What He Didn't Mean.

Miss S. (stiffly)—That is not very complimentary to me, Mr. Blunder.

Mr. B. (confusedly)—I—didn't mean that. I—I mean you look as young as your mother.

REAL ENJOYMENT.

The woman who reads this will understand to the full what Mrs. Tipton meant when she says: "I am enjoying good health." It takes a person who has been made wretched by sickness to understand the joy of health.

There are very many women who suffer as did Mrs. Tipton, who might be cured as she was by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

"It is with pleasure I recommend Dr. Pierce's medicine," writes Mrs. Nora Tipton of Cropper (Cropper Station), Shelby Co., Kentucky. "You remember my case was one of female weakness and weak lungs. I had no appetite and would often spit blood, was confined to my bed almost half of the time and could hardly stand on my feet at times for the pains through my whole body and system. My husband had to pay large doctor bills for me, but since I have taken four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, four of 'Favorite Prescription' and three vials of 'Pleasant Pellets' we haven't paid any more doctor bills. It had been seven months since I stopped using Dr. Pierce's medicines and I have been enjoying good health all the time. I can never praise these medicines too highly, for I have received so much benefit. I pray that many who suffer as I did will take Dr. Pierce's medicines. I am sure they will never fail to cure when given a fair trial. Everybody tells me I look better than they ever saw me. I am sure I feel better than I ever did before."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a ladies' laxative. No other medicine equals them for gentleness and thoroughness.

By ANNE FITZHUGH MACLEAN

IV.—The Clergyman of Romance.

BETWEEN literature and the church there is a mutual debt. The fact that the balance of obligation is on the side of the church does not make its portion of the debt less real, for despite much holding up of clergymen and their flocks to ridicule—indeed, partly through that very means—novelists have shown a zeal for the welfare of the church, even, as is but too often the case, when they are not themselves inside the fold.

The artistic mind—that is, the mind of every writer born for his work—has a natural disinclination toward form and convention. It is frequently deeply devotional without recognizing the necessity for the institutions of religion. At the same time the artistic mind should by its very nature see more clearly than others into the heart of vital truth; consequently, if from one point of view the novelist is in danger of undervaluing the religious life, he should from another and a higher view be able to value it with peculiar justness.

The church fills an immense place in fiction. So deep rooted and widespread is its use that a body of fiction without the ecclesiastical element is hard to imagine. The dramatic possibilities of the priesthood, with its monasticism, its obedience, its inviolate confession, have been developed in every conceivable direction.

To the unspeakable corruption attributed to this clergy in mediæval Italian romance, to the cunning and merciless fanaticism charged against it by Eugene Sue and his like, has succeeded a conception of a priesthood true to its vows of chastity, obedience and poverty and exceeding its vows in voluntary self renunciation. Fiction, as has often been said, exaggerates what it deals with, as a statue must be exaggerated to appear of normal size. We do not believe that all priests are unselfish, heroic and pure because they are thus represented today any more than we believe that all were degraded or cruelly fanatic because we find them so described in the fiction of certain periods. But it cannot be doubted that the change in novelists' conception of the priesthood indicates a similar change in the standard of life and character of the priesthood as a whole.

Charlotte Bronte.
[Whose ineffectual, undersized curates gave her fame.]

As the Romish clergy have contributed to the dramatic needs of fiction so have the English clergy been interwoven with the social and domestic life of English stories, and as the priest was once portrayed as a jolly libertine or a cunning bigot so there was an accepted idea of the Anglican cleric.

No hypocrite he, but an open worldling, free in the use of wine and strong language, fond of his ease and of fox hunting and acquit of his ministerial duties when he had raced through two brief Sunday services and done all the baptizing, marrying and burying that was thrust upon him. The really contemptible variety of him was the domestic chaplain, who groveled at the feet of the great and was thankful to retain his seat at the nobleman's table at whatever cost of self abasement. When dissent was ripe for the novelist, the dissenting parson was eagerly seized upon as an opportunity for a new type.

These three types have been gradually replaced by very different characterizations, but one unfortunate order remains still an object of derision—the curates. How long will they continue to furnish story tellers with ineffectual, undersized young men who fall hopelessly in love with the highborn beauty of the parish and provide a foil for the tall and virile hero? Through them Charlotte Bronte attained the summit of her fame, and, hard as it is upon the curates, it must be admitted that her portraits were not imaginary. Doubtless, however, she saw the originals as she saw most things, with a passionate intensity that enlarged the characteristic upon which her vision fixed and minimized its modifying features. Bishops have been favored almost as much as curates have been derided, which is hopeful for the lesser order, as are not all curates potential bishops?

There is a goodly company of ideal bishops in fiction of whom the dear and adorable bishop in "Les Miserables" is chief and best. Among living writers Hall Caine has given us in "The Deemster" a notable prelate, though the heartbreaking pathos of his story makes it too painful to read with enjoyment. A less sane and admirable creation is the young minister, Ewan, in the same story, a cleric of a morbid type fast passing out of fiction. Anthony Trollope's parsons are so numerous and so varied in their motives and characters that they form a little world in themselves. Of them he says: "I trust that I shall not be thought to scoff at the pulpit, though some may imagine that I do not feel all the respect that is due to the cloth. I may question the infallibility of the teachers, but I hope that I shall not therefore be accused of doubt as to the thing taught."

This, too, was Thackeray's standpoint. His veneration for the thing taught made him hard upon insincerity in the teachers, and, as Trollope says of him, he was not cynical, but only necessarily severe in "Clerical Snobs" and in his bold delineation of "the Rev. Bute Crawley, the horse racing rector, and others. When this is done with sympathy, as is pre-eminently the case with George Eliot, when there is discrimination between vice and mere human weakness, it is undoubtedly for the good, not for the injury, of institutional religion. Thackeray himself says, though the words may be slightly different, "God forbid that any words of mine should do harm to the church!"

George Eliot had a calmer, wider vision than Charlotte Bronte and a deeper vision than Thackeray and Trollope. She saw in the ministry all manner of men and bore noble testimony to much that she saw in such delineations as Mr. Irwine in "Adam Bede," Mr. Tryan in "Janet's Repentance" and Mr. Lyon in "Felix Holt." She has given us the holder of the sacred office as rabbi, Romish priest, English clergyman, Methodist sister and independent parson and always with a marvelous, impartial insight. Whose heart has not ached with the commonplace heart of the Rev. Amos Barton, with his ill adjusted family and income, "a man whose nature it was not to be superlative in anything unless indeed he was superlatively middling, the quintessential extract of mediocrity," and ached yet more with his exquisitely drawn wife in the dreary realism of her sorrows?

Then there is Dinah, a sort of prophetic apotheosis of the Salvation Army girl. Very different in its delightful and kindly humor is the contrasting, in "Felix Holt," of the two ministerial types, the independent parson and the two English churchmen, rector and curate. In connection with her skill George Eliot's modesty is interesting when she says in apology for the imperfections of her clerical personages: "My strongest effort is to avoid any arbitrary picture and to give a faithful account of men and things as they have mirrored themselves in my mind. The mirror is doubtless defective, the outlines will sometimes be disturbed, the reflection faint or confused, but I feel as much bound to tell you as precisely as I can what that reflection is as if I were in the witness box narrating my experience on oath."

In American letters the preacher has long been a popular figure, but "The Scarlet Letter" is still the most powerful and successful study of the mind of a man in holy office. It is a unique conception, not to be easily classified.

The late popular ministerial hero, John Storm, Dean Maitland, the several finely drawn priests in "Helbeck of Bannisdale" and "Eleanor," the distinct individualities of the Scotch pastors for whom we are indebted to Barrie, Ian Maclaren and many others—all indicate an increase in public respect for the holy calling and a demand for consistent living on the part of those who profess to teach the truth. Today the unworthy clergyman is the exception, and his unworthiness is not proclaimed as implying the unworthiness of the church he represents.

The actively bad priest or parson had in fiction a successor who, though less pestilential, could have been scarcely more effectual in aiding the cause of practical religion. With effeminacy as his chief characteristic, it was he who gave foundation to the description of the clergy as "the third sex." To him in turn succeeded the honest doubter, whose doubt itself was a relief after the timid, unhealthy, thin blooded piety of his predecessors.

A few years ago there was no theme more popular than this—the clergyman who questioned his own teachings. "Robert Elsmere" was but the strongest of a multitude of books with kindred motive. Latterly the young clergyman has settled his doubts or left the pulpit with them.

The time has indeed passed when the clergy could be spoken of with applause as "the third sex." Today two types predominate. One is the representative of "muscular Christianity," the red blooded "man among men," who bases his life upon the doctrine that he is a man and nothing that pertains to men is indifferent to him. He takes a hand in public affairs if need arises, he can use his fists to good purpose, and his aspiration is to be an exemplar of religion in practical working.

The piety of the other popular type is less robust in appearance, but not in fact. He endures privation that he may have to give to them that need, and while leading the life of an ascetic he does for his people the work of two men. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps gives us a fine embodiment of this conception in "A Singular Life."

In books the ascetic clergyman generally dies of some wasting disease, and I doubt not in life also of innutrition, for no man can keep his bodily machine at high pressure and deny the furnace necessary fuel.

Margaret Deland's clergymen are endowed with her favorite virtue—common sense—and are so natural and human that we all recognize them among our own ministerial acquaintances. There are some such comfortable counselors in life as her Dr. Lavendar. Would there were more!

Mrs. Emmons, saved from an operation for Ovaritis, tells how she was cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I am so pleased with the results I obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I feel it a duty and a privilege to write you about it.

"I suffered for over five years with ovarian troubles, causing an unpleasant discharge, a great weakness, and at times a faintness would come over me which no amount of medicine, diet, or exercise seemed to correct. Your Vegetable Compound found the weak spot, however, within a few weeks—and saved me from an operation—all my troubles had disappeared, and I found myself once more healthy and well. Words fail to describe the real, true grateful feeling that is in my heart, and I want to tell every sick and suffering sister. Don't dally with medicines you know nothing about, but take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and take my word for it, you will be a different woman in a short time."—MRS. LAURA EMMONS, Walkerville, Ont.

Go Prepared.

In preparing for your summer outing a little forethought may save you no end of trouble. Mr. John H. Manly, a dry goods merchant, of Bellville, R. I., while packing an outfit for camping a few weeks on Narragansett Bay, put in a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for emergency use. The second day in camp his little boy was taken with cramp colic. The first dose of this remedy gave relief and the second dose effected a cure. Think of the pain and suffering this boy would have had to endure without this remedy at hand to relieve him. Such cases often result fatally. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger.

Engineer Held Responsible.

In discussing the question of responsibility for the horror, the railroad officials unhesitatingly lay it to Engineer Probst of the second section of the train whose home is in Battle Creek. Probst says that the airbrake on his train refused to work, but the officials declare that he could have stopped the train in time to have avoided serious consequences. General Manager F. H. McGuigan said:

"Probst knew that he was coming into a yard where trains usually stand and take on coal and water. The rules say plainly that engineers shall approach such yards with their trains under control. A brakeman sent back by the first train warned him of the danger three-quarters of a mile before he got to the standing section. For nearly half a mile before he got to the first train the track is straight and clear, and he should have been able to see the red light on the back of the train ahead in time to stop his train. Of course he, like anyone else, will try to avoid such a dreadful responsibility."

Airbrakes Apparently All Right.

The official report on the accident, issued by Superintendent Brownlee, declares positively that the airbrakes have been tested since the accident and found to be in perfect condition and there is evidence that they were not applied.

One of the officials in discussing the accident and its causes says that he believed Engineer Probst had exhausted his air in checking his train several times between Lansing and Durand and failed to again charge his tank. The head brakeman and fireman, who were on the engine, bear out Engineer Probst's statement that the brakes refused to work.

The bodies of the dead have been placed in caskets and are being shipped to their homes as rapidly as possible. The injured who are still here at the temporary hospital, in the Hotel Richelieu, are those suffering from lesser hurts, the seriously wounded being removed to Detroit.

The Grand Trunk tracks have been cleared and the officials of the road place their loss at $4,700.

Epidemic of Rabies Reported.

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The alarming outbreak of rabies in the town of Montgomery, this county, has caused the state department of agriculture to take decisive action. Twenty-two cows are already dead of the disease. Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture E. J. Preston says about 200 dogs have been killed in Montgomery during the past few days.

If any bill passed by both houses of the general assembly and presented to the governor contains two or more sections, or two or more items of appropriation of money, he may object to one or more of said sections or to one or more of said items of appropriation of money, and approve the other portion of said bill, in which case said approved portion may be signed and then shall be law; and such section or sections item or items of appropriation of money objected to shall be returned within the time and in the manner prescribed for, and shall be separately reconsidered as in the case of, a whole bill; but if final adjournment of the general assembly prevents such return the governor shall file said section or sections, item or items of appropriation of money, together with his objection thereto in writing, with the secretary of state as in the case of a whole bill, and the secretary of state shall then make public said fact, but shall not further act as in the case of a whole bill."

PIUS X., THE NEW POPE

IN April, 1902, when the late Pope Leo XIII. was in practically perfect health and there was no probability that his brilliant reign would be so soon cut short by the grim reaper, the pontiff remarked in a serious conversation with Father Perosi, the Italian priest whose musical compositions have made him famous the world over, that he was convinced that his successor would be Cardinal Sarto, the patriarch of Venice. When the recent conclave went into session there seemed little probability that Leo's prophecy would be fulfilled, for Rampolla seemed to have an almost commanding lead among the members of the college of cardinals, with Oreglia, Gotti and Serafino Vannutelli as strong possibilities. Besides these, there were several others who were thought to be likely candidates in case the rivalry among the leaders should become so intense as to make the election of any one of them impossible. But Sarto's name was scarcely mentioned except among the most reverent who remembered the prediction of Pope Leo and those who were mindful of the popularity in the Catholic church of Cardinal Sarto, which by many was regarded as being second not even to that of Leo himself. Cardinal Sarto, now Pope Pius X., evidently did not seriously consider himself as one of the papabili, for the evening before his election he declared, in speaking to a friend who had suggested that he might be the next pope, that when he started for Rome from Venice he had bought a return ticket. But the unexpected has happened, and Leo's prediction has been fulfilled—Cardinal Sarto is Pope Pius X., and the Roman Catholic church is satisfied that the progress made during the reign of Leo XIII. is to be continued and perhaps amplified under the administration of the present pontiff.

Pope Leo's prediction was considered remarkable by reason of the fact that because of Sarto's position with reference to a modus vivendi between the church and the state he seemed to be on that important point directly opposed to Leo. For instance, Cardinal Sarto publicly announced his joy when there were strong probabilities of a union between church and state, and his accession to the pontificate has long been regarded in certain quarters as the solution of the Roman problem so long unsolved and so long a cause of dissension over all Italy, to say nothing of its bearing upon the attitude of other Catholic countries. Cardinal Sarto is noted for his prudence, having never meddled with politics, and for extreme independence. He is also a patron of the arts, and launched Father Lorenzo Perosi, the celebrated priest composer.

The cardinal is recognized as one of the most learned men in the church. He is a stickler for the exact truth as between the church and the people, and won much renown some years ago by destroying certain relics of doubtful authenticity. He brings to his high office a character of most attractive modesty, unusual energy in the direction of matters large and small, the talents of a fine administrative officer and the first qualities of an organizer. In addition to his abilities and his undoubted Christian character, the cardinal is, from the sweetness of his nature, beloved by many millions of people. It is certain that no prelate would have a more enthusiastic sanction from the laity.

Pope Pius X. is sixty-eight years old. He was born at Riese, in the province of Venice, and was educated in the Salesian institute at Cottolengo, founded by the famous Dom Bosco. He was always of a serious turn of mind and when a young man his rector said to him that he had "never been a child."

Cardinal Sarto was not "discovered" until he had reached middle age. He was a parish priest in the province of Venice for the most of his years and finally became a bishop. His high executive qualities and unexcelled learning became known soon after his elevation and were recognized by the authorities of the church. It was not until 1893 that he was created a cardinal, at which time he was also named as patriarch of Venice. Thus the modest but able parish priest became the head of the province in which he had served so many years in a lowly position. His selection was made by the consistory of 1893, which was compelled to sue the throne for the privilege of installing him as patriarch of Venice. In return for this concession, which was made through Premier Crispi, the church appointed an ecclesiastical vicar apostolic in northeastern Africa to assist the premier in his pet scheme of extending the African colonies.

Cardinal Sarto had not been in office more than a year before he publicly declared for a union between church and state, speaking in no uncertain way. His utterances created a great sensation, and it was felt that he might have offended the holy father by the fervor of his words. Apparently he received the silent approbation of the pope, in whose estimation he ever held a firm place.

It was said at the time that Cardinal Sarto made his public announcement that the Austrian and Prussian ambassadors at the Vatican were endeavoring to induce the papal authorities to agree to a modus vivendi. Emperor Francis Joseph is reported to have written several letters to the pope with this end in view, and Emperor William of Germany is said to have been equally anxious to bring about an understanding between the Vatican and the Italian government.

For more than three decades a gulf has yawned between the rival palaces of king and pope, a gulf material and political. For thirty-five years—since the Italians battered down the massive walls near the old Porta Pia—earnest men and noble women of all parties have been dreaming and hoping that the mighty breach between victors and vanquished might in some way be closed.

It was said of Pope Leo that in 1878, when he had just succeeded Pope Pius IX., he longed for some amicable arrangement with the Italians, but if he did reasons of state outweighed his private wish. He was silent, and thus pledged himself to the no compromise party.

It is strange that while Sarto was never seriously considered by the public at large or by the ordinary press correspondents as a papal probability, his availability was commented upon by the really thoughtful writers more frequently than that of any other cardinal. As an example, a special correspondent of a prominent American daily last April wrote as follows to his paper concerning Cardinal Sarto and the papacy:

"It is Cardinal Guiseppe Sarto, the patriarch of Venice, the friend and patron of Abbe Perosi, the composer, who is at the present moment regarded not only throughout Italy, but likewise in the principal capitals of Europe, as destined to become the next pope. So little has been heard of him until now in connection with the papal succession that he may be regarded in the light of a dark horse in the race, which is perhaps due to the fact that he rarely goes to Rome, that he has never been a resident of the Eternal City, and that from the time of his being appointed vicar general of the diocese of Treviso until now he has held steadily aloof from all the projects of the curia.

"The vast majority of the Italian cardinals, and especially those who, forming part of the curia, are established in the Eternal City, have won their promotion to the sacred college as members of the diplomatic service of the papacy rather than as priests. And when a prelate has spent the greater portion of his life in diplomacy, and has found it the stepping stone to high honors, it naturally leaves him at the close of his career as representative of the Vatican abroad, with a greater cleaning toward statecraft than toward the administrative and doctrinal duties of his office at Rome. Many persons declare that it is imperative that the next pontiff should be a prelate who would devote his entire energies to reforms of an administrative and economic character, and likewise to the more rigid enforcement of the doctrines and discipline of the church.

"Cardinal Sarto, the patriarch of Venice, is the man of all others who fills these requirements. He is probably the most able adminstrator of the Italian episcopacy, combines firmness and determination with abundant tact and common sense, and has managed to institute a number of very practical reforms in his archdiocese of Venice without giving offense either to the clergy or to the laity. He avoids all newspaper notoriety. Indeed, his name is rarely mentioned in the press. He has always understood how to maintain an agreeable yet dignified modus vivendi with the Italian authorities, from whom he derives his stipend, and has shown his enlightenment by the vigorous campaign which he has carried on against the veneration of relics of questionable authenticity. He is on friendly terms with the members of the reigning house of Italy, during the late reign took part with King Humbert and Queen Margherita in the launching of a man-of-war at Venice, as well as in other state ceremonies at which they were present, and would certainly be a most agreeable choice as pope to the present ruler of Italy. He is just sixty-eight years old, which will be in his favor in the eyes of the conclave, since, as a general rule, that number of years constitutes a guarantee that the pontificate will not be of undue length."

PREPARATIONS FOR CORONATION

Thousands Awaiting Sunday's Ceremonies—Don Carlos Sanguine. Herrero Out of Danger.

Rome, Aug. 8.—St. Peter's is closed while preparations for the coronation Sunday is proceeding. Pope Pius X. has expressed a desire to have as many of the humble members of the faith as possible admitted and 50,000 tickets will be distributed. The remainder of the seats will be reserved for distinguished guests. Only two galleries have been erected, one for the diplomatic body and one for the Roman aristocracy.

Thousands are already leaving the Venetian provinces to attend the coronation of "their pope." The papal master of ceremonies has issued the invitations to the archbishops and bishops who will participate in the procession from the vatican into St. Peter's. They are requested to be at the vatican at 7 o'clock on Sunday morning.

The government, to avoid untoward incidents, has ordered the piazza and the neighborhood of St. Peter's and the basilica to be occupied by the military and forbidding an anti-clerical manifestation proposed by the Socialists and Republicans for that day. The pope's first allocution to be delivered at the next secret consistory is looked forward to with great interest.

Don Carlos, the Spanish pretender, who is a personal friend of Pius X., has said to his followers that he would not now have the papacy against him as he did under the pontificate of Leo, who was the godfather of King Alfonso, and has even gone so far as to say that he hoped the accession of the pope would help him to the throne.

Dr. Lapponi stated that Cardinal Herrero y Espinosa was out of danger.

Outbreaks Cause Sensation.

Sofia, Aug. 8.—The fresh insurrectionary outbreak in Macedonia which was believed to be impossible has produced a sensation everywhere. It is believed that the latest provocations by the Turkish troops drove the insurrectionists to despair. The Bulgarian government is resolved to maintain friendly relations with the porte and to prevent bands from crossing the frontier, but a popular movement is feared in the event of massacres of peaceful Macedonians by the Turkish soldiery. Meetings of prominent Macedonians were held and measures for succoring the sufferers from the insurrection were discussed, but no decision was reached.

Silence and Fun.

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 8.—The state convention of deaf mutes concluded when the delegates went to Roxbury park to enjoy a picnic. They played baseball, ran foot races and played tag. It was a day of silence and fun. The feature, however, was the dancing to the music of an orchestra, though not a note did they hear. They kept the step with the precision and grace of those more fortunate. How they did it is still a puzzle to the spectators, but it has been explained that one couple could hear and that the rest followed their movements.

Chinaman Seeks License.

Pittsburg, Aug. 8.—The appearance of a Chinaman in the court house seeking a marriage license caused considerable excitement along the corridors of the county building. A Celestial giving the name of Lee Chang applied for a license to marry a woman whose name he said was Lillian Russell, and who the Chinaman said was beyond the age that required the parents' consent to the union. The addresses of both the prospective groom and bride were given as Allegheny.

Damage Suits Threatened.

Sharon, Pa., Aug. 8.—No further fatalities have resulted from the collision on the Youngstown and Sharon trolley line, and it is believed that all the injured will recover. A rigid investigation is being made by the Trumbull county authorities. Several damage suits against the company are threatened by some of the injured.

Charged With Liquor Selling.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 8.—Postmaster J. A. McCormick, of Shady Springs, Raleigh county, was arrested by Deputy Marshal Cunningham on the charge of selling liquor illegally. The accused was taken before United States Commissioner Dunn at Beckley for a hearing. He waived examination.

McFadden Gets Decision.

Boston, Aug. 8.—Kid McFadden, of San Francisco, won the decision over Patsey Haley, of Boston, before the Lenox Athletic club. The bout went 12 rounds, the limit, and while it was McFadden's all the way, Haley did remarkable work and kept his opponent busy from beginning to end.

Whitaker Wright Released.

London, Aug. 8.—Whitaker Wright, the arrested promoter and director of the London and Globe Finance corporation, was released from Brixton jail, satisfactory securities for his $250,000 bail having been furnished.

To Build National Salon.

Indianapolis, Aug. 8.—The photographers at the national convention approved the plan of building a national salon at Winona. It will be the first undertaking of its kind in the world.

Nathaniel P. Gage Dead.

Chester, Vt., Aug. 8.—Nathaniel Parker Gage, of Wellsville, for the past 30 years supervising principal of schools in the Northwestern division, died of apaplexy, aged 63 years.

Boiler Shops Burned.

The Object Is to Treat With the Gas Company and Prevent Threatened Advance in Rates.

The officers of the new association, formed a few days ago to resist the efforts of the gas corporation to increase the gas rates, have prepared the communication to be presented to the city council at its next meeting. It was thought that there are citizens and gas consumers who will not connect themselves with the association on account of the fear that the companies, in a spirit of retaliation, may either cut off the supply entirely or make the service so bad that it will cause suffering and inconvenience to the private consumer. It is not the intention of the association to take any radical steps. This will been seen and appreciated when the letter to the city council is read. The communication as drafted today is as follows:

East Liverpool, O., August 10, 1903.
To the Honorable City Council of East Liverpool, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—It is well known that the cost of living in East Liverpool is unusually high, owing to heavy taxation, the cost of market products and rental expenses.

In addition to the expensive nature of what are accepted as the necessities of life, the company controlling the natural gas supply of this community, which is almost a necessity of life, has announced the intention of advancing its rate to domestic consumers with the current month.

We therefore would request your honorable body, two from Trades Countee, to consist of two members of your honorable bdy, two from Trades Council and two from the business community, in conjunction with the president of your honorable body, to arrange a meeting with the proper officials of the gas corporation, and lay before them a request to refrain from making the announced advance, with due explanation of the reasons for the objection to this advance in rates, and consequent advance in living expenses in this city. Begging your immediate attention, we are

Very truly yours,
CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION,
CRISS M'CONNELL, Secretary.
P. J. M'KEONE, President.

Fire This Morning Destroyed the Plants, Both Old and New, of Fire Brick Company.

Irondale, August 8.—(Special.)—Another severe blow to the industrial prosperity of Irondale was struck early this morning, fire being the agent. The plant of the Standard Fire Brick company was destroyed, all except the kilns, involving a loss variously estimater at from $20,000 to $30,000, partially insured.

The company had just completed a new plant and installed valuable machinery. This plant was not in operation, but the old factory was running until the new one could be got ready. The fire broke out in the old works, and the dry old building burned like tinder. In half an hour the flames had licked it up, and the new plant as well.

The new building was of frame, 60x80 feet, and among the machinery it contained was a 300 horse-power engine. It is not yet known how much of the machinery will be a total loss, but some of it, it is thought, can be saved and made serviceable.

John Watkins, the watchman, discovered the fire too late to check it.

Captain John Porter, of Congo, is one of the principal owners of the plant. He could not give an estimate of the loss today. It is thought the works will be rebuilt.

LISBON WILL LEND NO ENCOURAGEMENT

Business Men's Association Turns Down Telphone Company's Increased Rates Proposition.

Lisbon, August 8.—(Special)—W. F. Crossley, manager of the Columbiana County Telephone company, and another representative of the company, were present at a meeting of the Lisbon Business Men's association last evening made overtures to approve an increase of telephone rates. The association flatly refused to take any action in the matter. A statement was made as to the affairs of the company, similar to what was said recently in East Liverpool, Wellsville and Salem.

It was decided by the association that the annual merchants' picnic shall be declared off this year. Negotiations had already been in progress with several resorts, but it was considered advisable to forego the picnic.

Sebring Also Opposed.

Sebring, August 8.—The Sebring board of trade met on Thursday evening in the city hall and was attended by about 30 members. But little business was transacted other than to discuss the matter of the attempt on the part of the Columbiana County Telephone company to eliminate free county service or materially advance the rates. A free discussion of the matter was entered into and a vote resulted in an almost unanimous voice in favor of resisting the attempt to increase rates.

DIED OF WORRY

Mrs. Fitzpatrick, Who Killed Her Cruel Husband, Passes Away.

Steubenville, August 8.—Mrs. John Fitzpatrick died at Youngstown yesterday as the result of worry over the killing of her husband by herself about one year ago at Mingo Junction.

He was drunk and beating her on the floor when she grabbed a knife off the table and stabbed him. No action was taken against her.

FIRE OF STRANGE ORIGIN DAMAGES OLD BLOCK

Pennsylvania Company Property Lately Purchased Came Near Destruction.

Fire was discovered in the large frame building at the foot of Union street at 11:15 last night by Officer Saulsberry, who was attracted by an unwonted light in the second story. The premises have been unoccupied since purchased by the Pennsylvania company about a month ago. The flames had made considerable headway when first discovered and it looked like the structure and several more adjoining were doomed. The fire department made one of the quickest runs in its history and with two streams from the fire plugs and the chemical extinguisher soon had the blaze under control.

The flames had found their way between the sills and beneath the roof and the firemen worked an hour or more tearing away the woodwork and extinguishing stray sparks. Fearing some spot had been overlooked Chief Morley had the place closely watched and shortly after midnight the firemen were called out again. This time the extinguishers were adequate to qunch the blaze.

The origin of the fire is a mystery, as there were no lights in the building. It may have been of incendiary origin. On one of the rear doors was found marks where an attempt had been made to cut through to reach the bolt. A pane of glass in one of the east windows was broken out and the window was raised.

The building was damaged to the extent of about $200.

Petitions to Sell Real Estate.

Lisbon, August 8.—(Special)—Idella C. Haas, of East Palestine, has petitioned the court for permission to sell real estate free of the dower interests of her husband, Dr. Ephraim Haas, who is insane. She says she is the owned of lots 13 and 14 in the village of East Palestine and alleges that she purchased this realty with her own means, accumulated before her marriage.

New River Packet.

It is announced that the handsome new steamer being built by Captain Gordon Green at Marietta has been successfully launched and will be ready to enter the Wheeling, Charleston and Pittsburg trade within 40 days. The boat is larger than the Greenwood and has both side and stern wheels.

CHILD LABOR LAW TO BE ATTACKED

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, August 8.—A Dayton firm, charged with violating the child labor law by the state department of workshops and factories, has served notice on Chief Inspector John H. Morgan, of the department, of its intention to attack the constitutionality of the statute. The case against the company comes up next Monday. The ground on which the suit is to be brought is that the law was repealed by the school law requiring that children under 14 years of age shall attend school. Both laws were passed on the same day. The attorneys for the firm claim that the school law was passed after the enactment of the child labor law and that consequently it repeals the latter. Chief Inspector Morgan made a careful examination of the legislative journals and found that the child labor law was enacted about 15 minutes after the enactment of the school law. If the theory advanced by the attorneys for the firm is sound then they can make no case as the child labor law, according to their contention, being the last enacted, repeals the other.

The purpose of the firm is to have the school law declared invalid, assuming it is the statute having precedence. There is a clause in this law which specifies that no child under 14 shall be permitted to work unless he produces a certificate attesting possession of certain qualifications as to education. In this respect the act is somewhat infirm as it implies that a child under legal age who has attained certain amount of education may be put at work. The child labor law very plainly points out that no minor under 14 shall be employed. The technical defect in the school law will probably be cured by the next general assembly. No attempt has been made heretofore to attack the law.

The department will make an exhibit at the St. Louis exposit Views will be shown of modern factories in which safety appliances are installed for the protection of life and limb of employes.

In explanation of its action in remitting penalties aggregating $14,000,000 to delinquent corporations under the Willis law, Attorney General Sheets, speaking for the state commission which did this, said that the penalties provided in this law are so outrageously excessive that no man with a conscience could enforce them. Enforcement would have ruined most of the delinquents and would have amounted to a confiscation of their plants and other property. The penalty for each day of delinquency should be reduced from $5,000 to $25, Judge Sheets said.

Willing to Put Up Cash.

A difference of opinion seems to exist in regard to which of the horses, Ikey Boy and Robert L, is the fastest. Parties controlling Robert L called up the News Review and stated that money would talk and that they are willing to cover any amount from $200 to $500 a side.

BOARD OF HEALTH DECIDED ON ACTION

Sanitary Policeman Will Proceed Against Those Using the Storm Sewer.

A LIST OF THE OFFENDERS

Has Been Prepared And No Time Will Be Wasted in Taking Steps to Induce Property Owners to Abate Alleged Nuisances.

That the East Liverpool board of health means to improve the sanitary condition of the city and that at once, there is the best of evidence, and if any one has an idea that it is a joke their minds will be disabused of the fact within the next few weeks.

The regular monthly meeting of the board was held at city hall last night, and in the absence of Mayor Weaver, Mr. Haines presided. Members Harris, Mowen and Birkett were present and the first matter taken up was the condition of Tanyard run. The sanitary policeman had been instructed to secure a list of names of parties who were attached onto the storm water sewer. He accomplished the work some time ago, and the list was turned over to the board of public service. This body, after some deliberation, referred it back to the health department, and it has been decided to waste no more time in the effort to induce property owners to abate the nuisance and discontinue the use of the storm water sewer for sanitary purposes. The sanitary policeman will proceed against these parties without delay, acting under the direction of the city solicitor. Following is a list of those manufacturing establishments, public institutions and private properties which are sewered into the Tanyard run storm water sewer:

George Thomas, no sewer, Seventh street.

Lawrence Thomas, no sewer, Seventh street.

Mrs. Richard Thomas, no sewer, Seventh street.

Thomas & Sons, no sewer, Seventh street.

Dresden pottery, West Market street.

Clem McQuilkin, West Market street.

Ice plant, Accommodation lane.

Burford Bros. Pottery company, East Seventh or Hailes street, Green lane.

Armour company, old Hailes property, West Market street.

McKinley school building, Riley avenue and Ambrose avenue.

Union Planing mill, West Market street.

Standard Pottery company, Broadway.

William Bagley, old Hilbert property, East Market street.

William Bagley, fruit store, East Market street.

James Massey, West Market street.

I. N. Crable, East Market street, waste water.

Thomas Plunkett, Spring street.

William R. Buxton, Spring street.

George C. Potter, corner Bradshaw and Ambrose avenues.

George C. Potter, Bradshaw avenue.

Frank Bergner, Bradshaw avenue.

John Worcester, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

W. C. Johnston, Bradshaw avenue.

W. C. Kell, Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

G. E. Stuffelbeam, Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

W. S. Arbuthnot, Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

Milton J. Arbuthnot, Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

Kate O'Donnell, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Laura Huffman, (David McLane, agent), Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Thomas Lynch, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

George Parry, (Tallis McCain, agent), Bradshaw avenue, tub, closet and waste water.

George Parry, (Tallis McCain, agent), Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

U. G. King, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Sheridan McGavern, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Clarence Gray, Bradshaw avenue, waste water.

Mrs. J. N. Smith, West Market and Spring streets, closet and waste water.

Flora Pomeroy, Grant street, waste water.

Proctor Ankrim, Grant street, tub, closet and waste water.

C. L. Gray, of 288 Bradshaw avenue, sent a communication to the board stating that since his house and five others were built there had been at least 10 houses built further up the street, most of which he felt sure, were provided with inside closets and drained into the storm sewer, which ends at the upper end of the lot on which his house is located. The stream from the sewer becomes an exposed and open one in front of his property and on down to Bradshaw avenue and Avondale streets, where it runs into the storm sewer. Sinks and bath tubs drain into the same sewer.

Mr. Gray believes all this drainage is contrary to municipal and state laws, but he believes conditions can be much improved without accomplishing the ideal. He objects to the drainage of closets into the sewer and asks the board to abate the nuisance. As to dishwater and other drainage, it should be drained into the running water under cover, if a sewer is not provided, and he thinks such a sewer would not be advisable at present.

OLD VETERANS' GLAD REUNION

Survivors of Co. F, 46th Pa. Vols., Met Today at the Frederick Home.

FOUGHT OVER OLD BATTLES

Survivors of Company F, Forty-Sixth Pennsylvania Veteran Volunteer infantry, held their annual reunion today at the pleasant home of Noah Frederick, East Fourth and Elm streets. Twenty-two gray-haired veterans, not one under 60 years of age, spared by the gods of war during battle and from the hand of death after peace had been declared, came to this city this morning to meet with one another and talk over the incidents of the great conflict. With the veterans was Captain James Hay's Homestead durm corps, which enlivened the trip and the day with martial music.

The veterans were given a cordial welcome by the host and his family and soon they were comfortably disposed upon the shady lawn. The exercises were arranged for afternoon, and during the morning the visitors were free to do as they wished. The dinner served at the Frederick home was a most bounteous repast and one of the features of the day most enjoyed by the veterans.

After a smoke and a few airs from the drum corps the company meeting was held, at which the old officers, Captain Ben Morgan, president, and Captain George R. Beecher, were re-elected. Pittsburg was selected as the place for next year's reunion. The remainder of the afternoon was given over to speechmaking, the principal orators being Captains Morgan and Beecher, Mr. Frederick, Benjamin Hayes and Preston Dunwoodie.

The latter was the cook of the company and was taken when a slave in Virginia. He remained with the company and at the close of the war settled in Pittsburg, where several of the members now reside.

Company F saw much active service in the great conflict between the north and the south and participated in a number of hard battles. The regiment was in the Twelfth corps under General Slocum until the battle of Gettysburg, when it was transferred to the Twentieth corps, in Sherman's army, and served under that noted commander until the grand review of the army at Washington in May, 1865.

Twelve members of the company were killed in battle, five died from wounds thus received, three died as prisoners of war and seven died from disease while in the service. Since the war 38 have died.

Those present at the reunion were: Captain Ben Morgan, Pittsburg; Captain George R. Beecher, Pittsburg; Lieut. Cyrus Shade, Rochester; Lieut. Thomas D. Matthews, Rochester, Hamilton Gordon, John Reagan, John Wrigley, Pittsburg; James Hales, Homestead; H. M. Campbell, Hookstown; Samuel Searight and Noah Frederick, East Liverpool; Charles Shenkle, Akron; Matthew Nelson, Hookstown; H. B. Ewing, Beaver Falls; William Hayward, Shippingport; James Boyle, Salineville; Peter Barty, Slippery Rock, Butler county, Pa.; Bryce McKinnon, New Sheffield; James Purdy, Clinton; James D. Ewing, Pittsburg, and Preston Dunwoodie, the company cook.

These reunions have been held yearly since 1885. Since the last meeting two members of the company have died.

The Girl in the Case Is Also Held For a Hearing. Much Indignation Aroused.

The troubles of the Heidrick family, the revolting details of which have appeared in the News Review at various times during the past two weeks, received an airing in court last night, and if the action of Mayor W. A. Weaver can be taken as an indication, it would have been vastly better for Mrs. Heidrick's peace of mind had she adopted the course long ago.

The disgusting and reprehensible actions of Walter Heidrick in his treatment of his wife and two little children has been the subject of comment in this city by people in every walk of life for nearly a month. Several times the indignation among his old associates on the East Liverpool railway has reached a point where all that would have been required to administer a coat of tar and feathers and a dose of the whipping post, was a leader.

Heidrick, who has a wife and two little children, innocent of an evil thought or action, and who are too young to realize the disgrace of the father, became infatuated with a girl named Nellie Early some time ago, and for several weeks his attentions were marked and uninterrupted. The couple finally became insensible to any moral obligation they owed to their families or to themselves, and were lost to even a sense of common decency. Mrs. Heidrick was made acquainted with the circumstances in the case, and though she was thoroughly convinced of the guilt of both, she was loath to begin legal action in order to obtain redress.

Both Mrs. Heidrick and her brother had encounters with the pair and everything possible was done to induce Heidrick to abandon the other woman and return to his heartbroken wife and suffering little ones, but he steadily refused. The relations of man and wife became so strained that Heidrick left home more than two weeks ago, and had neither contributed to the support of his family nor recognized the wife since that time. Mrs. Heidrick sought an interview

FIRST DUTY OF THE GAS MONOPLY

To the Editor of the News Review:

The News Review is to be complimented for the bold stand it has made in the interest of the taxpayer as against the demands of the gas monopoly.

Many persons confuse the rights of a private corporation with those of a quasi-public institution like the organization furnishing a public convenience to the citizens of East Liverpool the shape of natural gas.

There is no anology whatever between the characters of the two organizations.

A private corporation is formed for the avowed and implied purpose of securing the greatest returns on the capital invested that the product of the plant will bring in through shrewd management and careful policy.

Its first duty is to the stockholders, and it is refrained from extortion by virtue of competition in trade, and the fact that if the article produced is not a fair equivalent for the price charged, the public will have none of it.

With a quasi-public corporation, operating, as in this case, as a monopoly and under a public franchise, for the furnishment of a public convenience which is recognized as a necessity, the case is fundamentally different in all respects.

The fact of this corporation being a monopoly owing to its grant, without charge from the public, makes the public in effect a partner in the enterprise.

As there is no other source from which the public can receive its dividend upon its share in the partnership, it follows naturally that the first duty of this gas monopoly therefore is to furnish its commodity to its partner, the public, at the lowest possible figure commensurate with a reasonable return upon the capital invested. Mind you, the capital actually invested, not the watered stock, as the public stands no show whatever in realizing a return upon the stock issued in excess of the investment.

This attitude of the public is sound, as from whence would it derive any benefit from the valuable privilege of using streets and alleys without other cost, if the gas corporation is permitted to make unjust and excessive rates for the commodity it furnishes?

What contribution does this gas monopoly expect to make for the privilege of owning its monopoly in this city, by grace of public favor, if not in the shape of reasonable gas rates?

Possibly it would prefer to make a fair contribution of its gross receipts, as many other cities require, but it surely does not avow the false principle of getting something for nothing.

It is a known fact that East Liverpool has been constantly discriminated against in rates for several years, and is now in Wheeling, and I am told the mill in Wellsville has always enjoyed a much less rate than the most favored factory in this city.

This being the case, why should the citizens of East Liverpool permit without opposition this attempt of the gas interests to "squeeze" them without even the justification of needing the money?

Will they stand for it?

PATRON OF GAS COMPANY.
East Liverpool, August 8.

THE ARBITRATORS FINISH THEIR WORK

Agreement Reached That Will Grant the Painters Their Increase.

The arbitration committee appointed by the grievance committee of Trades and Labor council for settling the dispute between the master painters and members of the decorators, finished up its business. The decision is now in the hands of the chairman of the grievance committee and will be opened at a joint meeting Sunday. The meeting was not lengthy, as the members had given the dispute in question much consideration.

The agreement, so far as could be learned, is that the employes would be granted their increase from $2.32 to $3, and the decrease in the hours from 9 to 8. Work is to commence at 8 o'clock instead of 7.

The apprentice question took much of the time, the board giving the opinion that apprentices should have the discharge of his employer before hiring with any other and that he be compelled to serve an apprenticeship of three years, with an increase each year. The agreement and several other points was sealed in an envelope and delivered to the grievance committee of Trades Council.

A Pleasant Function.

A 6 o'clock dinner was last evening tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gregg, of the East End, Pittsburg, who are guests of honor at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. Bert George on Fourth street. The event was a very pleasant function for the fourteen who were in attendance. The appointments were perfect in detail, the colors yellow and white being used in harmony with the decorations at dinner.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

CARROLLTON NOTES.

The second kiln has been dried out.

The pottery will use about 200 electric lights.

The roofing of the kilns sheds will be completed this week.

The third kiln of saggers—about 2,000 in all—was fired on Wednesday.

The balance of the machinery will arrive by the middle of next week.

The third and fourth kilns are about half lined, work having been stopped on them on account of a scarcity of brick.

Work was commenced Wednesday on the decorating kilns. There are two double kilns to be erected, the four of them being equal to two of the ware kilns.

M. F. Albright, of Alliance, the treasurer of the pottery company, is now here "for keeps." He will move his family to Carrollton as soon as he can find a suitable house.

John Bossen will arrive here on Monday to accept the foremanship of the clay department. Mr. Bossen was until recently foreman of the clay department of the Thomas China company, of Lisbon.

CONTEST COMMENDED.

The Potters' Herald says of the recent popularity contest conducted by the News Review:

"The popularity voting contest recently closed that took place under the patronage of the Evening News Review, goes far to show the enterprise of the paper, and also demonstrates that the public of East Liverpool will lend the proper assistance to an enterprise calculated to arouse interest in unionism, and that was the original intention of the management of the Review. No one will doubt, and that they have succeeded, no one who has followed the contest can deny. The generosity of the paper in giving more in the way of prizes than was at first intended or obligatory to them is to say the least commendable. The Herald wishes the successful candidates a pleasant journey and a safe return."

KILNS MEASURED.

The new bisque kiln at the West End that was erected a short time ago is now ready to be filled. John Wood, the statistician of local union No. 9, was called to measure it. The kiln is No. 3 and calls for 16¼ days. Mr. Wood also measured the No. 4 glost kiln at that place, which calls for 22 days.

DEATH AT WHEELING.

Charles Och, jiggerman at the Globe, who was called to Wheeling a few days by the serious illness of his mother, has written friends here that the illness terminated fatally. Mr. Och was well known to many in this city and was one of Wheeling's most highly respected residents.

CHANGE OF DIPPERS.

John Graham, a dipper at the Oliver, has resigned his position and accepted a similar one at Derry, Pa.

W. M. Morey, of the Sebring, has taken the position made vacant by John Graham.

AMONG THE WORKERS.

The Goodwin has started again after a long loaf.

Frank Hutton has taken a pressing bench at Burford's.

REPUBLICAN TARIFF HAS MADE PROSPERTY

Significant Statistics Showing How Great Industries Have Grown Under Protection.

In the last 50 years a Republican tariff has been in force most of the time. The Republican party is the champion of a tariff that protects the exceptionally good wages of American workmen and develops industries upon our own soil. If the protective policy were wrong figures would show it. A brief comparison of the industrial situation in 1900 with that in 1850 is instructive. The number of factories in the United States in that period increased from 123,025 to 512,339; the number of wage earners from 957,059 to 5,316,802, and the yearly product from $1,019,000,000 to $13,014,000,000. The product grew thirteen fold, the number of wage earners six fold and the number of factories four fold. The production of coal in the same time increased seventy fold; of petroleum more than a hundred fold; of pig iron twenty-four fold, and of copper thirty-five fold. In 1850 the yield of cotton was 2,333,118 bales, and in 1900 9,436,416 bales.

Our railway mileage grew from 9,021 miles in 1850 to 194,321 in 1900. In 1860 the tonnage at the Soo canal was 403,657; in 1900 it was 22,315,834. Exports of manufactured articles have grown from $17,580,000 in 1850 to $433,851,000 in 1900. The gain in exports of manufactures has been from $228,000,000 in 1896 to over $400,000,000 in 1903. In the light of these figures, it is useless to deny the results of Republican tariffs. They are unparalleled in the history of the world. Our workmen are the most productive, as well as the best paid. Their handiwork advances constantly in the estimation of foreign consumers. The industrial and commercial expansion that has come under Republican tariffs speaks for itself, and indisputably.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

A Remarkable Lamb.

Hammondsville, August 8.—Sherman King, near Norristown, has in his possession a freak of nature. It is a lamb, which has two tails, six legs and otherwise resembles two animals up to its shoulders. The freak died shortly after it was found. The carcass has been mounted and he has it on exhibition. He has been offered a handsome sum for the animal several times, but will not consider any offer.

A Woman's Complexion.

It is rank foolishness to, attempt to remove sallowness or greasiness of the skin by the use of cosmetics, or "local" treatment, as advocated by the "beauty doctors." The only safe and sure way that a woman can improve her complexion is by purifying and enriching the blood, which can only be accomplished by keeping the liver healthy and active. The liver is the seat of disease and blood pollution. Green's August Flower acts directly on the liver, cleanses and enriches the blood, purifies the complexion. It also cures constipation, biliousness, nervousness, and induces refreshing sleep. ATTEMPT TO WRECK A TROLLEY CAR

An Alliance Man Arrested Charged With Putting Obstructions on the Track.

Alliance, August 8.—As Motorman Charles Summers was running a street car upon Summit street at 9:40 p. m. he saw a bright object upon the rail of the car line between Webb and Morgan avenues and near it a dark obstructions evidently was to wreck were standing near the track at this point and a third was in a stooping posture near the bright object upon the rail. Summers at once applied the brake to his car and calling to the conductor to take charge, bounded off and captured the man that was nearest the track, who gave his name as Joe Losio. An investigation disclosed a railroad torpedo upon the track and a vitreous brick. The object of the obstruction evidently were to wreck the car.

Losio was placed under arrest and taken to the city jail. He stoutly denies his guilt.

Summers states that very frequently of late obstructions in the shape of limbs and stones have been placed upon the track near where the torpedo was found and a strict watch has been kept to detect the guilty parties in the act. The penalty for such an offense is fine and imprisonment.

Drugs in Your Pastry.

COMMON Baking Powders are half Corn starch, the other half being Acid-phosphate, or Alum. Some of these are said to be very injurious, and quite unreliable.

Good Baking Powders are one-fourth Rice Flour, one-fourth Soda, and one-half Cream of Tartar.

These cost 13 cents per pound to manufacture, but you must pay fifty cents per lb. for them, at retail.

And it takes $4.40 worth of this Baking Powder to make a $6.00 barrel of Flour into Tea Biscuits!

"PRESTO" quick-flour needs no Baking Powder, and very little "Shortening."

It is the finest flour milled in America, being rich in Gluten (muscle-former) with a comparatively low per centage of Starch (fat), while Baker's Flour, for instance, is chiefly Starch, with little Gluten.

"PRESTO" quick-flour has the exact proportions of Cream Tartar, Soda, and Salt, that such flour needs, already blended uniformly into it, by machinery.

These chemicals are the purest made, mixed with the flour when they are fresh and strong, and then sealed up in air-tight packages that Grocers retail at 10c and 25c.

The very best flour, and the purest Cream of Tartar and Soda are thus sold in "PRESTO," at the price of common flour, combined with Baking Powder, — why?

Because—"PRESTO" carries only a Miller's profit on the whole product, instead of a Druggists profit on the Baking Powder, or 44 per cent. portion.

Then, there's the great labor saving, and the certainty of results, to consider in its valuation.

"PRESTO" makes the quickest, surest, lightest, whitest, and most economical of cakes, biscuits, and pastry.

There is no Alcohol in Nervan Tablets to interfere with the removal of all harmful sediment from the body. The Tablets soothe and heal the kidneys when they are irritated and inflamed. They cure the kidney diseases that make you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable; that make you pass water often during the day and night; that cause rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, pain in the back, joints and muscles; that make your head ache and indigestion, stomach and liver trouble, and a sallow, yellow complexion.

CROSSED THE SIERRAS IN AN AUTOMOBILE

An Ohio Man Performs a Feat Never Before Accomplished.

To E. Tom Fetch, of Warren, O., belongs the credit of crossing the Sierras in an automobile, a feat never before accomplished.

Today Fetch is well on his way eastward, on his transcontinental auto trip.

Never, even in the days when Indians lurked in the mountain passes of this wild and "woolly" state and dead men's bones lined every trail, did a traveler have more exciting experiences than has been the lot of this daring chauffeur since he left San Francisco on June 15, the rear wheels of his auto having first been wet by the waves of the Pacific, bound for New York city, where about the middle of September he expects to drive his machine into the waters of the Atlantic.

Two years ago Alex Winton, of Cleveland, made an attempt to cross the continent in a machine of his construction. Two weeks out of San Francisco his auto stuck fast in the sand and the trip was over. Fetch, who is using a Packard motor car, more than six weeks ago passed the spot where the Winton expedition came to grief and while he may not reach New York until somewhat later than he had hoped he will undoubtedly finish the trip with flying colors, for he has already passed the most dangerous and the most trying part of the journey.

CANTON CELERY VALUABLE CROP

Large Sums Made by Gardeners from Small Patches of Ground

SWAMP LANDS UTILIZED

Hartville the Center of the Industry in Stark County—Great Yield From a Single Acre—Ready Market For All That Can Be Grown.

Canton, August 8.—Canton celery is the whole thing in Pittsburg. Over one of the largest commission houses in that city is emblazoned a large sign, "Canton Celery," and Pittsburg people who come to Canton ask for celery at all seasons. All celery that is grown in Stark county goes into the market as Canton celery, and that name is sufficient guarantee that the largest price can be obtained for it.

Few people have any conception of the importance of this crop, as it is confined to a small section of the county and never gets in the agricultural reports. The Hartville section is perhaps the most extensive. Celery has been grown there for many years and the area is being extended. There are now under cultivation 150 acres of celery land, which produces for the grower on an average about $250 an acre. This is a very conservative estimate.

The possibilities of an acre are shown by the wonderful crop raised by E. W. Richard last year. He planted a little late and the growth was phenomenal. He sold $700 worth of celery from a single acre which was perhaps the best crop ever raised in the county. Hiram Hildenbrand, however, has the reputation of having raised the largest single bunches. He had a bunch containing one dozen stalks that weighed 28 pounds after it had been cleaned and trimmed, which was over two pounds to the stalk. This can be better realized when it is considered that an ordinary stalk weighs but a few ounces.

The Hartville product is all marketed in Pittsburg. It is hauled to Alliance in wagons, the celery raisers having contracted with a teamster to do the hauling. From Alliance to Pittsburg the express rates are 40 cents a hundred, and it is consigned directly to commission men, so that the farmer does not have the trouble of selling. The commission men are glad to get the crop and pay the very highest prices.

Other large celery farms and tracts are found at Greentown, Hartville, Uniontown and near Canton.

The facts with reference to the Hartville section were given by Arthur Willaman, a large grower. He stated that the variety generally grown is known as the Golden self-blanching. It is planted 5 inches apart in the row and the rows are 4 feet apart. This gives 22,000 plants to the acre, not all of which, however, develop into marketable celery. The general impression is that celery soil, which is dark and deep, cannot be exhausted, but this is a fallacy. It requires more fertilizer than any other soil. As high as a ton to the acre of commercial fertilizer is used by the best growers, and if it is not used the crop will be a short one.

A fair estimate of the value of the celery crop of Stark county is thought to be $100,000 a year. The profits are large and those farmers who have the best land are gradually accumulating a competency. The land is valued at from $300 to $400 an acre, and there is often a greater profit from five acres of swamp land when planted in celery than from a quarter section of land given to general farming.

NEGRO DESPERADO HELD UP A CAMP

A Blacksmith With a Rifle Finally Put An End to His Operations.

Steubenville, August 8.—James Brown, who is rated as a bad negro, filled up with a quart of Brilliant whisky last night and terrorized camp No. 13, on the Wabash railroad construction works. Everybody he held up disgorged their money.

A. Heff, the blacksmith, when held up, made an excuse and eluded him and secured his Winchester rifle. He followed Brown and while he was holding up C. G. Goodelle, the master mechanic, Heff kneeled and fired, and the bullet passed through Brown's body at the hips, fatally wounding him.

After he was shot the other men in the camp wanted to hang Brown, but Heff stood guard with his rifle and prevented it. Brown was brought here by an armed guard.

Trade Conditions Compared With Last Year Show Increase in Many Lines.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Railroad Equipment Inadequate for Distribution of Merchandise—Conservatism Shown in Iron and Steel Purchases.

New York, Aug. 8.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Trade advices from nearly every section continue to show as favorable conditions as a year ago, and in many lines the volume of transactions has increased. Jobbers report fall business opening with excellent prospects and manufacturing plants are will occupied, with the exception of cotton mills.

Distribution of merchandise is so heavy that railway equipment already proves inadequate, although crops are not the factor that they will be in a few weeks. Earnings for July exceed last year's by 12.7 per cent and those of 1901 by 20.2 per cent.

On the whole news from the farms is less favorable, but no serious curtailment is assured and many sections make very bright reports. A decline of 1.5 per cent in the cost of commodities during July is evidence that prices are less inflated, since the change was mainly in meats and other food which have been ruling at an abnormal position.

Consumption of iron and steel is on a large scale, and in many departments the past week has witnessed the signing of numerous contracts, but there is a tendency to delay purchases beyond early needs. This conservatism is not surprising in view of the uncertainty regarding the security and financial markets, together with considerable interruption to structural work through labor controversies. The rate of consumption and the moderate size of orders, however, indicate that stocks are running low, which encourages furnacemen and mill operators to hold quotations fairly steady. A moderate tonnage of pig iron has been ordered, and in partly finished products the best feature just now is the bidding of agricultural implement makers. More pig iron was imported during July than anticipated and German billets are still offered at Pittsburg, but the domestic makers announce their intention of meeting foreign competition. There is less pressure for tin plate, the peculiar weather extending the canning season and giving more time for delivery of cans. There is full occupation in all branches of this industry, and in merchant pipe also the mills have full order books for many months.

There were 178 commercial failures this week in the United States, against 190 last week, 191 the preceding week and 196 the corresponding week last year, and in Canada 19, against 19 last week, 19 the preceding week and 14 last year.

Boston, Aug. 8.—In a letter written last Tuesday from Montreal to the Rev. George H. Spencer, the pastor of his church in East Boston, Willard S. Allen, treasurer of the Preachers' Aid society of the New England conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, confessed that he was a defaulter to the amount of more than $80,000 of the society's funds.

Mr. Allen has been treasurer of the society for 12 years and clerk of the East Boston district court for 29 years, and for 16 years was a prominent member of the school committee of Boston. He left home about a week ago without announcing his destination and the first heard from him was the letter to the East Boston clergyman. Mr. Allen said that he had lost the money in speculation. He requests the minister to notify the members of the Allen family and the officers of the society of his confession.

Lowe Special Beats the Record.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—All previous transcontinental records have been broken by the H. P. Lowe special, which left New York at 2:45 p. m. Aug. 4 and arrived at Los Angeles at 1:06 p. m. Friday. By transporting the special from Chicago to Los Angeles in 52 hours and 49 minutes the Santa Fe has beaten all previous records by 5 hours and 7 minutes. The previous record between Chicago and Los Angeles was made by the famous Peacock special, in 1900, the distance being covered in 57 hours and 56 minutes. Mr. Lowe has expressed his appreciation of the efforts of the road to aid him in his race against death, although it turned out that the train never had a chance to win.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Commercial writes his paper that "the most accurate financial barometer of the country is the increase or decrease of the receipts at the postoffice." The annual readjustment of postmasters' salaries on the basis of postoffice receipts, just completed by the department, shows a heavier rate of increase than ever before. The conclusion is drawn that the extent of the prosperity which prevails throughout the land beats anything hiterto recorded.

There is an excellent opportunity for men who are willing to do business at a reasonable profit to engage in the work of supplying meat. There is no direct evidence that the butchers are in a trust, but if ever there was an example of extortion it is in the present prices of meat. Beef on the hoof, according to an exchange printed in one of the large cities of Ohio, is nearly 50 per cent below last year's prices and yet the consumer is taxed more than he was then. Questioned for an explanation the butcher talks to you about the stock being exhausted and the present supply having been bought at old prices. Facts do not bear out this statement. On the contrary, there is absolutely no reason, other than an arbitrary one, for the present high prices of meats. But the consumer has so long grown accustomed to them that he pays without a murmur, until his attention is called to the injustice. Then he registers a kick and if prices don't come down he curtails his meat bill.

General Young, the new head of the army, is prompt, active and energetic. He is not the sort of man to let military red tape hamper his usefulness, and common sense methods will be in use while he commands.

The Ohio river is getting so low and dirty it is hardly fit to swim in. Yet its water, undiluted and unpurified, is the only sort furnished to East Liverpool water consumers without extra cost.

David Nation takes it all back. He is not going to live with Carrie again. "She is too boisterous," says the old man, and he has had an excellent chance to find out.

The Canton bank teller who wanted to get rich quickly failed in his effort, but doubtless discovered a short route to state's prison.

Bryan isn't hurting Cleveland. His power for harm, as well as for good, is very nearly a minus quantity.

W. O. Smith.

Lisbon, August 8.—(Special)—W. O. Smith died at his home in Lisbon at 6:30 last evening after long suffering from a cancer on the face and neck. For three weeks he had been kept alive chiefly by stimulants, the cancer having eaten into his throat so that he could swallow scarcely anything. He was born in Hagerstown, Md., in 1829, the youngest of a family of 11 children, of whom he was the last survivor. He came to Ohio about 40 years ago, settling in Warren. After a short time he removed to Lisbon. He was engaged in the grocery business here many years. August 8, 1866, he married Miss Adaline Lodge, of Lisbon, who died May 5, 1893. He was married again November 27, 1895, to Miss Margaret Carlisle, who survives him. Mr. Smith leaves no children. His nearest surviving relatives are nephews and nieces. The funeral will take place Monday at 2 p. m. from the house, Rev. J. A. Ulman officiating.

The Bartender's Revenge.

Since the bar is a necessary evil—to some folk—and is an institution of the state, being licensed, reference to it occasionally must be excused. There are some very clever men behind the bar, and once in awhile a gentleman. Tab is usually kept on him by the metal cash register. He feels that he is watched at all hours by a maze of patented machinery. If he steals a check of 15 cents he is caught, you may say. Not at all! The other day in a fashionable resort the proprietor, big and pompous, "called down" one of his men before some customers. As to the question of right or wrong I say nothing. But presently, when Signor Pomposity turned his back, the bar man emptied a full bottle of the finest whisky into the washing trough under the bar. It was worth at least $1.50. That was his way of getting even. I am informed that it is the usual way of resenting an insult from the proprietor. The mere stealing of 15 cents is a small matter when the bar man is to be trusted with thousands of dollars' worth of liquors. If a man is not to be trusted with change how is he to be trusted with liquors?—New York Press.

with the Early woman, and the scene was a stormy one.

Miss Early returned all of the presents given her by the erring husband, many of them being the property of Mrs. Heidrick, and promised to annoy her no more. She either never intended to keep the promise or was soon to forget, as the couple were together repeatedly afterward.

In her desperation Mrs. Heidrick finally sought the advice of the authorities. She remembered that the Early girl had told her her name was Kittie Walker, and she informed the authorities of the fact. This was thought to be sufficient offense to merit arrest, and steps were taken to apprehend them both. Mrs. Heidrick brought the real Kittie Walker to the city hall Thursday afternoon and the information was made.

Mrs. Heidrick has been very patient throughout the entire ordeal, and bore her sufferings with fortitude until last night when she could stand it no longer and resolved to act at once. She returned to her brother's home in the evening, and was informed that she could not remain there longer. The only home she had known since the husband had abandoned her was now denied her and she was about to be left penniless and deserted with no place to lay her head. She did not seem to consider her own comfort, and would have been content to go away rather than force herself upon the husband who had ceased to entertain toward her the affection and esteem possessed by every good wife, but with the two helpless children to care for she was powerless to do for herself, and since her husband was under the same or even more binding obligation toward them, she made up her mind to trifle no longer. The above is the substance of what the poor woman told a News Review reporter when she arrived at the city hall last night, and the determination in her manner and the malignant flash of her dark eyes left no doubt in the minds of those who heard her that she meant every word she said.

Two warrants, one charging Heidrick with desertion and non-support and the other making information against Nellie Early for impersonating Kittie Walker, were placed in the hands of Officer Clifford Dawson, and in a remarkably short time both were facing the mayor. So prompt was the action of the officer that there was a suspicion that he had been keeping his eye on the pair and knew just exactly where they could be found. The attitude of the girl was brazen and defiant, and when she was arraigned in the presence of Chief of Police Wyman and an attorney whom she had retained, her actions were disgusting and from a feminine standpoint, repugnant in the extreme. Her attorney held that the charge was insufficient to hold her, and after explaining the law on the subject, and showing that the arresting officer had thrown himself liable for false arrest, insisted that the prisoner be discharged. Mayor Weaver desired to be right in the matter, and after some deliberation, summoned another attorney for consultation.

While the other legal advisor was on his way to the city hall, the spectators were treated to another disgusting exhibition. While the little babe was asleep in its mother's arms and the three-year-old daughter of Heidrick slept in a chair in a most uncomfortable position, the husband and his temptress chatted and cooed like two mushy school children attacked with their first case of puppy love. At that juncture, had some one given the word, the twenty or thirty witnesses to the revolting spectacle would have laid hold of the couple, and what they would have done could not but meet the approval of all. It is certain that if the crowd had been given an opportunity Mrs. Heidrick's troubles would have been at an end for a time at least.

The attorneys and the mayor came to the conclusion that it would not be safe to hold the girl and she was allowed to go on her own recognizance until the expiration of the lawyers' vacation, when she will be required to face the charge of using Miss Walker's name.

Instead of departing when she had been given the privilege of doing so, the Early girl remained about the mayor's office, in the hope, it is presumed, of being able to speak some word of encouragement to her lover. Heidrick was taken into the mayor's office and his case quickly disposed of. He refused to return to his family in spite of the fact that the wife was willing to drop everything and let by-gones be forgotten, and was ordered taken to jail on the charge of abandonment and non-support. As he was leaving the mayor's office on his way to jail Heidrick attempted to have a word with Miss Early but Chief Wyman had stood about as much as any human could endure and grabbing the man by the collar he was unceremoniously hustled into a cell. The chief and Officer McDermott searched the prisoner and disgorged a handful of crackers. The culprit asked if they wanted them too, and in reply the chief remarked that it would be better if he gave them to his hungry children. Even this, which was but one of many rebukes that were administered by both the officers and the spectators, failed to move the man who seemed to be lost to all sense of his duties and maintained a stubborn demeanor all the way through.

As her husband was being taken to jail Mrs. Heidrick broke down completely and cried as though her heart would break. She had hoped that her husband would relent and that they might be reconciled once more, but she was disappointed. She and the children had no place to go, and Lyman Rinehart, who was present, generously proposed to allow her to remain at his home until some arrangement could be made for her future welfare, but she finally went to the home of Mrs. Walker on Washington street, where it is presumed she spent the night.

It is probable Heidrick will not be given a hearing until Monday, and that when he is brought in for trial he will agree to return to his wife and provide for his children. A night spent in the jail has had the effect of cooling the young man off. He has experienced an entire change of heart and is more than illing to make any sort of promise as the price of his liberty. Last night he was defiant. Today he is repentant.

It is thought by all concerned that Heidrick has arrived at a very wise conclusion and he would have been shown no mercy had he been sent to court. The penalty for his offense consists of both fine and imprisonment. If the case is sufficiently flagrant he may be sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of three years.

The charge pending against the Early girl is also a serious one, and when her case is called on the 18th it is expected she can be convicted. She was allowed to go on her own recognizance, and if she takes the advice of her friends she will make herself scarce before the time for trial. If proven guilty the girl can be fined in the sum of $500 or imprisoned for six months, or both.

WELLSVILLE

NOT LAWFUL TO LOITER IN DRINKING RESORTS SUNDAY.

Wellsville Council Attacks Several Problems—Complaint of Houses Obstructing Street.

At the special meeting of council last evening President Crubaugh and Messrs. Joseph, Anderson, O'Grady, Blackburn, McDonald and Shoub were present. City Auditor McGregor was also present, having arrived from Greenville, Pa., on the afternoon train after an absence of over a week.

The first matter discussed was the payment of the bills. It was decided that hereafter all bills should go to the city auditor to be approved before council should act on them. None of the bills were ordered paid.

A request was made by the board of public service for an appropriation with which to pay the July expenses. There was considerable discussion upon this matter, but no action was taken.

Council appropriated the board of public safety $448 from the safety fund, by ordinance, to cover July bills.

A motion was made and passed that $35.73 be borrowed and appropriated to the board of health to be used to pay its bills. This step was necessary, as there is no money in that fund.

The matter of the blocking of Steubenville street by John Wooster was brought up again. Mr. Smith, of the West End, stated that Steubenville street had been blocked for several days by Mr. Wooster's houses and said that he had been unable to haul coal to the brick yard. Councilman McDonald, who has been the principal member of council to protest against Mr. Wooster, stated that the men who were employed to move the houses were only working eight hours a day and were making very slow progress. Council finally disposed of the matter by ordering Clerk McQueen to notify Mr. Wooster to have the work of moving the houses rushed, both day and night.

The bond ordinance providing for the paving and otherwise improving of Steubenville street was read by the clerk. Councilman McDonald stated that a street railway track was to be laid on this street in a short time and would like to have the ordinance laid over. There was considerable discussion, but the ordinance was finally passed.

A suggestion was made by one of the councilmen that the East Liverpool & Wellsville Street Railway company be asked by the board of service to make much needed repairs to the street paving on Clark avenue along their tracks. No action was taken.

A motion to place the ordinance, creating the office of clerk to the public safety board at a salary of $5 per month on its third reading was voted down. A motion to place it on its first reading was passed.

The ordinance providing for the arrest of persons found loitering in or about saloons on Sunday, voted down at the last meeting of council, was again presented and reconsidered. A few slight changes were made and the ordinance was passed on its first reading.

City Auditor McGregor was asked by council to get up a new book giving a complete record of all of the city's bonds and take the place of the book which has been lost.

An ordinance providing for the paving and otherwise improving of Sixth street from Front street to Hill street was passed finally, the rules being suspended.

REMEDY FOR HAY FEVER

After Trying Other Treatments Hyomei Was Used With Perfect Success.

Prior to the discovery of Hyomei, the only advice a physician could give to a hay fever patient was to go away from home but now any one who expects the disease, can, if Hyomei is used, stay at home without fear of the annual attack of sneezing, watery eyes, and other discomfort.

J. F. Forbes, a well known western railroad man, whose home is at McCook, Neb., writes: "I have never had relief from any other remedy for hay fever, even temporarily, until I discovered the merits of Hyomei. I will always reccommend it whenever occasion requires."

There is no offensive stomach dosing when Hyomei is used. It is a reliable remedy for the cure of all diseases of the respiratory organs and is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, so that the air taken into the throat and lungs is like that of the White Mountains or other health resorts where hay fever is unknown.

Will Reed, who has the local agency for Hyomei, advises all who are subject to hay fever to begin its use two or three weeks before the time of the annual appearance of this disease and thus prevent the attack. If, however, Hyomei is not used until the sneezing and other disagreeable symptoms have shown themselves, it is necessary to use the treatment more frequently, at least half a dozen times daily, and Hyomei Balm should be rubbed into the nostrils both morning and night.

The fact that Will Reed agrees to refund the money to any hay fever sufferer who uses Hyomei without success, should inspire confidence in its power to effect a cure.

CLOTHING STORE BADLY SCORCHED

A BLAZE IN WELLSVILLE CAUSES MUCH DAMAGE.

Stock of Clothing Believed to Have Suffered to the Extent of $2,000.

Fire broke out shortly before 7 o'clock this morning in the Boston Clothing House on Main street, Wellsville, near Fourth street. The department responded promptly and made short work of the blaze. A. B. Walkow and son, S. A. Walkow, who are the proprietors of the clothing establishment, state that their stock, which they valued at $4,000, has been damaged to the amount of $2,000 both by fire and water. They carried $2,000 insurance in the J. W. Riley agency, and expect to realize only $1,000. The building, which is owned by George Murdock, was damaged to about $200; insured.

Mrs. R. E. Kimball, who resides on the second floor of the building, had her household goods damaged by water to the extent of about $50 and is covered by insurance in the C. R. Arnold agency.

Naming the House.

The custom of naming a ship when it is launched with the breaking of a bottle of wine on the prow is a survival of an ancient practice which had many forms. In early times, when the frame of a house was raised, the bottle of wine was broken on the ridgepole. The usage is mentioned in McLellan's "History of Gorham, Maine."

It was the custom at a raising to break a bottle of spirit on the ridgepole and to repeat some rhymes, "naming the frame," as it was called. When, in 1839, Jacob H. Clement of West Gorham raised a stable, John Phinney, an old Revolutionary soldier who was present, repeated the following lines, which he said were used in naming the frame of Captain John Stephenson's house and barn, which were raised about 1775:

FOR THE HOUSE FRAME.

Cursed is the Tory's heart
Which from the congress laws depart;
If the laws they do not fear
I hope they will not prosper here,
And if the laws they do obey
I hope they will prosper in corn and hay.

Chair Postures.

It is one thing to have a chair and another to know how to sit on it. The ideal of a graceful sitting posture has varied in the different ages of the world. The Egyptian sat bolt upright, the knees and feet closely pressed together. It was the ceremonial attitude. The Greeks and Romans, when they were at liberty to forget their dignity, sat stooping, with one or both elbows supported by the arms of the chair.

The Chinese ideal was with the knees and feet wide apart. They have maintained that attitude in sitting for 400 years. The Saxons and early Norman kings are represented in old manuscript and on coins in the same position. Down to a date comparatively recent, kings and queens received sitting stiffly on their thrones, any marked change of posture being thought to derogate from the royal dignity. They now receive standing.

A Legend of February.

Here is the pretty legend which tells why February has only twenty-eight or twenty-nine days. Long ago, they say, February was a gambler, and he was so unlucky that he soon lost all his money. Like other gamblers, he tried to recover it, and he said to his companions that if they would lend him some money he would give them as security one of his days. January and March, who were naturally associated with him more often than any of the other months, accepted his offer, and as poor February soon lost the money which he had borrowed each of them acquired one of his days.

That is why January and March have each thirty-one days and February has only twenty-eight in ordinary and twenty-nine in leap years.

BOND BUYERS AFTER INFORMATION

WHICH THE TOWN OF CHESTER WILL PROMPTLY GIVE.

Further Extension of Time to Pay Taxes and Secure Rebate.

The town council had a busy session last night. All the members were present except Councilman Dunn.

Solicitor Ingram stated to the council that he had received a communication from Seasongood & Mayer, the successful bidders for the bonds of the town, who request information in regard to what proportion of the assessable taxes of the town has been set apart for the payment of the interest on the bonds. The firm will be furnished the information desired and it is thought that the money from the sale will be soon forthcoming. No bids were received on the estimated cost of the grading of Fairview street on account of the absence from the city of Engineer Kelly, but the matter of letting the contract will be in shape by the next meeting.

Several bills were ordered paid One amounting to $155.67 for supplies, consisting of sewer pipe and cement, was held over, as it was thought the bill should be charged to the street improvement fund.

Recorder Maxwell reported that the collector's book was in readiness for turning over to the town sergeant. A proviso, made earlier in the year that those making payment of taxes before July 1 would be entitled to a discount of 5 per cent was stricken from the resolution and the same rebate allowed if taxes be paid before November 1, net January 1, and after that date a penalty of 5 per cent is to be added.

Councilman Johnston reported that Freshwater & Co. were being delayed on the paving of Second street on account of no instructions being given them whether there was to be an intersection on Second street at a point known as the old country road. Engineer Whittaker was present with a blue print of the original plat, which did not show that the road had been dedicated to the town. On motion the curbing was ordered to be set in from the bridge on Second street to Virginia avenue on the west side of the street.

Park officers, Good, Baker and Hogue, made a proposition to Mayor Mercer which he reported to council, that the officers were willing to act in the capacity of town police without any other remuneration than the regular fees from arrests of $1. The town has been put to much expense through the hiring of extra officers for duty about the park entrance and the proposition met with the favorable consideration of council. The mayor was instructed to swear the officers in as town police.

A list of delinquent taxpayers was before the meeting and the recorder was instructed to notify delinquents to pay up after 10 days' notice or legal action would be enforced. The frog pond nuisance and the light question were lost in the shuffle.

The act is novel and entertaining, and has made a tremendous hit during the week. The attendance tomorrow afternoon and evening promises to be very large, as the attraction certainly merits a liberal patronage.

CANONSBURG BOYS PLAYED POOR BALL

Seventeen Runs and Thirteen Hits Easily Scored by the Locals.

VISITING TEAM CRIPPLED

By the Desertion of Players and a Wretched Exhibition Resulted. Their Pitcher Was Wild As a Comanche Indian.

The bunch of alleged ball tossers missed a train and did not arrive here until four o'clock in the afternoon and had they missed another one or been delayed for some other reason they would have saved themselves a disgraceful defeat. Seventeen runs and thirteen hits was the record of the locals while the Pennsylvanians were piling up errors enough to last a life time. By very liberal scoring they are credited with thirteen miscues but this does not represent by half other sins against proper ball tossing.

The locals wobbled in the opening inning but settled down to a fairly good game. The greatest fault was poor throwing in which Brown and O'Leary were the principal offenders. Wallace did not make much of a showing on the poor ones. Lawrence was touched up for a couple of safeties in the first and coupled with a couple of errors two runs were made. When the Canonsburg bunch finished their first half and trotted out upon the field they looked as good as the Pittsburg Pirates and the crowd thought the locals were up against it again. Three of the visitors deserted at Pittsburg and the team was in a crippled condition. Southpaw Smith, who went to the slab, was as wild as a Comanche Indian and he soaked a trio of preachers in the ribs. He had plenty of speed but the locals straightened out his curves for further orders. Maley helped himself to three slices of the pie, one of his licks being a scorcher to right for a homer.

The locals were blanked in the first while the visitors were making two, but they took the lead in the second on Webb's safety, Reark's sacrifice, a two sacker by Lawrence, a couple of errors by Irwin and Maley's single. The visitors made one in the second on hits by Irwin and Smith and an out.

The locals "made a hundred" in the third while the visitors made the rottenest exhibition of fielding ever seen on the local grounds. Two hits, a triple by Gibson and a single by Emmerling with four errors and some weird throwing, netted 7.

Brown's poor throwing and hits by Irwin and Smith scored the last one for Canonsburg in the fourth. The locals made two more in this inning on hits by Brown and Emmerling and more rottenness by the visitors.

Maley, first up in the fifth, hit a hot liner to the club house in right and circled the bases. Four more were landed in the sixth and then the locals stopped. Irwin's error and hits by Maley, Wallace and O'Leary did the work. Score:

TWO FAST TEAMS HERE NEXT WEEK

Ohio Works, of Youngstown, And Niles Will Play a Trio of Games.

Some good base ball is promised at the local park next week. The Ohio Works team, of Youngstown, will be here Tuesday for a solitary game and Wednesday and Thursday the famous Niles aggregation will do battle with the preachers. This trio of games will certainly prove a strong drawing card.

With the Ohio works bunch is the famous Guzzie, the phenomenal second baseman, who Manager Reark tried to corrall for his team. Guzzie was then with Niles, but later went to the St. Louis Americans, where he participated in a few innings of one game. He took everything that came his way and why he was cast adrift is something of a mystery.

Manager Reark will give the local team a general shaking up for these games. He has strings out for several good players, among them Houser, Wellsville's second sacker, who played such a good game at the local park. It is not likely that Maley will be here for the games, as he goes to Crooksville Monday to accept a situation as mould maker with the Crooksville China company. His loss will be keenly felt.

Manager Reark has taken a fancy to several of the Athletics and will probably give some of them a chance to make good. Bennett and Tyson are his pick of the flock.

TOWN OF KENT BASEBALL CRAZY

Its Fans Are Gloating Over the Triple Defeat of the Locals and Our Umpires are Roasted.

Kent is base ball crazy since her team has taken three straight from East Liverpool and won the series from Niles. The games of the team here are reviewed at great length in the Kent Observer and its sporting editor delivers himself of the following bit of doggerel verse anent local umpires:

EAST LIVERPOOL.

Last year your umpire he was fine,
Fast Liverpool.
Greatest that was on the line,
East Liverpool.
This year they're the worst can be,
But we beat you, one, two, three,
For we like ous straight, you see,
East Liverpool.
Dan and Pards and Jack were there,
East Liverpool
And we beat you out for fair,
East Liverpool.
Captain France he led the troop,
In the trip around the loop,
And put your ball bunch in the soup,
East Liverpool.

THE SALEM RACES

In September to Be in Charge of Business Men of the City.

Salem, August 8.—The races at the Salem driving park for the September meet will be held on September 1, 2, 3 and 4. The driving park will be under new management this fall. P. J. Brennan, the owner, having made a proposition to a number of business men in this city to take charge of the coming meet as it will be unable to give it personal attention. The proposition was accepted and an organization will be formed at once and probably incorporated.

Mr. Brennan was present at the Wednesday evening meeting when articles of agreement were drawn up and signed. The new managers expect to elect their officers before the end of the week and get down to business.

Could Not Hit Dailey.

Youngstown, August 8.—(Special.)—The East Liverpool Athletics were defeated by the Ohio Works team here yesterday, 5 to 1. Dailey held the visitors to 2 hits and struck out 11 of them. They played a ragged game in the field, which prevented Allison being effective. The Athletics left today for Leetsdale, Pa. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
E. Liverpool	1	2	7

Pleasant Heights Club.

The base ball players of Pleasant Heights have been formed into a regular club, with John Bennett as manager. The promoters of the club have decided to scalp the diamond on top of the hill where games have been played all season, and the work is nearly finished. Suits will be purchased and the team will practice regularly. The lineup is a strong one, the team having won a large percentage of the games played during the present season.

Gone to Buffalo.

Robert Larkins, the popular young East Ender, who likes to see a horse go a fast mile, has journeyed from Mt. Clemens, Mich., where he has been health seeking, to Buffalo, where he will witness the Grand circuit races. He may bring home a fast one for the local track.

Claims the Game.

Manager Herbert, of the East End Grays, will make claim to the directors of the Crockery City league for the game scheduled for last Tuesday between his team and the Athletics. The latter team failed to put in an appearance. The Grays and Crockery City play an exhibition game today.

Visiting at Norwalk.

Pitcher Ed. Lawrence, of the local team, left last night after pitching a winner against Canonsburg, for his home in Norwalk, O., where he will make a brief visit with his parents. The "big boy" will return and finish the season here.

Wellsville Beaten.

Wellsville lost at Greenville yesterday by a score of 7 to 3. "Slab" Burns, the ex-Homesteader, pitched for Greenville, and Black for Wellsville.

Marines at Wellsville.

The Marines, with a very strong team, are playing the Wellsville base ball team this afternoon on the grounds of the latter club.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Salineville ball team played Niles and was slaughtered to the tune of 14 to 1 at Niles.

The fall meeting of the Youngstown Driving club will be held on September 15, 16, 17 and 18, and promises to be even more successful than that held in July.

Manager Streeter, of the Ohio Works base ball club, Youngstown, has signed two new players, who came very highly recommended. They are infielder James, formerly of Alliance, and catcher and infielder Starr, who has been playing for Greenville, Pa.

Beaumont is the only player in either big league who has made more runs than he has played games.

Harvey Bailey, the big southpaw of the Columbus team, who was suspended Saturday for alleged indifference in his playing, left this week for Indianapolis to join Kelly's Saints.

A deed of trust to secure loans of $100,000 has been filed by Ralph H. Orthwein, president of the St. Louis American league base ball company. The property is conveyed to Charles C. Orthwein, of Kansas City.

To Die of Paralysis Like Father.

Helpless Invalid For Three Years.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Made My Nerves Strong.

"For many years I suffered from terrible headaches and pains at the base of the brain, and finally got so bad that I was overcome with nervous prostration. I had frequent dizzy spells and was so weak and exhausted that I could take but little food. The best physicians told me I could not live; that I would die of paralysis, as my father and grandfather had. I remained a helpless invalid for three years, when I heard of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and began using it. That winter I felt better than I had before in many years, and I have not been troubled with those dreadful headaches since I first used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. My appetite is good and my nerves are strong."—Mrs. N. M. Bucknell, 2929 Oakland Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

"For many years I suffered from nervous prostration, and could not direct my household affairs, nor have any cares. My stomach was very weak, headaches very severe, and I was so nervous that there was not a night in years that I slept over one hour at a time. We spent hundreds of dollars for doctors and medicine. I was taken to Chicago and treated by specialists, but received no benefit at all. Finally I heard of Dr. Miles' Nervine and began its use. I was surprised that it helped me so quickly, and great was my joy to find, after using seven bottles, that I had fully recovered my health."—Mrs. W. A. Thompson, Duluth, Minn.

EDUCATION AS A SOLUTION OF THE RACE PROBLEM

By HERBERT BOOTH KING, Sociologist

THE race problem will not be solved by colonization nor by extermination.

IT CAN ONLY BE SOLVED BY HONEST, SYMPATHETIC CO-OPERATION BETWEEN THE WHITE AND BLACK, BETWEEN THE NORTH AND THE SOUTH.

I believe that a new era has already begun for the colored race. This hopefulness is not alone in statistics, but in conditions. THE SPIRIT OF INDEPENDENCE IS GIVING WAY TO THE SPIRIT OF SELF HELP. The question (which he himself is beginning to solve) is not alone, What shall be done with the negro? but, What will he do with himself?

"Destiny is not about thee, but in thee; thyself must make thyself," as has been truly said. "Freedom must not be a bequest but a conquest." THERE IS A GRAND WORK BEFORE THE NEGRO LEADERS OF THEIR OWN RACE. The illiteracy of the masses must be reduced, the criminal tendencies of the lower classes must be checked, the productive capacity of the wage earner must be increased, the domestic life of the race must be improved, their citizenship must be safeguarded and ennobled, AND THE DEVELOPMENT OF PERSONAL CHARACTER MUST BE STIMULATED.

"My Sons,"

said a great business man, "are my partners and they need all the strength and courage I can give them," and he forthwith paid for a $1,000,000 policy in The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. Not without the most careful investigation, however, extending over six months. He was convinced by just such facts as led the President of a National Bank in New York to make the curious and shrewd provision in his will, which is contained in "A Banker's Will." The Iowa Tariff Idea

Some Men Who Are Prominent In the Movement

GOVERNOR ALBERT B. CUMMINS of Iowa, famous for the persistency with which he has urged the "Iowa idea" of tariff reform and who is said to have won over President Roosevelt and Senator Allison to his views, is probably the most popular man in the state of which he is the chief executive.

Public interest in what is called the "Iowa idea" was quickened last fall

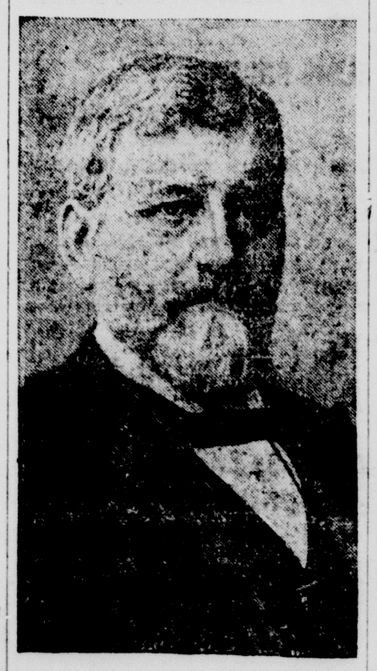
when David B. Henderson, then speaker of the national house of representatives, declined to stand for re-election rather than indorse the Iowa plan of tariff favored by Governor Cummins and indorsed by the Iowa Republican conventions of 1901 and 1902.

The pith of the "Iowa idea" was pronounced in favor of "any modification of the tariff schedules that may be required to prevent their affording a shelter to monopoly." This phraseology was too strong for Speaker Henderson, it is said, and he stepped down. In the agreement said to have been arrived at between President Roosevelt, Senator Allison and Governor Cummins the tariff idea has been made more in harmony with the tariff plank in the national Republican platform of 1896.

Governor Cummins is a native of Pennsylvania and worked his way through the common schools and the Waynesburg academy. Going west in 1869, he secured a clerkship at Elkader, Ia., and later worked as a carpenter and an express messenger. In 1871 he went to Indiana and soon became division engineer of the Cincinnati, Richmond and Fort Wayne railroad. When twenty-three years of age Mr. Cummins began to study law and two years later was admitted to the bar in Chicago. That city was his home until 1878, when he removed to Des Moines, where he has since resided.

For sixteen years Governor Cummins has been a conspicuous figure in public life. In 1893 he was a candidate for United States senator, but John H. Gear was elected. A popular speaker, he has made many friends who follow him with intense devotion. His second campaign for senator was made in 1899, when he was again defeated by the late Mr. Gear. His campaign, however, resulted in the formation of a powerful organization in his interest, and he was elected governor in 1901.

That Governor Cummins possesses talent, integrity, eloquence and a genius for politics every one in Iowa knows.



SENATOR WILLIAM B. ALLISON.

Besides this, he is considered in Iowa to be the best looking governor of any state in the upper Mississippi valley, with New York, Pennsylvania and a few other states thrown in for good measure. Personal pulchritude, however, is the last thing in the world, say his friends, that Governor Cummins would lay claim to. He is a manly man of fifty-three and a brainy one. He is broad minded and has proved conclusively that he is also a statesman.

Tall, sturdy, not too stout, with the kind of iron gray hair and mustache people call "distinguished" and with courteous, magnetic manners, the ex-executive of Iowa has rapidly put himself at the head of the Republican party in the state, although that commonwealth has been noted for the number of able leaders it possessed.

The gift of oratory was acquired by Mr. Cummins in early years, but an experience of one of his first attempts at public speaking is rendered much more amusing by the lapse of time than it was when it occurred. When he was twenty-one years old he went back to his old home in Pennsylvania on a visit. Soon after his arrival a soldiers' reunion was held there, and his friends asked him to make a speech. The meeting was held at a little crossroads, and after several of the veterans had spoken young Cummins was called upon.

He arose with all the dignity he could command and began the statement that, unfortunately for him, he was born too late to participate in the toils and dangers of a soldier's life and share in his triumphs. Just here he became afflicted with mental paralysis. After an instant of hesitation he noticed an old soldier back in a corner lean over to a companion and whisper. The whisper, however, was audible all over the house, and the speaker heard with astonishment the remark, "It's a blamed pity he was born at all." That broke the spell, and, like a flash, his scattered ideas came back to him, and he made a speech that won the approval of all his hearers, even to the whisperer in the corner.

Governor Cummins is of Scotch-Irish ancestry, his father being Scotch-Irish and his mother of Irish extraction. He was married in 1874 to Miss Ida L. Gallery of Michigan. They have one daughter.

Senator William B. Allison, who is now said to favor the "Iowa idea," has represented his state in congress for nearly forty years, thirty of them as senator. Mr. Allison was brought up in Perry, O., on his father's farm, which he assisted in working when not attending the district school. In 1857 he went to Iowa and settled in Dubuque, where he has since resided.

His congressional career opened in 1862 when he was elected to the Thirty-eighth congress. He was elected three times and declined a renomination in 1871, instead becoming a candidate for the senate. After a long contest he defeated Senator James Harlan and took his seat in 1873.

Senator Allison is a ready, earnest debater, not easily disconcerted by attack and always clear and logical in the presentation of his arguments. Never a bitter partisan, he has always held the respect of public men in both parties. He is in comfortable circumstances, but far from being a millionaire.

The veteran statesman was recently re-elected to his sixth term in the senate. He is of Irish extraction and is seventy-four years old. Before the death of his wife his home on Vermont avenue, Washington, was one of the social centers of the capital.

Hon. David B. Henderson, who declined to stand for re-election because, it is said, of the views of his party in Iowa on the tariff question, was ten times elected to the house of representatives and twice was speaker of that body.

He was born in Scotland sixty-three years ago and came to this country as a child. He served in the civil war, where he lost a leg. As speaker of the house of representatives he was popular and was generally considered an impartial presiding officer. Indications seem to point to the growth of the so-called "Iowa idea."

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

CHAPTER I.—Grenfall Lorry, a wealthy American globe trotter, stumbles into acquaintance with a charming foreign girl on the train from Denver to Washington. The pair are left behind when the flier stops for repairs in West Virginia. II.—Lorry wires ahead to hold the train. He and the unknown girl ride twenty miles at a tearing pace in a mountain coach. Lorry knows it is a dangerous ride. There is no love-making, but a near approach to it as the rolling stage tumbles the passengers about. III.—Lorry dines with the foreign party, consisting of Miss Guggenslocker, Uncle Caspar and Aunt Yvonne. They are natives of Graustark, a country Lorry had never heard of before. IV.—Lorry shows the foreigners the sights of Washington. They leave for New York to sail on the Kaiser Wilhelm. Miss Guggenslocker naively calls Lorry her "Ideal American" and invites him to come and see her at Edelweiss. V.—Wildly infatuated, Lorry hurries to New York. The name Guggenslocker is not on the steamer list. He sees the steamer off. Miss G. waves him a kiss from the deck. VI.—Lorry joins his old friend, Harry Anguish, an American artist in Paris. Graustark and its capital Edelweiss, are lorded by a guide book. The Americans get no trace of the Guggenslockers there. VII.—Lorry sees his charmer driving in a carriage with a beautiful companion of her own sex. He gets a glance of recognition, but the carriage rolls on, leaving the mystery unsolved. Later he receives a note at his hotel signed Sophia Guggenslocker, inviting him to visit her next day. VIII.—In the evening Lorry and Anguish ramble about the grounds of the castle where dwells the court of the princess of Graustark.

"He should be here at 12," said one of the newcomers in a low voice and in fairly good English. The other merely grunted. There was a silence of some duration, broken by the first speaker.

"If this job fails and you are caught, it will mean years of servitude."

"But in that case we are to have 10,000 gavvos apiece for each year we lie in prison. It's fair pay—not only for our failure, but for our silence," said the other, whose English was more difficult to understand.

Anguish's fingers gripped Lorry's leg, but there was no sound from either of the thoroughly aroused dreamers. "A plot, as I live," thought each, with a thrill.

"We must be careful to speak only in English. There are not twenty people in Edelweiss who understand it, but the night has ears. It is the only safe tongue. Geddos speaks it well. He should be here." It was the first speaker who uttered these words, little knowing that he had listeners other than the man to whom he spoke.

A dark figure shot across the roadway, and, almost before the Americans were aware of it, the party numbered three.

"Ah, Geddos, you are punctual."

"I have found it ever a virtue," responded the newcomer.

"Have you secured your men?"

"I have, your"—

"Sh! Call me Michael, on your life! They are ready and willing to undertake the venture?"

"Yes, but they do not understand the true conditions. I have told them that we are to rob the castle and carry the booty to Ganlook before morning."

"They do not know the real object of the raid, then. That is as I desired. Are they trusty and experienced men?"

"The best—or the worst—that I could find in Vienna. Not one understands our language, and they are so ignorant of our town that they are entirely dependent on me. They know nothing whatever of the princess, Michael, and will do only as they are told, realizing that if caught they will be guillotined. I have told them it is the royal palace we are to rifle. Ostrom here and I are the only ones except yourself and the men who will aid us inside the castle, who know the truth, sir."

"It cannot fail unless those inside prove false or unworthy," said the hoarse voiced Ostrom. Anguish's fingers were gripping Lorry's leg so fiercely that the blood was ready to burst out, but he did not feel the pain. Here, then, was some gigantic plot in which the person of the princess herself was to be considered. Was it an assassination?

"You have five of these Viennese?"

"Yes; two to stand beneath the window to receive the booty as we lower it to the ground, one to stand

"He should be here at 12."

guard at the west gate and two to attend the carriage and horses in the ravine beyond the castle."

"When did these men arrive?"

"This morning. I kept them in my sister's home until an hour ago. They are now in the ravine awaiting Ostrom and myself. Are you sure, Michael, that the guards and the cook have been made to understand every detail? The faintest slip will mean ruin."

"They are to be trusted fully. Their pay is to be high enough to make it an object to be infallible. The guard, Rudon, will leave the gate unwatched and you will chloroform him, with his consent, of course. You will enter, as I have explained before, and crawl along in the dark shadow of the wall until you reach the arbor that leads to the kitchen and scullery. Here another guard, Rabbo, known to Ostrom as a comrade in her royal highness' service not more than a year ago, will be encountered. He will be bound and gagged without the least noise or struggle. Just as the clock strikes 2 the cook will walk past the scullery window in the basement thrice, carrying a lighted candle. You will see this light through the window and will know that all is well inside the castle. Ostrom, you will then lead the two Viennese to a place directly beneath the third window in the princess' sleeping apartment. There are several clumps of shrubbery there, and under these they will hide, protected from the gaze of any watchman who is not with us. You and Geddos will be admitted to the scullery by the cook, who will conduct you to the hall leading to her highness' bedroom. The man who guards her door is called Dannox. He will not be at his post, but will accompany you when you leave the castle. You will understand how carefully you must enter her room and how deeply she must be chloroformed. In the adjoining room her lady in waiting, the Countess Dagmar, sleeps. If her door is ajar, you are to creep in and chloroform her, leaving her undisturbed. Then the princess is to be wrapped in the cloth you take with you and lowered from the window to the men below. They are to remain in hiding until you have left the castle and have reached their side. It will not be difficult, if caution is observed, for you to get outside of the wall and to the carriage in the ravine. I have given you this plan of action before, I know, but I desire to impress it firmly upon your minds. There must not be the slightest deviation. The precision of clockwork is necessary."

The man named Michael hissed the foregoing into the ears of his companions, the palsied Americans hearing every word distinctly. They scarcely breathed, so tremendous was the restraint imposed upon their nerves. A crime so huge, so daring as the abduction of a princess, the actual invasion of a castle to commit the theft of a human being just as an ordinary burglar would steal in and make away with the contents of a silver chest, was beyond their power of comprehension.

"We understand fully how it is to be done, and we shall get her to Ganlook on time," said Geddos confidently.

"Not a hair of her head must be harmed," cautioned the arch conspirator. "In four days I shall meet you at Ganlook. You will keep her in close confinement until you hear from me. Have you the guard's uniforms that you are to wear tonight?"

"They are with the carriage in the ravine. Ostrom and I will don them before going to the castle. In case we are seen they will throw observers off the track long enough for us to secure a good start in our flight."

"Remember, there is to be no failure. This may mean death to you, certainly a long prison term, if you are apprehended. I know it is a daring deed, but it is just of the kind that succeeds. Who would dream that mortal man could find the courage to steal a princess of the realm from her bed and spirit her away from under the very noses of her vaunted guardsmen? It is the bold, the impossible plan that wins."

"We cannot fail if your men on the inside do their work well," said Geddos, repeating what Ostrom had said. "All depends on their faithfulness."

"They will not be found wanting. Your cutthroats must be sent on to Calas with the empty carriage after you have reached Ganlook in safety. You will need them no more. Ostrom will pay them, and they are to leave the country as quickly as possible. At Calas they will be able to join a pack train that will carry them to the Great Northern railroad. From there they will have no trouble in reaching Vienna. You will explain to them, Geddos. All we need them for, as you know, is to prove by their mere presence in case of capture that the attempt was no more than a case of burglary conceived by a band of Viennese robbers. There will be no danger of capture if you once get her outside the walls. You can be half way to Ganlook before she is missed from the castle. Nor can she be found at Ganlook if you follow the instructions I gave last night. It is now nearly 1 o'clock, and in half an hour the night will be as dark as Erebus. Go, men; you have no more time to lose, for this must be accomplished slowly, carefully, deliberately. There must be no haste until you are ready for the race to Ganlook. Go, but, for God's sake, do not harm her! And do not fail!"

"Failure means more to us than to you, Michael," half whispered the hoarse Ostrom.

"Failure means everything to me! I must have her!"

Already the two hirelings were moving off toward the road that ran west of the castle grounds. Michael watched them for a moment and then started swiftly in the direction of the city. The watchers had not been able to distinguish the faces of the conspirators, but they could never forget the calm, cold voice of Michael, with its quaint, jerky English.

"What shall we do?" whispered Anguish when the men were out of hearing.

"God knows!" answered Lorry. "This is the most damnable thing I ever heard of. Are we dreaming? Did we really see and hear those men?" He had risen to his feet, his companion sitting weakly before him.

"There's no question about it! It's a case of abduction, and we have it in our power to spoil the whole job. By gad, but this is luck, Gren!" Anguish was quivering with excitement as he rose to his feet. "Shall we notify old Dangloss or alarm the steward? There's no time to be lost if we want to trap these fellows. The chief devil is bound to escape, for we can't get him and the others too, and they won't peach on him. Come, we must be lively! What are you standing there for? The trap must be set!"

"Wait! Why not do the whole job ourselves?"

"How—what do you mean?"

"Why should we alarm anybody? We know the plans as well as these scoundrels themselves. Why not follow them right into the castle, capture them red handed, and then do the alarming? I'm in for saving the Princess of Graustark with our own hands and right under the noses of her vaunted guardsmen, as Michael says." Lorry was thrilled by the spirit of adventure. His hand gripped his friend's arm and his face was close to his ear. "It is the grandest opportunity two human beings ever had to distinguish themselves!"

"Great heaven, man! We can't do such a thing!" gasped Anguish.

"It's the easiest thing in the world. Besides, if we fail, we have nothing to lose. If we succeed, see what we've done! Don't hesitate, old man! Come on! Come on! We'll take 'em ourselves, as sure as fate. Have you no nerve? What kind of an American are you? This chance won't come in ten lifetimes! Are we not equal to those two scoundrels?"

"Two! There are at least ten of them!"

"You fool! The three guards are disposed of in advance, two of the Viennese are left with the horses, two are chucked off under the princess' window, and one stands at the gate. We can slug the man at the gate, the fellows under the window are harmless, and that leaves but our two friends and the cook. We have every advantage in the world. Can't you see?"

"You are right! Come on! I'll risk it with you! We will save the Princess of Graustark!"

"Don't you see it will be just as easy for us to enter the castle as for these robbers? The way will be clear and will be kept clear. Jove, man, we need not be more than thirty seconds behind them. Is your pistol all right?"

By this time the two men were speeding along the grassy stretch toward the road that ran beside the wall. They looked to their pistols and placed them carefully in outside coat pockets.

"We must throw away these heavy canes," whispered the painter to his friend, who was a pace or so ahead.

"Keep it! We'll need one of them to crack that fellow's head at the gate. Gad, it's dark along here!"

"How the devil are we to know where to go?"

"We'll stop when we come to the gate where we climbed up the wall today. That is the only entrance I saw along the west wall, and it is near the castle. Just as soon as the gang enters that gate we'll crawl up and get rid of the fellow who stands watch."

It was so dark that they could barely see the roadway, and they found it necessary to cease talking as they slunk along beside the wall. Occasionally they paused to listen, fearing that they might draw too close upon the men who had gone before. At last they came to a big gate and halted.

"Is this the gate?" whispered Anguish.

"Sh! Yes; I'm quite sure. We are undoubtedly near the castle, judging by the distance we have come. Let us cross the road and lie directly opposite. Be careful!"

Like panthers they stole across the road and down a short grassy embankment. At Anguish's suggestion Lorry capped his handkerchief tightly about the heavy end of his cane, preparing in that way to deaden the sound of the blow that was to fall upon the Vienna man's head. Then they threw aside their hats, buttoned their coats tightly and sank down to wait, with bounding hearts and tingling nerves, the arrival of the abductors, mutely praying that they were at the right gate.

CHAPTER IX.

THE EXPLOIT OF LORRY AND ANGUISH.

DURING the half hour spent in the grassy ditch or gutter they spoke not more than half a dozen times and in the faintest of whispers. They could hear the guard pacing the driveway inside the ponderous gate, but aside from his footsteps no sound was distinguishable. A sense of oppression came over the two watchers as the minutes grew longer and more deathlike in their stillness.

They knew nothing of the surroundings. If they failed, there was the danger of being shot by the guards before an explanation could be made. If they succeeded, it must be through sheer good fortune and not through prowess of mind or muscle. Both knew the sensible, judicious act would be to alarm the guards and thus avoid all possible chance of a fiasco. With misgivings and doubts in their hearts the two self appointed guardians of the princess lay there upon the grass, afraid to give up the project, yet fearing the outcome.

"The dickens will be to pay, Lorry, if they dispose of this guard on the inside and lock the gate. Then how are we to follow?" whispered Anguish.

Lorry was thoughtful for awhile. He felt the chill of discouragement in his heart.

"In that case we must lie outside and wait till they come out with the princess; then make a sudden assault and rescue her. In the darkness we can make them think there are a dozen rescuers," he whispered at length. After awhile Anguish asked another appalling question, the outgrowth of brain racking study:

"Suppose these fellows, who will be in guards' uniform, should turn about and capture us. What then? We are strangers, and our story would not be believed. They could slip away in the excitement and leave us in a very awkward position."

"Harry, if we are going to hatch up all sorts of possibilities, let's give up the thing right now. I have thought of a thousand contingencies, and I realize how desperate the job is to be. We must either cast discretion to the winds or we must retreat. Which shall we do?"

"Cast aside discretion and hang our fears," said the other, once more inspired. "We'll take chances and hope for the best. If we see we are going to fail, we can then call for the guards. The grounds are doubtless full of soldiers. The only part I'm worried about is the groping through that strange dark castle."

"We must do some calculating, and we must stick close together. By watching where they station the two Viennese we can figure about what direction we must take to get to the princess' room. Sh! Isn't that some one approaching?"

They strained their ears for a moment and then involuntarily, spasmodically shook hands, each heaving the deep breath of excitement. The stealthy rustle of moving bodies was heard, faint, but positive. It was a moment of suspense that would have strained the nerve of a stone image. Where were the abductors? On which side of the road and from what direction did they come? Oh, for the eyes of a cat!

There was a slight shuffling of feet near the gate, a suppressed "Sh!" and then deathly silence. The gate opened, a faint creaking attesting the fact, followed by the heavy breathing of men, the noise of subdued activity, the scent of chloroform, some whispering and then the creaking of the gate.

"They've gone," whispered Anguish. Lorry's form arose to a crouching posture, and a moment later he was crossing the road with the tread of a cat, his cane gripped firmly in his hand. Anguish followed with drawn revolver. So still was their approach that they were upon the figure of a man before they were aware of the fact. In the darkness the foremost American saw the outline of a human figure bending over a long object on the ground. He could smell chloroform strongly and grasped the situation. The Viennese was administering the drug, his companions having left that duty for him to perform. No doubt the treacherous guardsman was lying calmly on his back, bound and gagged, welcoming unconsciousness with a smile of security.

As soon as Lorry gained his bearings fully he prepared to fell the wretch who was to stand watch. Anguish heard his friend's figure suddenly shoot to an erect position. There was a whirring sound as of disturbed air and then a dull thud. Something rolled over on the ground, and all was still. He was at Lorry's side in an instant.

"I hope I haven't killed him!" whispered Lorry. "Quick! Here is his bottle of ether. Hold it beneath his nose. I am going to pile the body of this guard crosswise on top of him. He will not be able to arise if he should recover consciousness."

All this was done in a moment's time, and the two trackers were headed for the entrance. The gate was ajar two or three feet. With turbulent hearts they stole through.

Without hesitation they crept over the noiseless grass close beside the wall. Directly they heard sounds near at hand. The abductors were binding and chloroforming the guard at the arbor. After waiting for some moments they heard the party glide away in the darkness and followed. The body of the guard was lying just outside the mouth of the arbor, and the odor of chloroform was almost overpowering. Once inside the long arbor, the Americans moved slowly and with greater caution. There was a dim light in a basement window ahead. Toward the front of the castle and in the second story a faint glow came from another window. They guessed it to be from the princess' room or from that of the countess.

At last they saw four figures steal past the dim basement light. One of them halted near the window and three crept away in the darkness. Presently one of them returned, and all activity was at an end for the time being. How near it was to 2 o'clock the watchers could not tell. They only knew that they were within twenty-five feet of Geddos and Ostrom and that they would not have long to wait.

Soon a bright little blaze of light crossed the basement opening. Then it returned, crossing a second time and a third. All was still again. The soft shuffle of a foot, the rustle of arbor vines, and the form of a man crawled up to the window. With inconceivable stealth and carefulness it glided through the aperture, followed by a companion.

Lorry and Anguish were at the opening a second or two later, lying flat on their stomachs and listening for sounds from within. The dim light was still there, the window was open and there was a sound of whispering. Lorry raised his head and peered through, taking calculations while the light made it possible. He saw an open door on the opposite side of the low room, with steps beyond leading upward. Between the window and the door there were no obstacles. Up those steps he saw three men creep, the leader carrying the dim light. The door was left open, doubtless to afford unimpeded exit from the building in case of emergency. Harry Anguish touched Lorry's arm.

"I took the two pistols from that Vienna man out there. We may need them. Here is one for yourself. Go first, Lorry," he whispered.

Lorry stuck the revolver in his coat pocket and gently slid through the window to the floor below. His friend followed, and they paused to listen. Taking Anguish by the hand the other led the way straight to the spot where he remembered seeing the door.

"A sound and you die!" he hissed.

Boldly the two men began the breathless ascent of the stone steps. The top was reached, and far ahead, down a narrow hall, they saw the three men and the dim light moving. Two of them wore uniforms of guards. Keeping close to the wall, their followers crept after them. Up another flight of steps they went and then through a spacious hall. The Americans had no time and no desire to inspect their surroundings. The wide doors at the far side of the room opened softly, and here the trio paused. Down a great marble hallway a dim red light shed its soft glow. It came from the lamp at the foot of the broad staircase.

The cook pointed to the steps and then gave his thumb a jerk toward the left. Without the least sign of fear Geddos and Ostrom glided into the hall and made for the staircase. The watchers could not but feel a thrill of admiration for these daring wretches. But now a new danger confronted them. The cook remained standing in the doorway watching his fellows in crime! How were they to pass him?

There was no time to be lost. The abductors were creeping up the steps already, and the cook must be disposed of. He had blown out the light which he carried and was now a very dim shadow. Lorry glided forward and in an instant stood before the amazed fellow, jamming a pistol into his face.

"A sound and you die!" he hissed.

"Don't move!" came another whisper, and a second revolver touched his ear. The cook, perhaps, did not know their language, but he certainly understood its meaning. He trembled and would have fallen to the floor had not the strong hand of Lorry pinned him to the wall. The hand was on his throat too.

"Chloroform him, Harry, and don't let him make a sound!" whispered the owner of the hand. Anguish's twitching fingers succeeded those of his friend on the cook's throat, his pistol was returned to his pocket, and the little bottle came again into use.

"I'll go ahead. Follow me as soon as you have finished this fellow. Be careful and turn to the left when you come to the top."

Lorry was off across the marble floor, headed for the stairway, and Anguish was left in charge of the cook, of whom he was to make short work. Now came the desperate, uncertain part of the transaction. Suppose he were to meet the two conspirators at the head of the stairs, or in the hall, or that the other traitor, Dannox, should appear to frustrate all. It was the most trying moment in the whole life of the reckless Lorry.

When near the top of the steps, he hugged the high balustrade and cautiously peered ahead. He found himself looking down a long hall, at the far end of which, to his right, a dim light was burning. There was no sound and there was no sign of the two men either to the right or to the left. His heart felt like lead. They evidently had entered the princess' room. How was he to find that room? Slowly he wriggled across the broad, dark hall, straightening up in the shadow of a great post. From this point he edged along the wall for a distance of ten or twelve feet to the left. A sound came from farther down the hall, and he imagined he heard some one approaching.

His hand came in contact with a heavy hanging or tapestry, and he quickly squirmed behind its folds, finding himself against a door which moved as his body touched it. He felt it swing open slightly and drew back, intending to return to the hall, uncertain and very much undecided as to the course to pursue. His revolver was in his hand. Just as he was about to pull aside the curtain a man glided past, quickly followed by another. Providence had kept him from running squarely into them. They were going toward the left, and he realized that they were now approaching the princess' room. How he came to be ahead of them he could not imagine. Again he felt the door move slightly as he pressed against it. The necessity for a partial recovery of his composure before the next and most important step impelled him softly to enter the room for an instant's breath.

Holding to the door, he stood inside and drew himself to his full height, taking a long and tremulous breath. There was no light in the room, but through the door crack to his left came a dim, broad streak. He now knew where he was. This room was next to that in which the princess slept, for had he not seen the light from her window? Perhaps he was now in the room of the Countess Dagmar. Next door! Next door! Even now the daring Geddos and Ostrom were crawling toward the bed of the ruler of Graustark, not twenty feet away. His first impulse was to cross and open the door leading to the next room, surmising that it would be unlocked, but he remembered Anguish, who was doubtless, by this time, stealing up the stairs. They must not be separated, for it would require two steady, cool heads to deal with the villains. It was not one man's work. As he turned to leave the room he thought how wonderfully well they had succeeded in the delicate enterprise so far.

His knees struck the door, and there was a dull thump, not loud in reality, but like the report of a gun to him. A sudden rustle in the darkness of the room, and then a sleepy voice, soft and quick, as of a woman awakening with a start:

"Who is it?"

His heart ceased beating, his body grew stiff and immovable. Again the voice, a touch of alarm in it now:

"Is that you, Dannox?"

She spoke in German, and the voice came from somewhere in front and to his right. He could not answer, could not move. The paralysis of indecision was upon him.

"How is it that the outer door is open?"

This time there was something like a reprimand in the tones, still low. He almost could see the wide open, searching eyes.

HOME AFFAIRS

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature and of Matters About Town.

A Son Born — A son was born last evening to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coleman, of Lisbon street.

Turtle Hunters—John Coons and John Mitchell returned yesterday from Inverness, where they engaged in a mammoth turtle hunt. They brought home half a dozen turtles, aggregating 80 pounds in weight.

Needle Extracted—Helen, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gill, of Fourth street, got a rusty needle in her foot a week ago and it caused her much pain. Dr. Harrison was successful in getting it out and she is getting along nicely.

Outing of German Singers — Members of the Gesangverein-Leiderkranz, to the number of 30, will go to Wheeling tomorrow to partucipate in the meeting of the German singing societies of this section. An outing for the visitors has been planned at Mozart park by the Wheeling societies.

Not Mrs. Lytle—For fear there may have been some misunderstanding in regard to the matter, Mrs. Minnie Lytle, of Steubenville, desires the News Review to say that the Miss Minnie Lytle, who was involved in a saloon row there recently was not in any way connected with the Steubenville lady.

Mayor Set Him Free—Tommy Ward was the only victim to fall in to the hands of the police last night, and he was so drunk he scarcely realized what was transpiring until this morning. When he faced the mayor he begged so pitifully to be allowed to go and made promises of so binding a nature that Mayor Weaver discharged him.

City Mission Meeting—The executive committee for the city mission movement will meet in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. next Friday afternoon. Every church in the city will be invited to have representatives at the meeting and an announcement will be made from local pulpits tomorrow. Mrs. Moreland, who has been appointed city missionary, will be present at the meeting.

Orchestra Director — Arrangements have been completed whereby Prof. Albert Hatch, the well known musician of this city, will have charge and direct the Grand Opera House orchestra during the coming season. Prof. Hatch has been very successful in former years, and on this occasion has made a good move in the selection of a leader. Prof. William J. Steinhauser, a violinist of note, has been engaged and will add strength to the already excellent musical organization. Prof. Steinhauser is a native of Elmira, N. Y., and will arrive in this city some time during the present month.

It is sure to command the trade of its district and neighborhood and it is grocery stores located as this is that make the money. Location overcomes the necessity of meeting ruinous competition and with less expenses and with regular trade the merchant prospers when his contemporary in the city's center does five times the business and makes less. We have 25 times as many more properties. Call and see us about any or all of them. We will sell on terms to suit your income. Why pay rent when you can own a home? Don't you know that by paying a dollar on each $100 you owe will wipe out the debt and interest in ten years? For instance, fifteen dollars paid monthly for ten years will pay off a $1,500 debt and interest. It's not how much money one spends but how one spends it that makes one's financial weal or woe.

RAILROAD COMMITTEE MET SERVICE BOARD

The Demands of the Railroad Company Remain Practically Unchanged.

The railroad committee of city council, Messrs. Barlow, Bullock and Cannon, held a conference with the service board after the regular session of that body last evening, to discuss the questions involved in the proposed improvements of the C. & P. railroad through this city. The members of the committee, two of whom served in the old council, were thoroughly posted on the situation and the session with the service board was not a lengthy one. It has been announced that a partial agreement was made but that a report will not be prepared until the next meeting of council.

The terms of the settlement will remain practically the same as announced a few days ago, after a meeting of the service board. Objection has been made to the phraseology of the compact, which has been prepared by attorneys for the railroad company, and the document will be submitted to the city solicitor before it is finally acted upon.

The session of the service board was taken up for the most part with the disposal of numerous bills all of which, except that of the Ceramic City Light company, were ordered paid. This bill will be investigated because of a difference in the police reports of the hours certain lights burned and the claim of the company.

Part of the employes of the water works department and some of the street men must wait until next week for their money, as the appropriation made by council has been exhausted. There is plenty of money in the water works fund and another appropriation will be made by council.

Judge Will Be Arbitrator.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 8.—Judge George Gray, who has consented to act as an arbitrator to settle the differences existing between the coal miners and operators in Alabama, left for the south to assume his duties.

Modern Sun Worshipers.

In Europe several persons now sedulously pay homage to the sun, and in a learned journal, entitled L'Ecole Nouvelle, one of them maintains that the sun should be especially honored at Christmas.

"Christmas should be regarded as a festival for the benefit of humanity," he says. "In this way we can once more become united with the Aryans, our ancestors, who worshiped fire and who celebrated the birth of the divine constellation, who is the father of light, of heat and of life."

He then suggests that the following prayer be said daily:

"O thou who causest lies to vanish, who drivest away the evil influence of prodigies, of malignant predictions, of dreams and of wicked apparitions—O thou who bringest to naught the plots of the wicked, to thee we pray, Lord Sun, since thou art the light of the world."

An Orchid Tragedy.

Perhaps Madagascar has claimed more orchid hunters' lives and been the scene of more revolting acts of cruelty than any other place. Some years ago a German orchid fancier, while seeking some specimens in the forests of this island, was captured by some of the native priests, who, after covering him with oil, burned him alive. Another collector who was seized by some of the same priests was allowed to choose between being burned alive or himself setting fire to some fagots on which lay another prisoner, also an orchid collector, and thus saving his own life. He chose the latter alternative and died six months later a lunatic.

Antiquity of Wrestling.

Probably the first authentic record of a wrestling match is in A. D. 1222, when chivalry on the European continent was undergoing a change for the better. During the reign of Henry III. of England a match took place in St. Giles' field, London, between citizens of Westminster and the city of London proper. Wrestling was, however, popular as a pastime in England at a much earlier period, and from that country many of the different styles originated.

He recommends outside closets until permanent improvements can be made. Common sense, instead of the letter of the law, should guide the board in establishing reasonable sanitary condition. He asks prompt action in abating the nuisance in front of his property.

Bills aggregating $142.60 were ordered paid, and an account presented from the Sanitary Reduction company was turned down. The bill was for $300, and was charged for three months' service of the garbage furnace. The clerk was instructed to inform the company that the board would refuse to honor the bill.

The sanitary policeman reported that to the present John Cain and John Q. A. Fowler had failed to abate nuisances after being notified to do so. The officer was instructed to consult the city solicitor, and proceed against the parties.

The drainage on St. George street in the East End was said to be in bad shape. The condition of the street could not be charged up to the property owners, as the thoroughfares had not been properly laid out, and upon the occasion of every freshet the water accumulated and laid about in pools. The clerk was instructed to communicate with the service board with a view of changing the construction of the gutters.

The condition of Alex Chafin's addition in the East End was reported intolerable, and it was asked that numerous nuisances be ordered abated at once. The sanitary policeman will take the same action under the direction of the city solicitor as has been specified before.

The report of the health officer showed that during the month of July the number of births was: Males, 16; females, 27. Deaths—males, 3; females, 8. Three cases of scarlet fever were reported during the month, none of which proved fatal; also three cases of chicken pox.

THE AMERICAN OF THE FUTURE

May Be Radically Different on Account of Immigration.

PERCENTAGE OF ALIENS

Not As Great Now As Formerly, on Account of Increased Population. The New Arrivals, Their Nature and Nativity—A Fusion of Races.

One out of every 95 persons in the United States today came from foreign lands within a year, to stay here indefinitely and make this country his home, at least for the present. In the fiscal year ending with June 30, 1882, one immigrant came for every 67 residents. The number of home-seekers then was less by about 68,000 than it was in the last 12 months, but 21 years ago the population of the United States was not within 30,000,000 of the present total.

It is well to consider the wonderful immigration record of the last fiscal year with this fact clearly fixed in mind. It shows that although all earlier figures were surpassed decisively the addition to the great multitude of Americans, native-born or naturalized and amalgamated, was relative smaller than it had been in several other years when the country was much less thoroughly developed and not nearly so well occupied. As far back as 1850 one immigrant came to the United States for every 60 people then in the country, and the immigration of the fiscal year just ended was smaller, in proportion to the population, than the inflow of foreigners in any one of 10 equal periods, most of them half a century back in the history of the great republic.

Hence no one need fear that the coming of more than 857,000 foreigners hoping to establish themselves in American homes will disrupt or revolutionize the character of the American people or their institutions. The American nation might absorb and assimilate 1,250,000 immigrants in a single year with less strain and risk than the coming of 375,000 annually implied in the early fifties of the nineteenth century. But that immigration of half a century ago was a grave problem. There is a world of power and vital influence in the immigration of the last fiscal year, but it is relative as one to one hundred or more. The overwhelming mass of the population remains very American.

But from any point of view the coming of nearly a million natives of many lands to make their homes in the United States is an event of the highest interest. It is far more important than almost any other news of the day. It means tremendous national growth and a good deal of national change, not suddenly and violently, but in blood and temperament and in the varied characteristics of the American people. The fact that the immigration of the last fiscal year was about 68,000 in excess of any previous record for an equal period and more than 210,000 above the figures for the preceding year, is also proof of the most convincing kind that the country has been very prosperous, not only for the rich few, but for the multitudes who live by the toil of their hands.

No other land compares well with the United States as a magnet for home-seekers. Canada and the Argentine Republic, Australia and Brazil, have more unoccupied and reasonably fertile soil, but not one of these countries of small population and large natural resources draws from the crowded hives of toil and poverty in the Old World as America does. The great republic is the greatest hope of the oppressed and the unfortunate of Europe, just as it has been for many generations. This is one of the risks and burdens entailed by American prosperity, and so far congress has considered it best to face the chances of in flowing life, however great.

The parts of Europe which have been feeling the attraction of America most strongly in the last year are not the nations from which most of the home-seekers of 20 years ago started in their search of happiness and fortune. Then Germany, the British Isles and the Scandinavian Peninsula were the chief sources of emigration to the United States. In the last fiscal year the Italians came 230,000 strong, and the Austro-Hungarian empire sent more than 206,000 of its people. About 136,000 left the dominions of the czar. Here are 572,000 immigrants out of a total of 857,000, leaving only 285,000 for the rest of the world, and Asia contributed 30,000 to the total.

These facts mean much. They show a strong movement toward changing the American people from a nation almost wholly of North European origin to one which may be quite a complete fusion of the principal races and nationalities of Europe. The countries of the watershed of the Mediterranean and the Black Sea are furnishing a great share of the immigrants now, and the vast majority come from lands east and south of the states which were the early builders of the white man's America. The Latins and the Slavs are going to play an important part in making the American republic of the future what it is destined to be.

This means a warmer temperament, more love of color and gayety, more passion, and more inclination toward art and music. It tends to strengthen the Catholic church beyond all other religious bodies. Not less than 550,000 immigrants of the last 12 months seem to have been adherents of the Roman Catholic church. About 160,000 were Protestants. The rest were Jews Greek Catholics, Buddhists and believers in various other religions.

The Latins and the Slavs will apparently lower the average stature of the American people a little, but they will not lessen its weight or strength. They will tend to increase the proportion of dark-haired Americans, and they will probably make the patriotism of the future American nation even more passionate and intense than that of the earlier America. There is great capacity for fervid feeling in the races which are pouring into the ports of the United States in these prosperous times.

Altogether, the future America may be all the more interesting, varied, many-sided and imposing for the vast river of new blood and novel customs and ideas flowing into the country which is destined to remain for ages the chief hope of human progress, the pride of lovers of freedom, the magnet drawing to its ports the troubled and the ambitious of less favored lands. But the change must not be too rapid. It is time to think of floodgates to check the tide.

THOUSANDS WILL GO FROM BUCKEYE STATE

Ohio G. A. R. Will Be Strongly Represented at San Francisco Encampment.

Salem, August 8. — Commander Yengling says about 3,000 Ohio people will attend the national encampment at San Francisco, and that 400 or more will go on the special train which leaves this city Tuesday morning.

The department of Ohio will take up their headquarters in San Francisco at the Palace hotel, which has already been decorated at the expense of the department. Ohio will be entitled to 35 delegates at the encampment from each of the 35 districts and one delegate at large from the department commander and his staff who are delegates by virtue of their office. Commander Yengling has appointed about 3,000 aides who expect to attend. Memorial post No. 41, of Cleveland, will be the commander's escort during the encampment. They will lead the Ohio delegation in the parade, which will be one of the principal attractions to the public. The department banner will be taken and will be used in decorating the state headquarters.

Ohio has no aspirants to national honors and the delegates go uninstructed. D. S. Wilder, of Columbus, will be the delegate at large. Ohio has 599 posts and 27,200 members.

The W. R. C. special will leave Lima Tuesday morning and will join the G. A. R. special at Colorado Springs, Col. It is under command of J. Corey Winans, of Troy, O. Sarah D. Winans, of Toledo, is a candidate for national president.

Circling the Globe in Record Time.

Seattle, Aug. 8.—According to a cable J. W. Sayer, who is traveling around the world for the Seattle Times in an effort to break the best previous record, sailed from Germany on the steamer Campania and will reach Seattle in just 55 days after he left. If he makes it in this time he will have broken the world's record of 60 days, 16½ hours, made by Charles C. Fitzmorris, before the completion of the trans-Siberian railway.

Strikers Rioting in Russia.

Kieff, Russia, Aug. 8.—The disturbances were again renewed, the strikers parading the town, breaking windows, invading workshops and compelling workmen to join them. The Cossacks fired upon a crowd on the bank of the Dnieper after they had been assailed by a shower of stones. Several were wounded. The tramways have suspended and bakeries are closed. The price of bread is rising.

Letters from Women

Cured by the use of Kodol are received daily. Their troubles nearly all begin with indigestion or other stomach disorder.

If the food you eat fails to give strength to your body, it is because the juices secreted by the stomach and digestive organs are inadequate to transform the nutrient properties of the food into blood. That is indigestion. The system is deprived of the amount of nourishment required to keep up the strength, and the result is that one or more of the delicate organs gradually grows weak, and then weaker, until finally it is diseased. Here a great mistake is made. That of treating the diseased organ. The best doctors in the land make this very mistake. Why should they? It is so easy to see that the trouble is not there.

Kodol Cures

This famous remedy puts the stomach and digestive organs in a healthy condition so that rich, red blood is sent coursing through the veins and arteries of every muscle, tissue and fiber throughout every organ of the entire body, and by Nature's law of health, full strength and vigor is soon restored to each.

Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders.

I have taken Kodol for nearly two months after each meal and it is the only remedy that gave relief from the terrible pains I endured. After a time I would take it but once a day, and now, while I keep a bottle handy, I seldom need it, as it has cured me

ARMY CAREER CLOSED

Lieutenant General Miles Retires from Active Service Today.

GEN. YOUNG TO ASSUME DUTIES

Parting Words from Retiring Commander—The Army in the Past and Its Welfare in the Future—Glorious Example Set by Washington.

Washington, Aug. 8.—Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, commanding the army, will retire from active service at noon, having reached the age limit of 64 years.

Orders have been issued assigning Lieutenant General Young to the command of the army until Aug. 15, when he will assume the duties of chief of staff; assigning Major General Corbin as president of the soldiers' home board; Brigadier General Gillespie as president of the board of ordinance and fortification, and assigning Lieutenant General Young as a member of the Sherman statute commission.

Miles' Parting Words.

In relinquishing the command of the army of the United States to which he was assigned by the president, Oct. 2, 1895, he hereby acknowledges his appreciation of the fidelity manifested by the officers and soldiers during the past eventful years.

To those who were his companions and associates during one of the greatest of all wars he takes pleasure in expressing his gratification that they have lived through the trials and dangers of long service to witness the results of their fortitude, heroism and unselfish devotion to the welfare of their country. They have also in a most commendable manner exemplified to the younger generation of soldiers those principles of discipline and patriotism which make the army the protector and defender, and never the menace, of the nation and its liberties.

Perfect Soldier a True Citizen.

Unswerving devotion to our government and the principles upon which it was established and has been maintained is essential to the efficiency of the national forces, and especially is this so in a democratic government where the individual, in order to be a perfect soldier, must first be a true citizen. The boast that every soldier of a great nation carried a marshal's baton in his knapsack is in a higher sense more than equaled in significance by the fact that every American soldier personifies sovereign citizenship and may by his own conduct exemplify impartial justice to those who have never experienced it and the results of the highest liberty to those who have been strangers to it.

During the darkest hour of our history the first commander of the American forces demonstrated the grandeur and nobility of his character by combating the evil influences then pervading the army and by manifesting the strongest confidence and faith in the ultimate justice and integrity of his government. His words of wisdom uttered at Newburg 120 years ago had the effect of inspiring "unexampled patriotism and patient virtue, rising superior to the pressure of the most complicated sufferings." It is one of the glories of our country that the army has maintained those principles for more than a century.

Host of Enemies Encountered.

In the discharge of its manifold duties the army has confronted enemies representing every stage of human development from the highest civilization yet obtained to savagery and barbarism. It has ever been its duty to observe in war those chivalric and human principles by which inevitable horrors are so greatly mitigated, while by unyielding prosecution of warfare against armed forces its valor has been demonstrated.

All honorable activity and life for the army must exist within the well-defined lines of patriotism, untarnished honor, sterling integrity, impartial justice, obedience to rightful authority and incessant warfare against armed enemies. Always to maintain truth, honor and justice requires the highest moral courage, and is equally as important as fortitude in battle. Drill, discipline and instruction are but preparatory for the perfection and efficiency of the army.

Must Exemplify Country's Principles.

The events of recent years have placed upon the army a new obligation. The United States army is now brought into daily communication with millions of people to whom its individual members of every grade are the exponents of American civilization. A serious duty and a great honor are now presented to every officer and soldier—namely, to exemplify to those with whom he comes into contact our country's principles of equal and exact justice, immunity from violence, equality before the law and the peaceful use and possession of his own.

Marked changes at different times have occurred in strength and organization of the army, resulting from diverse influences, and various experiments have been tried. Time has rectified errors in the past and will do so in the future. The lieutenant general has faith that under all circumstances the army will maintain its high character and that its future will be as honorable and glorious as has been its history in the past. His earnest solicitude and best wishes will ever follow the fortunes of the army.

In the World of Baseball

Rapid Thinkers Make the Best Ball Players. Story of an Unassisted Double Play That Surprised the Cincinnatis ⁂ Doyle and McCarthy.

Quick wit counts in baseball as much as in any other sport. The man who can take in the whole situation at a glance and at the same instant suit his actions to his thought will win games where an equally good player who does not think will lose them.

Here is an instance which stands alone in all the annals of baseball—with a single exception:

In the days when the Cincinnati Reds were at the top of the heap they went to Wilmington, O., to play an exhibition game. The Wilmington team was made up entirely of amateur players. The Wilmington pitcher was a young chap named David Reese and the Wilmington second base man was a college boy named Lynne Smith. It was young Smith who turned out to be the hero of one of the most sensational plays ever made in the national game.

The Reds went to the little town in the full flush of success, determined to have a lot of sport with the local players. The Reds won the toss and went to bat. Young Reese, the Wilmington pitcher, was a first class amateur, but naturally he was badly rattled at the idea of facing the best team in the National league, and for the first few minutes his work was poor.

The first two of the Reds who went to bat hit base hits. The third man got a base on balls, and everybody on the Cincinnati nine began to grin broadly at the fun ahead. All the bases were full, and there was nobody out. It was a huge snap—a regular picnic.

Then old Bug Holiday, the fourth man on the batting list of the Reds, picked up his club and sauntered up to the plate, blood in his eye. The first ball young Reese pitched Bug struck at. What is more, he hit it and sent the ball flying straight out over second base—a hit that under most circumstances would have been good for a couple of bases.

The minute the ball left Bug's bat all three of the men on bases started at the top of their speed for the next base. But they figured without their host.

Young Lynne Smith, second base man for Wilmington, was equal to the emergency. He jumped straight up into the air and made a desperate lunge at the ball with his right hand. The ball stuck, and when he came down Smith lit with both feet fairly on the second bag. That put two men out—the batter and the base runner who had just started for third.

But young Smith was not yet satisfied. Without the hesitation of a moment—which would have been fatal—he started on the dead run for first base, and, unassisted, caught and touched out the base runner who had started from first to second when Bug made his hit. So, all alone and without assistance of any kind, young Smith made a record which is unique among ball players.

The triple play seemed to take all the starch out of the Reds. It also had the effect of steadying down the Wilmington team and giving them sufficient nerve and courage to play to the best of their ability.

Reese, the scrub pitcher, struck out a lot of the Reds' best batters, and at the end of the game the famous players from Cincinnati had to go home with a score of 4 to 2 against them.

It is, of course, easy to say that young Smith's wonderful catch was only a fluke. Perhaps it was. Admitting that, and admitting further that his coming down squarely on second base with both feet was a piece of good luck, it must still be admitted that it took quick and cool thinking to lead him, the minute he struck the ground, to start after the runner from first, instead of throwing the ball to home, which nine out of ten players would have been certain to do.

Here is the story of a bit of quick baseball thinking which resulted in turning Jack Doyle of the old New York team and now with Brooklyn against his best friend, Tom McCarthy, perhaps the surest thrower and one of the quickest fielders who ever played in the National league:

Boston and New York were playing in the latter city and Doyle was at bat for New York. New York had men on first and second. Tom Brown was the base runner on second, and he was famous as one of the fastest and most daring runners in the game. Tom McCarthy was out in the left garden for Boston.

Doyle lined out a sharp grounder into left field. McCarthy ran up on it, scooped it with one hand and without stopping to look or even to gather himself together sent the ball sailing in to first base.

Ninety-nine fielders out of a hundred would have thrown the ball home in order to cut off the runner, particularly when a fast man like Tom Brown had been on second when the ball was hit. Doyle naturally figured that McCarthy would follow the rule, as he overran first thirty feet on his way to second and was caught far off the base when he tried to get back. Brown meanwhile had stopped after overrunning third in fear of the natural throw home, and no run was scored. The next man to bat flew out, and the game was over, with Boston a winner by one run.

As McCarthy came in from field Doyle met him and in something of a huff asked why on earth McCarthy had thrown to first instead of putting the ball home, which would have been the proper thing to do.

"Just because I knew that everybody would think that was the proper thing to do," answered McCarthy. "Tom Brown, I knew, was well aware that I am a good thrower, and he would stop after turning third to see if I was socking it home, and you, I figured out, would run past first with the idea of getting to second while the ball was on its way to the plate. I won by doing just exactly what nobody expected me to do."

But Doyle declared that McCarthy had taken an unfair advantage of him, and the relations between the two never got back to the old friendly footing.

One of the features of the baseball season has been the effective twirling of Pitcher Wicker of the Chicago Nationals. President Hart's men have been playing a good game, and were enabled to take the lead in the pennant race early in the season owing to the snappy work of their infield and the able performances of their slab artists. Wicker is cool and heady, and is one of the comparatively young men of the game. He has defeated Brooklyn and other heavy hitting aggregations, and will bear watching. A wicked out drop is his mainstay.

Race Horses In Indiana.

There are fifty horses in training at the Frankfort (Ind.) track. The management has spent nearly $2,000 on the track and now has one of the best in the middle west. The same amount has been expended on the Logansport track, and forty horses are taking their work there. Both places are in the Gas Belt circuit.

The following description of Ruskin at home is from the life of the great apostle of beauty by Frederic Harrison in the English Men of Letters Series:

Not only was he in social intercourse one of the most courteous and sweetest of friends, but he was in manner one of the most fascinating and impressive beings whom I ever met. I have talked with Carlyle and Tennyson, with Victor Hugo and Mazzini, with Garibaldi and Gambetta, with John Bright and Robert Browning, but no one of these ever impressed me more vividly with a sense of intense personality, with the inexplicable light of genius that seemed to well up spontaneously from heart and brain. It remains a psychological puzzle how one who could write with passion and scorn such as Carlyle and Byron never reached, who in print was so often Athenasius contra mundum, who opened every written assertion with "I know," was in private life one of the gentlest, gayest, humblest of men.

How a Rat Stole Bulbs.

M. de Parville, a well known French naturalist, told a remarkable story about a rat in the Journal des Debats. A gardener planted one afternoon 250 tulip bulbs on a terrace, and next morning he noticed that the ground had been disturbed and that they had all been taken away. He was confident that rats had done the work, and, taking a spade, he began to dig in the hope of discovering their nest. Soon he unearthed a large female rat, which he killed, and after digging a few more minutes he discovered an underground chamber lined with hay and leaves and connected by a corridor with two holes, which were evidently used as storehouses, for in them he found the 250 tulip bulbs. This was remarkable, but more remarkable was the fact that they were neatly arranged in two rows and that not one of them had been gnawed or otherwise injured.

REAL ENJOYMENT.

The woman who reads this will understand to the full what Mrs. Tipton meant when she says: "I am enjoying good health." It takes a person who has been made wretched by sickness to understand the joy of health.

There are very many women who suffer as did Mrs. Tipton, who might be cured as she was by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

"It is with pleasure I recommend Dr. Pierce's medicine," writes Mrs. Nora Tipton, of Cropper (Cropper Station), Shelby Co., Kentucky. "You remember my case was one of female weakness and weak lungs. I had no appetite and would often spit blood; was confined to my bed almost half of the time and could hardly stand on my feet at times for the pains through my whole body and system. My husband had to pay large doctor bills for me, but since I have taken four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, four of 'Favorite Prescription' and three vials of 'Pleasant Pellets' we haven't paid any more doctor bills. It had been seven months since I stopped using Dr. Pierce's medicines and I have been enjoying good health all the time. I can never praise these medicines too highly, for I have received so much benefit. I pray that many who suffer as I did will take Dr. Pierce's medicines. I am sure they will never fail to cure when given a fair trial. Everybody tells me I look better than they ever saw me. I am sure I feel better than I ever did before."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a ladies' laxative. No other medicine equals them for gentleness and thoroughness.

By ANNE FITZHUGH MACLEAN

IV.—The Clergyman of Romance.

BETWEEN literature and the church there is a mutual debt. The fact that the balance of obligation is on the side of the church does not make its portion of the debt less real, for despite much holding up of clergymen and their flocks to ridicule—indeed, partly through that very means—novelists have shown a zeal for the welfare of the church, even, as is but too often the case, when they are not themselves inside the fold.

The artistic mind—that is, the mind of every writer born for his work—has a natural disinclination toward form and convention. It is frequently deeply devotional without recognizing the necessity for the institutions of religion. At the same time the artistic mind should by its very nature see more clearly than others into the heart of vital truth; consequently, if from one point of view the novelist is in danger of undervaluing the religious life, he should from another and a higher view be able to value it with peculiar justness.

The church fills an immense place in fiction. So deep rooted and widespread is its use that a body of fiction without the ecclesiastical element is hard to imagine. The dramatic possibilities of the priesthood, with its monasticism, its obedience, its inviolate confession, have been developed in every conceivable direction.

To the unspeakable corruption attributed to this clergy in mediæval Italian romance, to the cunning and merciless fanaticism charged against it by Eugene Sue and his like, has succeeded a conception of a priesthood true to its vows of chastity, obedience and poverty and exceeding its vows in voluntary self renunciation. Fiction, as has often been said, exaggerates what it deals with, as a statue must be exaggerated to appear of normal size. We do not believe that all priests are unselfish, heroic and pure because they are thus represented today any more than we believe that all were degraded or cruelly fanatic because we find them so described in the fiction of certain periods. But it cannot be doubted that the change in novelists' conception of the priesthood indicates a similar change in the standard of life and character of the priesthood as a whole.

Charlotte Bronte.
[Whose ineffectual, undersized curates gave her fame.]

As the Romish clergy have contributed to the dramatic needs of fiction so have the English clergy been interwoven with the social and domestic life of English stories, and as the priest was once portrayed as a jolly libertine or a cunning bigot so there was an accepted idea of the Anglican cleric.

No hypocrite he, but an open worldling, free in the use of wine and strong language, fond of his ease and of fox hunting and acquit of his ministerial duties when he had raced through two brief Sunday services and done all the baptizing, marrying and burying that was thrust upon him. The really contemptible variety of him was the domestic chaplain, who groveled at the feet of the great and was thankful to retain his seat at the nobleman's table at whatever cost of self abasement. When dissent was ripe for the novelist, the dissenting parson was eagerly seized upon as an opportunity for a new type.

These three types have been gradually replaced by very different characterizations, but one unfortunate order remains still an object of derision—the curates. How long will they continue to furnish story tellers with ineffectual, undersized young men who fall hopelessly in love with the highborn beauty of the parish and provide a foil for the tall and virile hero? Through them Charlotte Bronte attained the summit of her fame, and, hard as it is upon the curates, it must be admitted that her portraits were not imaginary. Doubtless, however, she saw the originals as she saw most things, with a passionate intensity that enlarged the characteristic upon which her vision fixed and minimized its modifying features. Bishops have been favored almost as much as curates have been derided, which is hopeful for the lesser order, as are not all curates potential bishops?

There is a goodly company of ideal bishops in fiction of whom the dear and adorable bishop in "Les Miserables" is chief and best. Among living writers Hall Caine has given us in "The Deemster" a notable prelate, though the heartbreaking pathos of his story makes it too painful to read with enjoyment. A less sane and admirable creation is the young minister, Ewan, in the same story, a cleric of a morbid type fast passing out of fiction. Anthony Trollope's parsons are so numerous and so varied in their motives and characters that they form a little world in themselves. Of them he says: "I trust that I shall not be thought to scoff at the pulpit, though some may imagine that I do not feel all the respect that is due to the cloth. I may question the infallibility of the teachers, but I hope that I shall not therefore be accused of doubt as to the thing taught."

This, too, was Thackeray's standpoint. His veneration for the thing taught made him hard upon insincerity in the teachers, and, as Trollope says of him, he was not cynical, but only necessarily severe in "Clerical Snobs" and in his bold delineation of "the Rev. Bute Crawley, the horse racing rector, and others. When this is done with sympathy, as is pre-eminently the case with George Eliot, when there is discrimination between vice and mere human weakness, it is undoubtedly for the good, not for the injury, of institutional religion. Thackeray himself says, though the words may be slightly different, "God forbid that any words of mine should do harm to the church!"

George Eliot had a calmer, wider vision than Charlotte Bronte and a deeper vision than Thackeray and Trollope. She saw in the ministry all manner of men and bore noble testimony to much that she saw in such delineations as Mr. Irwine in "Adam Bede," Mr. Tryan in "Janet's Repentance" and Mr. Lyon in "Felix Holt." She has given us the holder of the sacred office as rabbi, Romish priest, English clergyman, Methodist sister and independent parson and always with a marvelous, impartial insight. Whose heart has not ached with the commonplace heart of the Rev. Amos Barton, with his ill adjusted family and income, "a man whose nature it was not to be superlative in anything unless indeed he was superlatively middling, the quintessential extract of mediocrity," and ached yet more with his exquisitely drawn wife in the dreary realism of her sorrows?

Then there is Dinah, a sort of prophetic apotheosis of the Salvation Army girl. Very different in its delightful and kindly humor is the contrasting, in "Felix Holt," of the two ministerial types, the independent parson and the two English churchmen, rector and curate. In connection with her skill George Eliot's modesty is interesting when she says in apology for the imperfections of her clerical personages: "My strongest effort is to avoid any arbitrary picture and to give a faithful account of men and things as they have mirrored themselves in my mind. The mirror is doubtless defective, the outlines will sometimes be disturbed, the reflection faint or confused, but I feel as much bound to tell you as precisely as I can what that reflection is as if I were in the witness box narrating my experience on oath."

In American letters the preacher has long been a popular figure, but "The Scarlet Letter" is still the most powerful and successful study of the mind of a man in holy office. It is a unique conception, not to be easily classified.

The late popular ministerial hero, John Storm, Dean Maitland, the several finely drawn priests in "Helbeck of Bannisdale" and "Eleanor," the distinct individualities of the Scotch pastors for whom we are indebted to Barrie, Ian Maclaren and many others—all indicate an increase in public respect for the holy calling and a demand for consistent living on the part of those who profess to teach the truth. Today the unworthy clergyman is the exception, and his unworthiness is not proclaimed as implying the unworthiness of the church he represents.

The actively bad priest or parson had in fiction a successor who, though less pestilential, could have been scarcely more effectual in aiding the cause of practical religion. With effeminacy as his chief characteristic, it was he who gave foundation to the description of the clergy as "the third sex." To him in turn succeeded the honest doubter, whose doubt itself was a relief after the timid, unhealthy, thin blooded piety of his predecessors.

A few years ago there was no theme more popular than this—the clergyman who questioned his own teachings. "Robert Elsmere" was but the strongest of a multitude of books with kindred motive. Latterly the young clergyman has settled his doubts or left the pulpit with them.

The time has indeed passed when the clergy could be spoken of with applause as "the third sex." Today two types predominate. One is the representative of "muscular Christianity," the red blooded "man among men," who bases his life upon the doctrine that he is a man and nothing that pertains to men is indifferent to him. He takes a hand in public affairs if need arises, he can use his fists to good purpose, and his aspiration is to be an exemplar of religion in practical working.

The piety of the other popular type is less robust in appearance, but not in fact. He endures privation that he may have to give to them that need, and while leading the life of an ascetic he does for his people the work of two men. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps gives us a fine embodiment of this conception in "A Singular Life."

In books the ascetic clergyman generally dies of some wasting disease, and I doubt not in life also of innutrition, for no man can keep his bodily machine at high pressure and deny the furnace necessary fuel.

Margaret Deland's clergymen are endowed with her favorite virtue—common sense—and are so natural and human that we all recognize them among our own ministerial acquaintances. There are some such comfortable counselors in life as her Dr. Lavendar. Would there were more!

Mrs. Emmons, saved from an operation for Ovaritis, tells how she was cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I am so pleased with the results I obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I feel it a duty and a privilege to write you about it.

"I suffered for over five years with ovarian troubles, causing an unpleasant discharge, a great weakness, and at times a faintness would come over me which no amount of medicine, diet, or exercise seemed to correct. Your Vegetable Compound found the weak spot, however, within a few weeks—and saved me from an operation—all my troubles had disappeared, and I found myself once more healthy and well. Words fail to describe the real, true grateful feeling that is in my heart, and I want to tell every sick and suffering sister. Don't dally with medicines you know nothing about, but take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and take my word for it, you will be a different woman in a short time."—MRS. LAURA EMMONS, Walkerville, Ont.

Go Prepared.

In preparing for your summer outing a little forethought may save you no end of trouble. Mr. John H. Manly, a dry goods merchant, of Bellville, R. I., while packing an outfit for camping a few weeks on Narragansett Bay, put in a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for emergency use. The second day in camp his little boy was taken with cramp colic. The first dose of this remedy gave relief and the second dose effected a cure. Think of the pain and suffering this boy would have had to endure without this remedy at hand to relieve him. Such cases often result fatally. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger.

Engineer Held Responsible.

In discussing the question of responsibility for the horror, the railroad officials unhesitatingly lay it to Engineer Probst of the second section of the train whose home is in Battle Creek. Probst says that the airbrake on his train refused to work, but the officials declare that he could have stopped the train in time to have avoided serious consequences. General Manager F. H. McGuigan said:

"Probst knew that he was coming into a yard where trains usually stand and take on coal and water. The rules say plainly that engineers shall approach such yards with their trains under control. A brakeman sent back by the first train warned him of the danger three-quarters of a mile before he got to the standing section. For nearly half a mile before he got to the first train the track is straight and clear, and he should have been able to see the red light on the back of the train ahead in time to stop his train. Of course he, like anyone else, will try to avoid such a dreadful responsibility."

Airbrakes Apparently All Right.

The official report on the accident, issued by Superintendent Brownlee, declares positively that the airbrakes have been tested since the accident and found to be in perfect condition and there is evidence that they were not applied.

One of the officials in discussing the accident and its causes says that he believed Engineer Probst had exhausted his air in checking his train several times between Lansing and Durand and failed to again charge his tank. The head brakeman and fireman, who were on the engine, bear out Engineer Probst's statement that the brakes refused to work.

The bodies of the dead have been placed in caskets and are being shipped to their homes as rapidly as possible. The injured who are still here at the temporary hospital, in the Hotel Richelieu, are those suffering from lesser hurts, the seriously wounded being removed to Detroit.

The Grand Trunk tracks have been cleared and the officials of the road place their loss at $4,700.

Epidemic of Rabies Reported.

Middletown, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The alarming outbreak of rabies in the town of Montgomery, this county, has caused the state department of agriculture to take decisive action. Twenty-two cows are already dead of the disease. Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture E. J. Preston says about 200 dogs have been killed in Montgomery during the past few days.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

SECTION 1. That a proposition shall be submitted to the electors of this state, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1903, to amend section 16, of article II, of the constitution of the state of Ohio, so that it shall read as follows:

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 16. Every bill shall be fully and distinctly read three different days, unless in case of urgency three-fourths of the house in which it shall be pending, shall dispense with the rule. No bill shall contain more than one subject, which shall be clearly expressed in its title, and no law shall be revived, or amended unless the new act contains the entire act revived, or the section or sections amended, and the section or sections so amended shall be repealed.

Every bill passed by both houses of the general assembly shall, before said bill can become law, be presented to the governor. If he approves he shall sign said bill and thereupon said bill shall be law. If he object he shall not sign and shall return said bill, together with his objections thereto in writing, to the house wherein said bill originated, which house shall enter at large upon its journal said objection and shall proceed to reconsider said bill. If, after said reconsideration, at least two-thirds of the members elect of that house vote to repass said bill it shall be sent, together with said objection, to the other house, which shall enter at large upon its journal said objection and shall proceed to reconsider said bill. If, after said reconsideration, at least two-thirds of the members elect of that house vote to pass said bill it shall be law, otherwise it shall not be law. The votes for the repassage of said bill shall in each house respectively be no less than those given on the original passage. If any bill passed by both houses of the general assembly and presented to the governor is not signed and is not returned to the house wherein it originated and within ten days after being so presented, exclusive of Sunday and the day said bill was presented, said bill shall be law as in like manner as if signed, unless final adjournment of the general assembly prevents such return, in which case shall be law, unless objected to by the governor and filed, together with his objection thereto in writing, by him in the office of the secretary of state within the prescribed ten days; and the secretary of state shall at once make public said fact and shall return said bill, together with said objection, upon the opening of the next following session of the general assembly, to the house wherein said bill originated, where it shall be treated in like manner as if returned within the prescribed ten days.

If any bill passed by both houses of the general assembly and presented to the governor contains two or more sections, or two or more items of appropriation of money, he may object to one or more of said sections or to one or more of said items of appropriation of money, and approve the other portion of said bill, in which case said approved portion may be signed and then shall be law; and such section or sections item or items of appropriation of money objected to shall be returned within the time and in the manner prescribed for, and shall be separately reconsidered as in the case of a whole bill; but if final adjournment of the general assembly prevents such return the governor shall file said section or sections, item or items of appropriation of money, together with his objection thereto in writing, with the secretary of state as in the case of a whole bill, and the secretary of state shall then make public said fact, but shall not further act as in the case of a whole bill."

PIUS X., THE NEW POPE

IN April, 1902, when the late Pope Leo XIII. was in practically perfect health and there was no probability that his brilliant reign would be so soon cut short by the grim reaper, the pontiff remarked in a serious conversation with Father Perosi, the Italian priest whose musical compositions have made him famous the world over, that he was convinced that his successor would be Cardinal Sarto, the patriarch of Venice. When the recent conclave went into session there seemed little probability that Leo's prophecy would be fulfilled, for Rampolla seemed to have an almost commanding lead among the members of the college of cardinals, with Oreglia, Gotti and Serafino Vannutelli as strong possibilities. Besides these, there were several others who were thought to be likely candidates in case the rivalry among the leaders should become so intense as to make the election of any one of them impossible. But Sarto's name was scarcely mentioned except among the most reverent who remembered the prediction of Pope Leo and those who were mindful of the popularity in the Catholic church of Cardinal Sarto, which by many was regarded as being second not even to that of Leo himself. Cardinal Sarto, now Pope Pius X., evidently did not seriously consider himself as one of the papabili, for the evening before his election he declared, in speaking to a friend who had suggested that he might be the next pope, that when he started for Rome from Venice he had bought a return ticket. But the unexpected has happened, and Leo's prediction has been fulfilled—Cardinal Sarto is Pope Pius X., and the Roman Catholic church is satisfied that the progress made during the reign of Leo XIII. is to be continued and perhaps amplified under the administration of the present pontiff.

Pope Leo's prediction was considered remarkable by reason of the fact that because of Sarto's position with reference to a modus vivendi between the church and the state he seemed to be on that important point directly opposed to Leo. For instance, Cardinal Sarto publicly announced his joy when there were strong probabilities of a union between church and state, and his accession to the pontificate has long been regarded in certain quarters as the solution of the Roman problem so long unsolved and so long a cause of dissension over all Italy, to say nothing of its bearing upon the attitude of other Catholic countries. Cardinal Sarto is noted for his prudence, having never meddled with politics, and for extreme independence. He is also a patron of the arts, and launched Father Lorenzo Perosi, the celebrated priest composer.

The cardinal is recognized as one of the most learned men in the church. He is a stickler for the exact truth as between the church and the people, and won much renown some years ago by destroying certain relics of doubtful authenticity. He brings to his high office a character of most attractive modesty, unusual energy in the direction of matters large and small, the talents of a fine administrative officer and the first qualities of an organizer. In addition to his abilities and his undoubted Christian character, the cardinal is, from the sweetness of his nature, beloved by many millions of people. It is certain that no prelate would have a more enthusiastic sanction from the laity.

Pope Pius X. is sixty-eight years old. He was born at Riese, in the province of Venice, and was educated in the Salesian institute at Cottolengo, founded by the famous Dom Bosco. He was always of a serious turn of mind and when a young man his rector said to him that he had "never been a child."

Cardinal Sarto was not "discovered" until he had reached middle age. He was a parish priest in the province of Venice for the most of his years and finally became a bishop. His high executive qualities and unexcelled learning became known soon after his elevation and were recognized by the authorities of the church. It was not until 1893 that he was created a cardinal, at which time he was also named as patriarch of Venice. Thus the modest but able parish priest became the head of the province in which he had served so many years in a lowly position. His selection was made by the consistory of 1893, which was compelled to sue the throne for the privilege of installing him as patriarch of Venice. In return for this concession, which was made through Premier Crispi, the church appointed an ecclesiastical vicar apostolic in northeastern Africa to assist the premier in his pet scheme of extending the African colonies.

Cardinal Sarto had not been in office more than a year before he publicly declared for a union between church and state, speaking in no uncertain way. His utterances created a great sensation, and it was felt that he might have offended the holy father by the fervor of his words. Apparently he received the silent approbation of the pope, in whose estimation he ever held a firm place.

It was said at the time that Cardinal Sarto made his public announcement that the Austrian and Prussian ambassadors at the Vatican were endeavoring to induce the papal authorities to agree to a modus vivendi. Emperor Francis Joseph is reported to have written several letters to the pope with this end in view, and Emperor William of Germany is said to have been equally anxious to bring about an understanding between the Vatican and the Italian government.

For more than three decades a gulf has yawned between the rival palaces of king and pope, a gulf material and political. For thirty-five years—since the Italians battered down the massive walls near the old Porta Pia—earnest men and noble women of all parties have been dreaming and hoping that the mighty breach between victors and vanquished might in some way be closed.

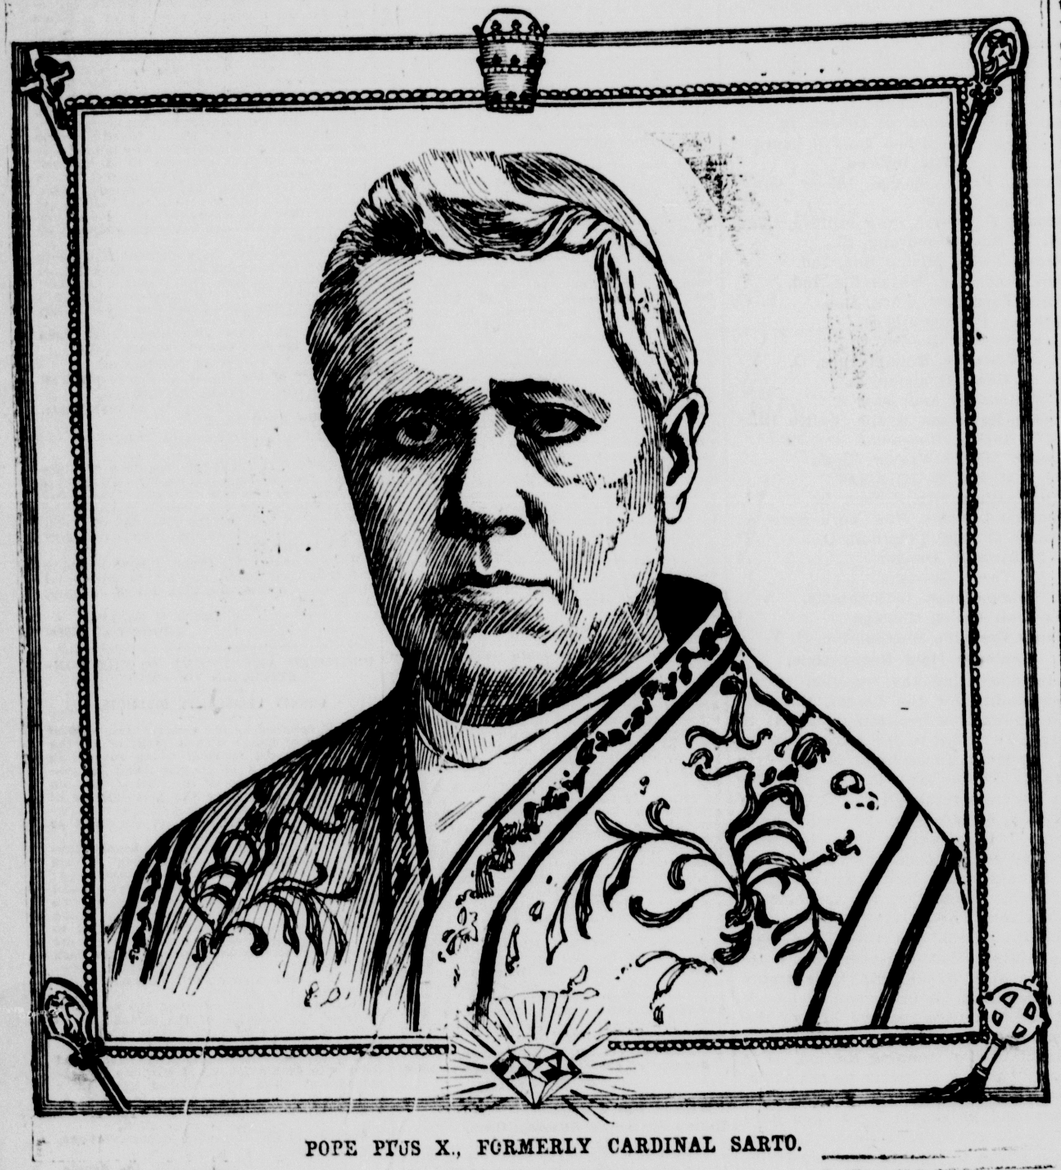
It was said of Pope Leo that in 1878, when he had just succeeded Pope Pius IX., he longed for some amicable arrangement with the Italians, but if he did reasons of state outweighed his private wish. He was silent, and thus pledged himself to the no compromise party.

It is strange that while Sarto was never seriously considered by the public at large or by the ordinary press correspondents as a papal probability, his availability was commented upon by the really thoughtful writers more frequently than that of any other cardinal. As an example, a special correspondent of a prominent American daily last April wrote as follows to his paper concerning Cardinal Sarto and the papacy:

"It is Cardinal Guiseppe Sarto, the patriarch of Venice, the friend and patron of Abbe Perosi, the composer, who is at the present moment regarded not only throughout Italy, but likewise in the principal capitals of Europe, as destined to become the next pope. So little has been heard of him until now in connection with the papal succession that he may be regarded in the light of a dark horse in the race, which is perhaps due to the fact that he rarely goes to Rome, that he has never been a resident of the Eternal City, and that from the time of his being appointed vicar general of the diocese of Treviso until now he has held steadily aloof from all the projects of the curia.

"The vast majority of the Italian cardinals, and especially those who, forming part of the curia, are established in the Eternal City, have won their promotion to the sacred college as members of the diplomatic service of the papacy rather than as priests. And when a prelate has spent the greater portion of his life in diplomacy, and has found it the stepping stone to high honors, it naturally leaves him at the close of his career as representative of the Vatican abroad, with a greater cleaning toward statecraft than toward the administrative and doctrinal duties of his office at Rome. Many persons declare that it is imperative that the next pontiff should be a prelate who would devote his entire energies to reforms of an administrative and economic character, and likewise to the more rigid enforcement of the doctrines and discipline of the church.

"Cardinal Sarto, the patriarch of Venice, is the man of all others who fills these requirements. He is probably the most able administrator of the Italian episcopacy, combines firmness and determination with abundant tact and common sense, and has managed to institute a number of very practical reforms in his archdiocese of Venice without giving offense either to the clergy or to the laity. He avoids all newspaper notoriety. Indeed, his name is rarely mentioned in the press. He has always understood how to maintain an agreeable yet dignified modus vivendi with the Italian authorities, from whom he derives his stipend, and has shown his enlightenment by the vigorous campaign which he has carried on against the veneration of relics of questionable authenticity. He is on friendly terms with the members of the reigning house of Italy, during the late reign took part with King Humbert and Queen Margherita in the launching of a man-of-war at Venice, as well as in other state ceremonies at which they were present, and would certainly be a most agreeable choice as pope to the present ruler of Italy. He is just sixty-eight years old, which will be in his favor in the eyes of the conclave, since, as a general rule, that number of years constitutes a guarantee that the pontificate will not be of undue length."



POPE PIUS X., FORMERLY CARDINAL SARTO.

PREPERATIONS FOR CORONATION

Thousands Awaiting Sunday's Ceremonies—Don Carlos Sanguine. Herrero Out of Danger.

Rome, Aug. 8.—St. Peter's is closed while preparations for the coronation Sunday is proceeding. Pope Pius X. has expressed a desire to have as many of the humble members of the faith as possible admitted and 50,000 tickets will be distributed. The remainder of the seats will be reserved for distinguished guests. Only two galleries have been erected, one for the diplomatic body and one for the Roman aristocracy.

Thousands are already leaving the Venetian provinces to attend the coronation of "their pope." The papal master of ceremonies has issued the invitations to the archbishops and bishops who will participate in the procession from the vatican into St. Peter's. They are requested to be at the vatican at 7 o'clock on Sunday morning.

The government, to avoid untoward incidents, has ordered the piazza and the neighborhood of St. Peter's and the basilica to be occupied by the military and forbidding an anti-clerical manifestation proposed by the Socialists and Republicans for that day. The pope's first allocution to be delivered at the next secret consistory is looked forward to with great interest.

Don Carlos, the Spanish pretender, who is a personal friend of Pius X., has said to his followers that he would not now have the papacy against him as he did under the pontificate of Leo, who was the godfather of King Alfonso, and has even gone so far as to say that he hoped the accession of the pope would help him to the throne.

Dr. Lapponi stated that Cardinal Herrero y Espinosa was out of danger.

Outbreaks Cause Sensation.

Sofia, Aug. 8.—The fresh insurrectionary outbreak in Macedonia which was believed to be impossible has produced a sensation everywhere. It is believed that the latest provocations by the Turkish troops drove the insurrectionists to despair. The Bulgarian government is resolved to maintain friendly relations with the porte and to prevent bands from crossing the frontier, but a popular movement is feared in the event of massacres of peaceful Macedonians by the Turkish soldiery. Meetings of prominent Macedonians were held and measures for succoring the sufferers from the insurrection were discussed, but no decision was reached.

Silence and Fun.

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 8.—The state convention of deaf mutes concluded when the delegates went to Roxbury park to enjoy a picnic. They played baseball, ran foot races and played tag. It was a day of silence and fun. The feature, however, was the dancing to the music of an orchestra, though not a note did they hear. They kept the step with the precision and grace of those more fortunate. How they did it is still a puzzle to the spectators, but it has been explained that one couple could hear and that the rest followed their movements.

Chinaman Seeks License.

Pittsburg, Aug. 8.—The appearance of a Chinaman in the court house seeking a marriage license caused considerable excitement along the corridors of the county building. A Celestial giving the name of Lee Chang applied for a license to marry a woman whose name he said was Lillian Russell, and who the Chinaman said was beyond the age that required the parents' consent to the union. The addresses of both the prospective groom and bride were given as Allegheny.

Damage Suits Threatened.

Sharon, Pa., Aug. 8.—No further fatalities have resulted from the collision on the Youngstown and Sharon trolley line, and it is believed that all the injured will recover. A rigid investigation is being made by the Trumbull county authorities. Several damage suits against the company are threatened by some of the injured.

Charged With Liquor Selling.

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 8.—Postmaster J. A. McCormick, of Shady Springs, Raleigh county, was arrested by Deputy Marshal Cunningham on the charge of selling liquor illegally. The accused was taken before United States Commissioner Dunn at Beckley for a hearing. He waived examination.

McFadden Gets Decision.

Boston, Aug. 8.—Kid McFadden, of San Francisco, won the decision over Fatsey Haley, of Boston, before the Lenox Athletic club. The bout went 12 rounds, the limit, and while it was McFadden's all the way, Haley did remarkable work and kept his opponent busy from beginning to end.

Whitaker Wright Released.

London, Aug. 8.—Whitaker Wright, the arrested promoter and director of the London and Globe Finance corporation, was released from Brixton jail, satisfactory securities for his $250,000 bail having been furnished.

To Build National Salon.

Indianapolis, Aug. 8.—The photographers at the national convention approved the plan of building a national salon at Winona. It will be the first undertaking of its kind in the world.

Nathaniel P. Gage Dead.

Chester, Vt., Aug. 8.—Nathaniel Parker Gage, of Washington, for the past 30 years supervising principal of schools in the Northwestern division, died of apaplexy, aged 63 years.

Boiler Shops Burned.
